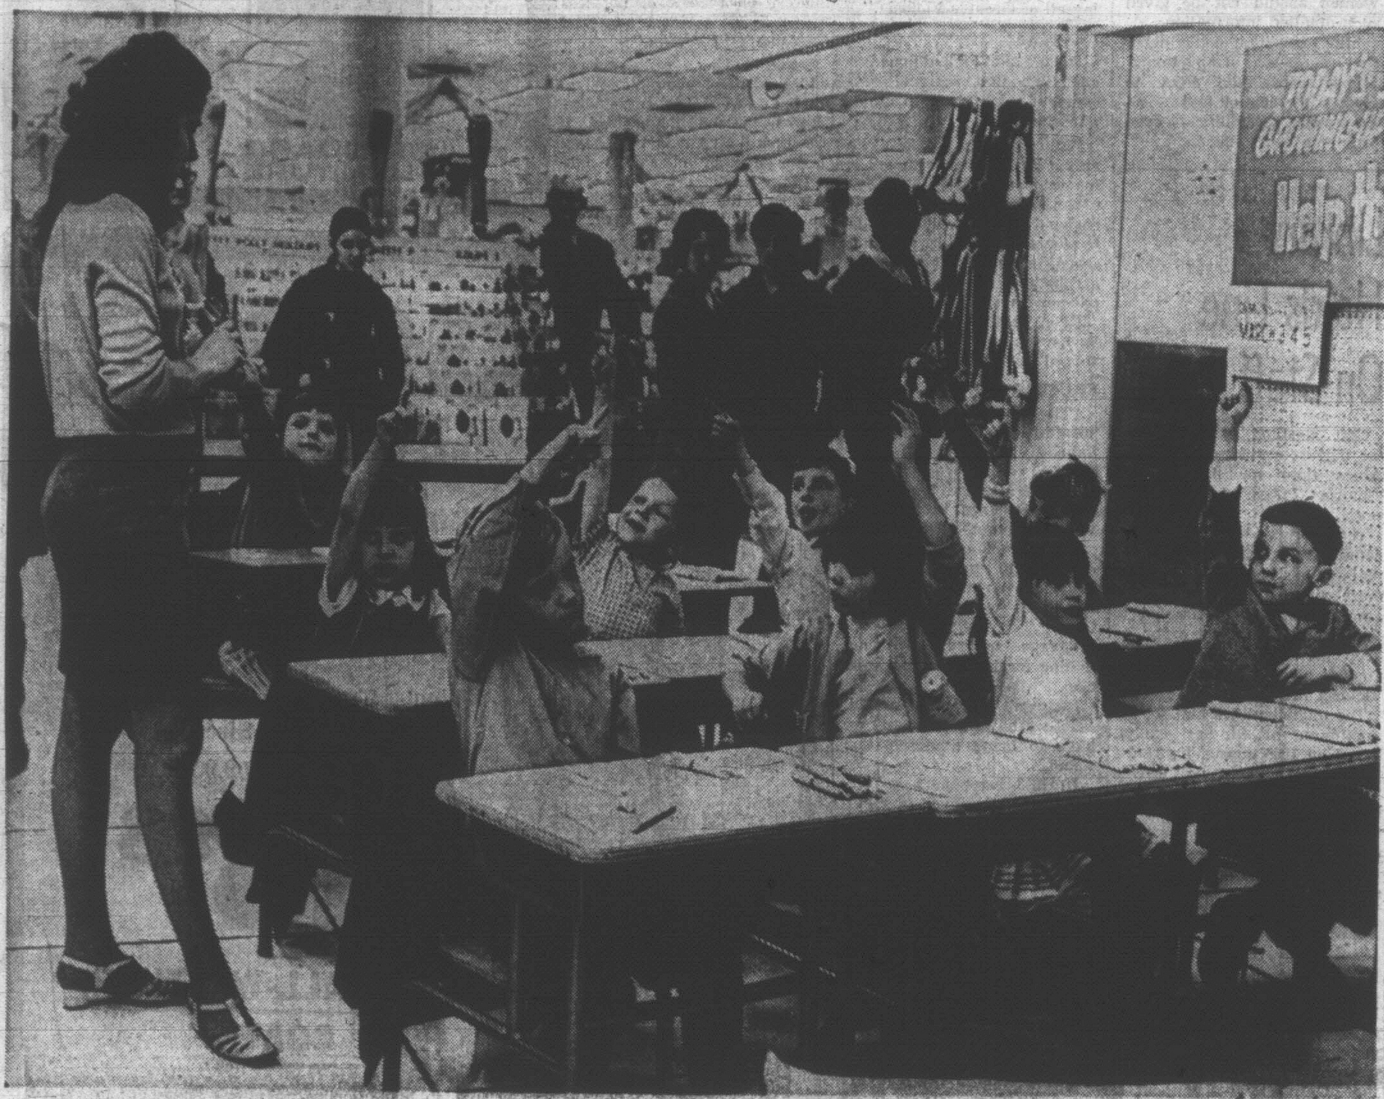
TIME TO UNITE POLICE, FIRE, SAYS SAVAGE

Amalgamation Talks Sought



CLASSROOM DEMONSTRATION draws curious glances from shoppers in a city department store Tuesday afternoon. Boundary Lines 'Imaginary'

By JIM HUME

Ald. Clyde Savage this morning called for a top-level intermunicipal conference as a first step towards total amalgamation.

"It is time elected officials from all municipalities sat down at the conference table to discuss the first steps towards complete amalgamation of services," Savage said. "We have suffered for long enough at the hands of parochial and often confused thinking at the mixed-up municipal government level."

Savage said he had become more than ever convinced that amalgamation of the four municipalities is essential following a series of meetings between Victoria city council and city hall department heads.

"During those sessions the lack of co-operation between the various areas was a predominant theme," Savage added. "Our fire chief stressed his dificulty in planning fire stations due to the irregular borders of various municipalities.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is also a strong advocate of amalgamation.

One of the main planks in his election platform was a call for one government for the entire area. He still insists that the four core municipalities should have one government or at least combined police and fire services.

"Our comptroller discussed the city's new data processing centre which is capable of handling all the needs of all the municipalities—but others do not care to use it," said Savage.

"Our traffic engineer notes that it is absolutely impossible to regulate traffic flow in a proper and efficient manner

DRINKING AGE DROPS TO 19

The age of majority in British Columbia will be lowered from 21 to 19 years of age in a bill introduced into the legislature today by Attorney-General Peterson.

This means that persons 19 years of age will be eligible to purchase and consume liquor, hold property, get married without permission of parents, and any other rights previously granted persons 21 or over.

The bill automatically means all references to age 21 in existing statutes will be read as 19, and gives the cabinet power to amend any regional or municipal bylaw to substitute the age of 19 for 21.

MERGER? 'PROVE IT WORKS'

Amalgamation—prove it works.

That, in the final analysis, will be what voters in Greater Victoria's four core muncipalities will want to know before they decide the issue.

And that, essentially, sums up Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford's reaction today to Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage's call for a series of top-level intermunicipal meetinsg to decide what steps must be taken to bring amalgamation about.

Mayor Courtney Haddock of Victoria is convinced it's the only answer to ending confusion and guaranteeing co-operation of the municipalities in matters of common concern.

And Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings, the minister of trade and industry, recently told the legislature that amalgamation is the only way.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce agrees 100 per cent.

But Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich isn't so sure. He says amalgamation might be irrelevant as regional government becomes more effective — regional government now is reponsible for such area-wide matters as hospitals, planning, sewers and parks.

The voters of Saanich, who, because of numbers, will have the largest voice in the question, might not be so sure.

Twice they defeated attempts to amalgamate their municipality with Victoria. Victoria ratepayers voted in favor in 1958, but Saanich voted 5,090 to 2,731 against.

In 1962 the vote was again defeated 4,869 to 3,936.

Mayor Elford says she is ready to discuss the matter, but: "I've said all along — if anyone can prove to me there will be a financial saving and no appreciable loss of the relationship the people of Oak Bay enjoy with their council, I have an open mind."

But she has doubts, naming Oak Bay the municipality with the least to gain and the most to lose.

Its problem, since the district is already built up, is maintaining services, while amalgamation would mean "paying for expansion in other municipalities."

And the bureaucratic superstructure that would accompany an amalgamated administration would hinder the easy access ratepayers now have with mayor and aldermen.

Chamber secretary-manager Brian Small recalled that the senior and junior chambers sponsored an amalgamation study in 1958-1959. Conducted by Dr. John Deutsch, then a University of B.C. economist, now chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, it recommended joining Saanich and Victoria "in the long-term interest of both municipalities."

And chamber policy has consistently supported amalgamation of local governments and services.

The present regional set-up was largely devised by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and his department and he says the present regional district apparatus contains "the elements of amalgamation."

But he emphasized the need for his department's technical advice in the matter and the need for agreement among all parties.

He said he would be willing to meet the municipal officials if they indicate willingness to follow the necessary steps.

Crime Has Foothold In B.C., Charges Grit

Organized crime is gaining a foothold in the businesses of B.C. because of easy legislation, it was charged in the legislature Tuesday.

The gambling connections of Benguet Consolidated Ltd., the company which controls Alpine Outdoors Recreation Resource Ltd. in the proposed development of Cypress Bowl, are "only a symptom of this disease," Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said during discussion of the attorney-general's estimates.

Every day, said Williams, organized crime seeks opportunities to invest its illicit profits in legitimate private enterprise.

AVOID DISCLOSURE

Under present provincial laws, it is easy to avoid disclosure of holdings in companies, he said. Someone else could hold shares for the real owners.

Williams suggested a corporations' disclosure act to make it possible to uncover exactly who are actual owners of shares.

NDP MLAs have been repeatedly asking Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to state definitively that Benguet and its affiliates will be barred from operation within B.C.

The Benguet involvement in the province was brought up by opposition leader Dave Barrett at the beginning of the afternoon sitting when he repeated his question of Monday night: "Are they in or are they out?"

STILL INVOLVED

Barrett said he had talked in the morning by telephone to an official of the Grand Bahama Port Authority, an affiliate of Benguet, and was told that the company still considers itself involved in planning for the Cypress Bowl project. He called upon Peterson to give a firm answer on whether Benguet would be able to continue to do business in B.C.

The company official also said that a representative of the company was on his way to the west coast to visit B.C. and carry on negotiations in the case.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Peterson replied that it was "most unlikely" that the company would be permitted to operate in B.C., though there were still some details of the company under investigation.

The attorney-general read letters from Resources Minister Ray Williston sent to Alpine, the company owned 75 per cent by Benguet, indicating that the present financial control of the company was "unacceptable" and setting a deadline of May 31, 1970, for action to be taken.

Barrett asked why Alpine was being given a deadline of May 31 in view of the international reputation of Benguet as a company connected with a crime syndicate.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said he could not understand why investigation of the companies by the attorney-general's department was taking so long in the face of the abundance of material on Wallace Groves, chairman of the Grand Bahama Port Authority.

'INTRIGUE'

The MLA read from a book entitled The Syndicate Abroad by an unnamed Miami reporter that described "international intrigue" involving Groves and Myer Lansky, "a former casino operator in Havana during the Batista era."

Williams said a lawyer representing Alpine had met B.C. Lands Director Walter Redel, and had left with the belief that the company had a subdivision on their hands.

"Does anyone believe that a syndicate that has bought governments wouldn't know what they got?"

Alpine should be told that there are no leases available to them, Benguet told that there is no crown land available to them, and it should be made clear the government will have nothing to do with the group involved with the syndicate in the Bahamas and the U.S., Williams said.

'CHECKERED PAST'

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said it was time that the attorney-general made a "definitive statement." The department had no obligation to the companies, he stated.

ALASKA OIL SLICK KILLS 1,000 BIRDS

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Officials are puzzling over the source of oil that has fouled some 200 miles of shore on Kodiak Island and has killed more than 1,000 sea birds.

A spokesman for the Alaska department of fish and game said an estimated 40,000 gallons of oil had washed ashore. The oil, first reported in small amounts Feb. 15, is continuing to show up on rocks and beaches.

Some authorities believe the pollutant was oily ballast dumped by ships and carried ashore by wind and tide.

Manhattan Foregoes Full Passage Test

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The United States petroleum industry has switched strategy in its assault on the Northwest Passage through Canada's Arctic.

Humble Oil, owners of the Manhattan which successfully forced her way through the ice of the passage last year, said today the reinforced 1,005-foot icebreaking oil tanker is returning to northern waters about April 1, but will engage in tests in Baffin Bay and the Eastern Arctic.

They said the tanker will continue experiments to determine the economic feasibility of transporting crude oil from Alaska's North Slope fields to the U.S. East Coast by sea.

Objective of the second voyage is to establish a cost comparison between tanker transport of oil and construction of an overland pipeline.

"We expect no record-making precedent and our planned activities will be mainly restricted to the measuring of ice and testing the ship's performance," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, federal officials believe they have located the key to maintenance of Canadian sovereignty claims in the Arctic, a growing issue with the advent of commercial interest in the Northwest Passage and the related fear of wholesale environmental pollution which could result from an Arctic tanker accident.

The key, informed sources said Tuesday, are two specks of land so small they don't appear on most maps — the Princess Royal Islands in the Prince of Wales Strait.

The American oil tanker Manhattan had to sail through Prince of Wales Strait last summer on her Northwest Passage voyage after trying vainly to use another route which the U.S. could claim as an international waterway.

Informants said the Manhattan desperately tried to get through the other route — McClure Strait — because McClure's width precludes Canada claiming it as territorial sea. Heavy ice blocked the route.

Canada now subscribes to the international regulation that territory extends only three miles from the coast.

At its narrowest point, Prince of

French Sub Lost; 57 Feared Dead

PARIS (CP) — A French submarine with 57 men on board is missing in the Mediterranean and the government said it almost certainly is lost.

A defence ministry spokesman reported an explosion at sea had been detected and debris found added: "We can consider it almost certain that the Eurydice is lost."

The Eurydice was taking part in a hide-and-seek naval exercise in an area off the French south coast resort where more than 100 sailors have lost their lives in underwater disasters.

The vessel had been out of radio contact since diving at 7:30 a.m. 1:30 a.m. EST and did not return to the surface at 10 a.m. as scheduled.

All available ships and aircraft were asked to search the area after a reconnaissance plane taking part in the exercise reported the Eurydice overdue in surfacing.

The search force discovered patches of oil near the site where the sub was last reported and 2½ hours later the command ship reported finding debris.

The 850-ton Eurydice normally carries a full compliment of 39 men and six officers. There was no immediate explanation as to why the vessel had 57 persons aboard when it disappeared.

. . . MANHATTAN JOURNEY

Wales Strait is some eight miles across. Thus there would be a width of at least two miles down the middle of the strait which Canada could not claim as territorial sea.

Here's where the Princess Royal Islands come to the rescue.

They lie almost exactly in the middle of the channel and from them both Banks and Victoria Islands are only some five miles away.

Territorial limits are measured from any piece of land, no matter how small. The three-mile limit in this case extends from the two specks of island in the strait as well as from the shores of the much bigger Banks and Victoria Islands.

Thus Prince of Wales Strait to either side of the Princess Royal Islands is Canadian territorial water and subject to full Canadian sovereignty.

This is the only point in the entire Northwest Passage where Canada can assert — and have internationally accepted — a territorial claim over Arctic water.

By contrast, McClure Strait is some 60 miles wide.

Informants said the existence of the Princess Royal Islands will enable Canada to maintain sovereignty over the Northwest Passage at least until somebody finds an easy way to get through ice-filled McClure Strait.

Canadian icebreakers will be present at all future Arctic voyages by super-tankers such as the Manhattan, say two Canadians who took part in the Manhattan's voyage last year.

Rear Adm. A. H. G. Storrs, director of marine operations for the department of transport, and Capt. T. C. Pullen, also of the department, said Tuesday night that icebreakers will be needed for emergency purposes on future voyages.

Denison Sale Appears Likely

OTTAWA (CP)—A 45-minute meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and Stephen Roman ended today with word that a deal between Roman Corp. and American and British uranium interests may yet go through.

The government Monday threatened legislation to stop sale of Roman Corp., a deal that would have put control of Canada's largest uranium producer, Denison Mines Ltd., into foreign hands. Roman is chairman of both Roman Corp. and Denison Mines.

Background Stories On Page 27

"It may be possible that the deal will go ahead," Resources Minister J. J. Greene said after the meeting in Trudeau's office.

If a deal could be made "in such a way that uranium resources remain in Canadian corporate hands," the government would allow it, he suggested.

Further talks in Ottawa between the companies and federal officials are scheduled.

Greene and Finance Minister Edgar Benson attended the meeting.

Marshall Crowe, deputy secretary to the cabinet, also was present.

Earlier, Greene and Benson met with L. J. Richards, president of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, the company to which Roman Corp. was to sell its 25.5-per-cent interest in Denison. Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas is 65-per-cent owned by Continental Oil Co. of Wilmington, Del, and 21.9-per-cent owned by Hudson's Bay Co. of London, England.

Roman said in an interview the deal was fully agreed upon Feb. 24 and would have been announced Tuesday.

Roman said the meeting with Trudeau "went very nicely and very satisfactorily."

Bid for Licences

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Seventeen oil companies have bid for licences to explore for oil in a 3,000-square-mile area between Trinidad and Tobago, it has been announced.

The cabinet now will consider the bids and make a decision of granting licences by end of June.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Weather conditions in the province overnight were quite variable with cloud general along the coast and over most of the interior. Rain and snow were falling in the north coast with snow having reached the Cariboo.

The system now lying through the Bulkley Valley area will continue southeastward and is expected to weaken with general clearing occurring behind it.

Another system approaching the Oregon, northern California coast will cause some patches of cloud over the south coast today. The next disturbance in the series is near the weather ship and will spread rain into the outer coast late Thursday. Temperatures will remain cold.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

One of the surest ways to develop thrift is to live in a cool climate. Nature worked that out in prehistoric times when adventuring man began to move from one continent to another. He was forced to develop a system based on thrift and foresight.

When prehistoric man managed to travel from the tropics to the temperate zone, he found bad weather that made him shiver. He found that to survive in comfort he had to make warm clothing and save food and supplies for rainy and colder days.

And because the virtues of thrift and foresight were more needed in cool climates, the inhabitants generally grew more prosperous than the people in the tropics who didn't have to worry so much about food. People who were not naturally thrifty were forced into it by the weather. They had to save or starve.

FDA ASKS WARNING WITH PILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration said today it will move to require that drug makers include in all packages of birth control pills a leaflet telling of known and suspected hazards and side effects.

The drug makers at present are required to supply such information only to pharmacists.

The regulation is certain to stir opposition in the medical community and among drug makers. Many witnesses have testified at the subcommittee hearings that the majority of women should not be given such detailed information.

Stiff opposition could delay the regulation from taking effect, cause the FDA to change the leaflet and — as an outside possibility — even prompt a court suit.

Library Holds Line On Staff

Cost slashing, with salaries the biggest casualty, will make things tight for the Greater Victoria Public Library this year.

The library board's finance committee, Brian Tobin explained, has been forced to pare more than $150,000 from the amount originally estimated to cover 1970 needs in order to keep the line at $603,808, the amount allowed by the Greater Victoria municipalities.

The municipalities had set the maximum at $4 per capita, based on 1966 census figures.

The new budget will see a $41,651 reduction in the $386,184 paid out in salaries last year. The library's formal work force of 90 (30 are part time) is down to 75, no one being hired since the beginning of November.

The board approved the estimated budget Tuesday. It must also be approved by the municipalities.

The cutback means that Saanich can't expect a branch library before 1971. Saanich representative Ald. Alan Newberry said his council agreed that Oak Bay — without a branch now — has top priority.

With the addition of $28,050 from book fines, film rentals and other sources, the library will have a total of $631,858 to work with in 1970, up only $1,870 from last year's expenditures.

SURVEY COMPLETED

Board chairman, Ald. Arthur Cuthbert of Esquimalt, said the board agreed to freeze hiring of library staff until a survey on the library's operation was completed by the Vancouver consultant firm of Woods, Gordon and Co.

The survey is now finished and will be studied by board members this evening.

Cuthbert said he intended to make the study public and would probably call a press conference Thursday.

"The public paid $15,000 for the survey which, I think, is a good sound one, and they have a right to know what's in it."

unless we look at the problem on a district-wide basis.

"How can you plan traffic programs and patterns for one municipality without consideration and co-operation from our neighbors?"

Savage said it all "adds up to the fact that nothing can be accomplished in the present situation.

"Just about every plan proposed for the betterment of the area fails in frustration and lack of co-operation."

"Parochial thinking hinders our every move," he continued. "What we need, what we must have is the immediate formation of a group of responsible elected officials to lead us forward to a concrete municipal government governing all of Greater Victoria."

REGIONS

Savage said he had hoped at one time that regional government might lead to amalgamation.

"But obviously it won't," he said. "Regional government is for regional matters, not for urban municipal problems. The regional district will continue to function, but it will not serve, nor should it serve, as a substitute for sound municipal government."

Even at the regional level Savage said parochialism reared its head.

FRUSTRATED

"The fiasco facing us in the hospital construction field is indicative of what I mean," Savage said. "We are constantly frustrated because of imaginary lines between the various municipalites.

"The level of government designed to end parochialism has given us more parochialism than we ever had before."

Savage said he was not calling for instant amalgamation.

"It won't be easy," he said. "But we have to start and we have to bring amalgamation about."

In 1958 ratepayers in Victoria voted in favor of amalgamation while Saanich voters were against. At that time 5,090 voted against joining the city while 2,731 favored the move.

In 1962 a second vote saw the margin narrowed although amalgamation was again rejected. Some 4,869 were against and 3,936 in favor.

Power Corp. Will Make Share Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. has announced a proposal to make a formal share exchange offer for all Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. common shares it does not already own.

If the move is successful, Consolidated-Bathurst, a pulp and paper firm, would become a Power Corp. subsidiary.

The Power Corp. statement said:

"For each common share of Consolidated-Bathurst now held the shareholders of that company will be offered 2½ common shares of Power Corp.

"This offer is to become binding on receipt of not less than 2,300,000 common shares of Consolidated-Bathurst."

Power Corp., a conglomerate which already owns 975,000 of about 6,000,000 outstanding shares in the firm, said it reserves the right to accept any lesser number of shares tendered.

It said the formal offer will be made by the end of April.

The incident was described by David Lewis (NDP—York South) as "sheer illegal kidnapping" when he raised it in the Commons last month.

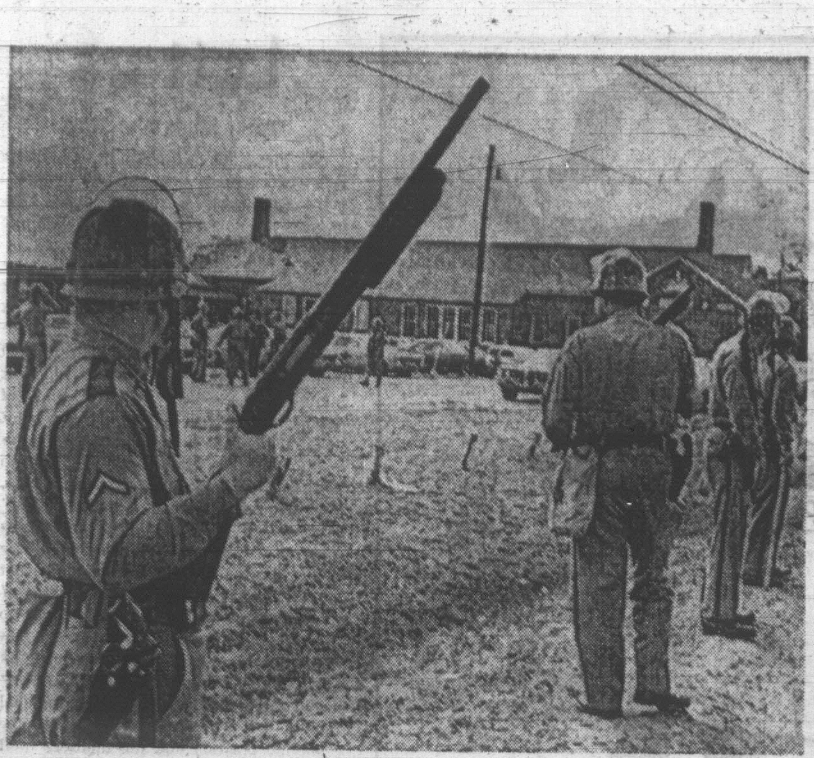
FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN



RIOT POLICE of the South Carolina Highway Patrol seal off school campus in small farming community of Lamar today in aftermath of violence by opponents of racial integration. About 100 white adults, some armed with axe handles, chains and bricks, overturned two buses Tuesday soon after 32 Negro children left the vehicles. Several children were injured by objects thrown at them before the crowd was dispersed with tear gas. (AP Wirephoto).

Schools Show Their Stuff

Shoppers who happened to wander through the Woodwards pantyhose section today might have gotten a look at a miniature elementary classroom in operation.

Classroom demonstrations in the Mayfair and Hillside shopping centres have been organized by the Greater Victoria School Board as a major activity during Education Week.

Tuesday year one pupils from Hampton, James Bay and Macaulay elementaries occupied desks near the Woodwards food floor. There was a repeat of the program today.

Thursday at the same spot, year one and two pupils from Blanshard under teacher Miss B. J. Ward will do varied learning activities at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2 p.m.

HILLSIDE MALL

At the Hillside mall today year seven students from Fairburn and year five from Shelbourne put on demonstrations.

Thursday at 11 a.m, C. J. Morley from Shelbourne will take a year five math class.

At 1 p.m. Mrs. P. Mitchell of Frank Hobbs will take a year four language arts class.

And at 2 p.m. Bryan Mee of Fairburn will take a year seven social studies class.

The Greater Victoria board is also sponsoring bus tours of district schools this week for aldermen and other community leaders.

There were two tours today: one to Dean Heights junior occupational, Margaret Jenkins Elementary and Oak Bay Junior; the other to Sir James Douglas, Central Junior and Mount Douglas.

THURSDAY TOURS

Thursday buses will leave school board headquarters at 9:30 a.m. The first tour will visit Victoria West, Craigflower and Shoreline Junior, while the second will take in Marigold, Colquitz and Mount View.

In the Sooke school district this week all elementary schools are holding combined open house and science fairs for the benefit of parents.

In the Saanich Peninsula district elementary schools are also running open house, while junior secondary schools have displayes in various municipal halls.

Claremont Senior has a display in the foyer of the Saanich municipal hall of work by a construction two class.

Teak dining room chairs and cedar garden pots were produced using assembly-line techniques.

There are also samples of work in art, home economics and drafting.

Region May Get Bear Hill Park

Saanich council will be asked to transfer the 56-acre Bear Hill park to the Capital Regional District.

The recommendation was made Tuesday night by the municipal finance committee. Bear Hill, just north of Elk Lake, would thus join the Elk-Beaver Lakes regional park.

No price was mentioned in the recommendation, but the motion did say the transfer would be on the understanding that Bear Hill be physically linked with Elk-Beaver property "in due course." Access between the two at present is by a 30-foot right of way.

Earlier, committee chairman Ald. Foster Isherwood had suggested a token payment by the regional district, perhaps 10 per cent of the estimated $70,000 market value if Bear Hill was in private rather than municipal hands.

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe, in a report, pointed out that the regional district purchased Elk-Beaver Lake park from Victoria city for $250,000 several years ago.

In addition, maintenance costs which had been split between the city and Saanich were undertaken by Saanich alone with an agreement it would spend a minimum of $24,000 a year for 10 years.

Isherwood said the $250,000 price was roughly 10 per cent of the appraised value.

Ald Leslie Passmore, one of three Saanich directors on the regional district board, said he has "no doubt" the region will eventually acquire land to link Bear Hill and Elk-Beaver

He also said the district expects later this year to gain the necessary authority to do maintenance work in its growing number of parks. At present, it is restricted to purchase of regional (rather than local) parks.

Operation Ah-Sa To Be Repeated

The B.C. fish and wildlife branch plans to launch another operation Ah-sa this summer.

Ah-sa is the Indian name for sea otter which disappeared from B.C. waters during the last century because of excessive exploitation for its valuable fur.

Last summer 30 sea otters were trapped in Alaska and released near Bunsby Island, 220 miles northwest of Victoria, off the Island's west coast.

And now Alaska, which owns a herd of about 50,000, has agreed to provide B.C. with more animals—about 25, according to James Hatter, director of the wildlife branch.

"We haven't yet decided how to bring the animals down here," he said. "Last year we transported them by airliner. We may do the same this summer."

He also said there was a possibility of a federal fisheries vessel taking on the otters.

Hatter said Washington State which also re-introduced sea otters in its waters last year, and Oregon, planned to participate in the project.

It had not yet been decided where to release the B.C. herd, he said.

How is Ah-sa doing at Bunsby Island?

"The latest report indicates they are doing well," he said. "We have not taken a count, but they should now be starting to increase."

Hatter said he believes some otters, released off the Washington coast last summer, have moved into B.C. waters.

One otter, believed to have come from Washington, was spotted at the Race Rock lighthouse last fall.

$25,000 Returned

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan has told his British publisher he has no time to write a history of the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and returned a $25,000 advance, the newspaper Yediot Haronot reports. Dayan wrote a best-seller of the 1956 Suez war when he was Israel's chief of staff.

Ney Urges Pulp Mill Pooling

NANAIMO — Mayor Frank Ney said today it might be in the interest of both the CPR and MacMillan Bloedel Co. Ltd. to pool their pulp production resources rather than establish a new mill on the Island.

The CPR is now considering establishing a pulp mill on the Island.

"Pollution is a big problem today and it might be in the economic interest of both companies to get together on the production of pulp," he said.

"I'm only guessing," he said, "But I feel any CPR economic feasibility study would look into union of pulp facilities with an established company, such as MacMillan Bloedel."

He said that if the companies do not pool pulp production facilities, the CPR will establish a mill either at Union Bay or Sooke.

"But I wouldn't rule out a marriage between the CPR and MacMillan Bloedel," he said.

If this took place, he said, it would not be necessary for the CPR to seek out a river system for the pulp mill's water supply.

Has Spring Come And Gone?

Spring came to Victoria in February but it may be gone in March.

February was warmer, drier, sunnier and less windy than normal, according to statistice released today by the Gonzales Observatory.

But the outlook for March for this area according to U.S. Weather Bureau, is for be low-normal temperatures and above-normal precipitation.

It was the fourth sunniest February on record for Victoria, with 134.4 hours of sunshine—37.7 more than usual.

It was the seventh warmest February with a mean temperature of 45.3 degrees, 3.9 degrees above normal.

A high temperature record was set for Feb. 25 when the thermoteter rose to 56.2 degrees, and the minimum temperature of 35 degrees on Feb. 5 was the fourth highest on record.

It rained on nine days during the month for a total of 1.46 inches, down six days and 1.54 inches for the norm. Snowfall was .1 inch, down 2.2.

Divorce Aid Plan Rejected

A Liberal member of the opposition Tuesday night urged the government to help individuals and couples seeking low-cost divorce without attorney.

Speaking in debate on estimates for the attorney-general's department, Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver-Seymour) said the department "could go a long way in assisting these people perhaps with a simple mimeographed fact sheet made available in courthouses."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson replied that "the farthest we can go in divorce at present is to have court registry staff assist these people with information."

Too Big a Club

THE SO-CALLED HATE BILL of the federal government has aroused debate across Canada and there is a large body of opinion—some of it within the Liberal government—which is against federal action in this field. Among its provisions, the bill would make it a criminal offence to stir up hatred against a class or group, or to urge mass destruction of groups within the nation.

These are worthy enough restraints and in a stark black-and-white situation it would be difficult to argue against them. But the situation in this respect is rarely simple; the existence of grey areas, of necessary exceptions to the rule, of outright injustice to individuals, would be continually present. Above all, the proposed law could impose restrictions on freedom of speech, of private and public discussion, of the exchange of ideas, which would fit poorly into the Canadian scene.

That is not to champion any right to incite hatred or to urge genocide, but it is to protect the right to open discussion which could be removed by some provisions of the bill. The fact that prosecutions under the legislation would require the prior permission of the minister of justice would be no positive guarantee against misuse of the law, and it would place a very heavy burden on that official. The fact that such a provision is included is itself recognition that the measure would have to be applied with great discrimination and selective judgment— and that implies that misuse would be a constant threat to be guarded against.

In any event, as the Globe and Mail of Toronto points out, the public acceptance of incitement to hatred changes with the times, and statements which might be acceptable during one period could become illegal, and punishable under the bill, during another. For instance, words written about the Japanese during the heat of the war would be viewed far differently today and could constitute an infringement of the act. Republication of Hitler's Mein Kampf, with its fulminations against the Jews would possibly be open to prosecution, yet the book itself is interesting and valuable as an example of the insanity of the Hitlerian era.

A defence against the legislation could be established on three grounds: if the comments were relevant to a subject of public interest; if discussion was for the public benefit; and if the accused person believed on reasonable grounds that the statements were true. There would be many cases in which it would be difficult to establish all three of these exceptions and yet the accused person might still have a morally defensible case.

The fact is that laws cannot serve as a substitute for public morality and decency. Legal prohibitions are no guarantee that the action in question will cease. The only real defence against incitement to racial, religious or other group hatred, or against arguments for genocide or persecution, resides in the common sense of the people as a whole, in their refusal to be carried away by bigots and hate-mongers. A law will not take the place of good sense and good will among the public, nor can it ensure that these qualities become widespread.

The dangers of such legislation could be so great that only extreme conditions would merit its passage, on a lesser-of-two-evils basis. Canada is fortunate that in general the public tone is moderate and forbearing. It would be better to postpone the legislation indefinitely—to enact it only as a last resort against an intolerable breakdown of public decency.

Setbacks for U.S. Racial Integration

RECENT AMENDMENTS TO the United States Education Appropriation Bill coupled with the latest Supreme Court appointment are the despair of those persons who have labored since 1954 to make the United States a racially integrated society. In essence, a new Southern amendment removes the distinction between Southern segregation resulting from racist laws and Northern segregation that has developed because of housing patterns.

On the surface the new amendment changes an apparently hypocritical imbalance between North and South. But looking back to the U.S. 1964 Civil Rights Act corrects the first impression. That act called for massive busing to end "de jure" or legislative segregation in the South, while it expressly forbids Northern busing to end "de facto" segregation. Under the new amendment, however, the North will be forced by law to transport children to schools in order to right what is essentially a social situation. Southern strategy is this: Northern whites will find the busing stipulation uninviting, thus giving sympathy and moral support to southern whites who resist the busing orders.

If the amendment, which has passed the Senate, goes through the House of Representatives and a House-Senate conference, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will not have the manpower to police busing infractions in both North and South. Added to that, many of the liberal members of the Education Department feel their careers are in eclipse in the Nixon administration's shadow. One leading liberal has already been fired.

Mr. Peterson Speaks for B.C.

THE ALL-PARTY, DESK-thumping endorsement given to Attorney-General Peterson's strong stand on the beating administered to B.C. Lands Director Walter Redel by Quebec plain-clothes policemen seems to reflect the general public attitude about this case. Mr. Peterson has wisely pointed out that the incident will not influence relations between the two provinces at the official level, but his words are emphatic enough to inform provincial authorities in Quebec that the British Columbia government is not dismissing the affair lightly.

This is a proper position for the Attorney-General to take. Mr. Redel was in Quebec not as a private citizen on tour—though even as such he should have enjoyed the protection, not the brutality, of Quebec police. He was in that city as British Columbia representative at a special conference of government people.

There should be no acceptance of efforts to fob off this incident with a regretful shrug from the officials responsible for Quebec police. The information given to Mr. Peterson has not been satisfactory but it has been sufficient for him to reach the conclusion that the police exceeded their rights and duties and that Mr. Redel has a clear case for compensation.

The statement of Quebec's minister of justice, Mr. Remi Paul, that his department has no intention of offering Mr. Redel compensation, is unfortunate. An individual's rights are involved and this would have been a good opportunity for an ameliorative and unifying gesture.

FROM WASHINGTON

More Canadian Oil for the U.S. Market

THE U.S. is now officially looking to northern Canada as well as Alaska for future supplies of oil (and gas.) What had been well known unofficially was formalized in the recently-released report by Mr. Nixon's task force investigating U.S. oil policy. In line with the thinking of the majority of the members, the president gave the go-ahead for negotiations on an alignment of energy policies, under which the U.S. would sharply increase imports of Canadian petroleum products.

Traynor

Such is the touchiness of the subject, it is well to have clearly in mind precisely why the U.S. is entering upon this course. It is not simply a case of anticipating future needs and matching them against well-known and newly-emerging Canadian reserves.

Under the present system, high international production is maintained through high prices linked to quotas on cheaper foreign oil imports. This was designed to prevent more than marginal reliance on foreign sources, on the grounds that access to these might be denied during an emergency. The task force set out to re-examine this assumption, in the light of rising pressure for more imports. One cause of this pressure is a desire for lower consumer prices, the other is the increasing over-all demand for petroleum. (Reflected in the fact that imports from Canada have been running more than one-third higher than allowed under bilateral, quota arrangements.)

The task force more than re-affirms doubts about the security of sources in the Eastern hemisphere, notably the Middle East. The majority recommends that Eastern imports be subject to an absolute limit of 10 per cent of total U.S. consumption, and it is the clear aim of the authors that all but a fraction of the import market be served by Western hemisphere sources over the long term.

Variable Allocations

Under different price and control variations, there emerge variants in which imports account for larger percentages of consumption and in which the respective Canadian and Latin American allocations rise and fall. Each of these is examined as to security in the event of protracted conventional warfare in the year 1980. An important aspect of this is the determination of reserves which could readily be brought into emergency production by that time.

The conclusion is that, on the basis of present estimates of northern reserves, North America could readily recover from denial of imports running as high as 42 per cent of consumption. It is estimated that replacement would fill the gap to the extent of 92 per cent of consumption at the estimated 1980 level.

Liberalizing Imports

This puts the security question in a whole new light, or so the task force implies. Within the framework of a U.S.-Canadian agreement formalizing these security considerations, it would be possible to greatly liberalize imports, not only from Canada but also from other areas of the hemisphere.

The projection in which imports account for 42 per cent of consumption in 1980 involves imports from Canada of 3 million barrels a day, as compared with 500 thousand and 800 thousand barrels at present. Projected imports from Latin America would run between 3.5 million at present. Petroleum prices within the U.S. would be substantially lower than at present; in accordance with the increased input of lower-cost foreign oil.

EDMONTON APARTMENT CHEATING

By JAMES H. GRAY

A Few Interior Walls for Illegal Suites

THERE'S nothing new under the sun? Look at what has been happening on the construction front here when the building inspectors have been looking the other way. Bachelor apartments turn overnight into one-bedroom apartments, two bedrooms become three and 10-suite apartments become 12-suite apartments. The contractors have simply been adding extra walls uncalled for on the blue prints.

Gray

All the prairie cities have building codes and zoning laws which control room sizes and area densities. Without the density laws it would not be long before apartment buildings became newly built slums. To assure compliance with zoning density laws, builders have to file their plans to get building permits.

Blueprints Overlooked

As the buildings go up, city inspectors check regularly to see that workmanship in the plumbing, heating and wiring trades conform to city bylaws. Unhappily, Edmonton inspectors have been so busy checking construction quality that no attention has been paid to checking on the blue-prints.

The result has been the shattering discovery that probably half the construction of housing in apartments in recent years violates the density regulations. In a word, the contractors have turned out to be wholesale cheaters.

Revelation

Discovery of the cheating came following an inquiry by Alderman Una Evans about room sizes and congestion in some new apartments. The city checked 70 projects under construction and found that 35 of them were cheating the regulations. On that basis, it is assumed that half the new projects have been doing likewise.

Some of the violations are horrendous. In one project it was discovered that the contractor had added no less than 56 dwelling units more than the density regulations permitted. Another was caught adding seven suites to a small apartment.

The result of the discovery of wholesale cheating has set off the usual kerfuffle. The contractors caught with egg on their faces have lamely complained that the Edmonton code is far too strict and they were only doing what was reasonable. While it revealed holes in the city inspection procedures that the contractors were driving trucks through, it also brought out that the city suffers from a fatal deficiency in housing inspectors.

The city owns but a single inspector who is charged specifically with checking zoning compliance. But he is run ragged chasing people who build suites in basements in single family areas. The other inspectors are rushed to keep up with quality inspections and have no time for checking on square footage of floor space, etc.

Spectacular Violations

Now and then an inspector checking plumbing or wiring may encounter something that requires checking work against blue prints. That has turned up some spectacular violations. When that happens the contractor is forced to tear out a lot of roughed-in plumbing and wiring. That process will wipe out most of his profit on the job.

Large scale violations of density rules can mess up the planning of ancillary services. Thus a limit is placed on the number of children in certain age groups because of available room in the neighborhood schools. When developers sneaked in a couple of dozen extra suites and rented them to families with children, there was a foul-up in school availability. In this particular case, 20 families have been given eviction notices and must find other accommodation in areas where there is school space.

Amending Code

Edmonton is now amending its building code to provide for fines of $500 for each offence. But it is conceded that violation has been so general that only a few of the violators will be caught. It is hoped that the penalties in fines and added costs of tearing things out will prove a deterrant to the balance of the contracting fraternity.

Hope is not really much protection against the lure of fat profits from cheating, as recent discoveries have indicated. The alternative to hoping for the best is to hire an army of new inspectors and arm them with all the authority they need. But such an army of enforcers would run the cost to the taxpayers to unprecedented heights. Edmonton, at the moment, is opting for hope, somewhat forlornly.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 4, 1910:

The total area sown to the four principal grains in the province of Saskatchewan last year was 6,888,100 acres as compared with 5,970,841 in 1908, an increase of a little more than 15 per cent. The increase in wheat acreage was a little more than 10 per cent. The department figures show that the farmers received aid in 1909 from 12,500 harvesters brought from Eastern Canada.

Letters

'Thou Shalt Not Kill'

We speak on behalf of the Christian Reformed Ladies' Society, and undoubtedly thousands of others when we express not only our opinion but also our deepest convictions.

Whatever these "reformers" may believe to the contrary, abortion for social rather than medical reasons is murder. God alone created life and he commands men everywhere to respect and protect the sanctity of innocent human life, which includes that of defenseless unborn babies. Every baby in the womb has a God-given right to be born. Once the human embryo, though not responsible for its own conception, begins to develop it has a right to "life." Termination of this life constitutes murder and is a direct violation of the great commandment "Thou shalt not kill." (Exodus 20:13). The advocates of relaxation of existing laws, which go back to the 4th and 5th centuries, now wish to return to the barbaric customs of Ancient Rome and Greece. They would make social rather than medical factors e.g. the size of the family, the economic position and the mothers total environment, actual or reasonably foreseeable, "the decisive criterion" of whether or not a pregnancy should be terminated. Such social and economic advantages are clearly selfish and presuppose a materialistic view of life incompatible to a Christian philosophy of life. — (Mrs.) Alice Hielema, (Mrs.) Lynn Stellingwerff, and (Mrs.) Margaret Kuyvenhoven.

Why They Desert

Recently, the RCMP picked up three American deserters in B.C. It is said that, contrary to Canadian law, they returned the men to U.S. authorities. The report says one escaped. The other two were put in a military stockade.

We know that some months ago a couple of escapees, interviewed on CBC, described the murder of two of their comrades by guards. (Doubters may read A Cage for the Innocents, Atlantic Monthly, Jan., '68—in the library here—and-or A Night at Santa Rita, Ramparts, August, '69.

It must be that the RCMP men don't know what's causing the thousands of U.S. desertions.

Somehow the conscripted U.S.-paid Southern troops have never fought well, while the Viet Cong, at first with only the arms they could capture from their enemy, without a navy or air force, at least as late as '67 without artillery, have set a new record in bravery.

At last Washington had to come out in the open—and she has done so magnificently—with all that wealth and science can give: There are the search-and-destroy missions (Since the story of the My Lai One broke, renamed "pacification"); a tonnage of bombs dropped greater than the total that fell on all the Axis powers during all of the Second World War; there's the tear gas that kills; the hundreds of thousands of acres ruined by defoliants which not only destroy the food but poison the drinking water with resultant widespread and increasing deformed births like thalidomides. There's the whole unlimited, unending, superlative, matchless genocidal effort.

And—thank God for the hope of humanity — there are the deserters.—Frances Wilcox.

Taxes and Rents

I am a widow, living on a fixed income. If rental apartments and houses must pay more taxes due to the capital gains taxes on them and depreciation allowances lessened under the proposals in the White Paper, then surely rents already too high will have to be raised, to pay these taxes.

I am happy about the lessening of the tax on lower incomes, but I don't think it will help me if rents go up, as they surely will, and if prices rise due to the inflationary push of millions of dollars of new tax.

Surely our members should look into this more carefully. The lower income group has been hurt enough — Mrs. H. Woods, 961 Haliburton Road.

Trip to Norway

A local regiment, and equipment, flew to Norway for winter exercises, I assume. This is the second time around.

Have we not very similar conditions right here in the Canadian North? Surely the use of our Arctic coast and Arctic islands for this purpose would not be construed as an unfriendly act? It is ours to use.

Apart from anything that could be gained by transferring this operation to Canada's North, there might be as well the side effect of helping the government in its battle to keep down costs.—Pro Bono.

Harassment

Concerning the recent article in the Times about the controversial new company offering legal aid to persons facing drug charges, I would like to make a statement that I am no longer involved with that organization.

Due to public harassment and communications of an obscene nature to myself, family and friends, I have been forced to terminate my involvement with that company.—Gordon Callow.

The Unborn

I am sorry for not having written sooner to commend you for publishing in your February 7 issue Dolores Callaghan's fine letter on abortion. May I say that here is a statement on the sacred nature of human life with which we all ought to be in complete agreement.

The Church tells us that God creates the human soul at the moment of conception. Hence, it is more than refreshing, it is uplifting, to read as in Miss Callaghan's letter, a defence of the life of the unborn child. — Robin Terry, 523 Dallas Road.

Alaska Eskimo in an Alien Land

By ROGER MILLS
The Listener

The American Eskimo is in a poor way. The depths of his despair are reached every night on Fourth Avenue in Anchorage, Alaska.

He lurches from bar to bar until he collapses in the gutter. It's the cue for pursed lips from the white Americans: the Eskimo is known to be feckless and lazy, and the Anchorites are shamed of Fourth Avenue.

Theirs is a clean, modern city in a debutante State teetering on the edge of success. There is oil in the Arctic North. The September land-lease sales of oil-rich tundra brought the State $900 million.

There will be more land sales, yielding equivalent sums. Alaska has become an oil sheikhdom.

For Alaskans these are stirring times. But the Eskimo in the Anchorage gutter hardly sees the situation in this light.

He is married with five children. He has worked sporadically in a lumber mill. He has invested his last few dollars to job-hunt in Anchorage.

On arrival he seeks consolation in the bars as a refuge from a bureaucracy crueller than anything invented by Kafka. He does not belong to a union, he is screened out of State jobs by State educational standards, and out of federal jobs by federal standards.

In Anchorage you can now buy car stickers that read 'Eskimo Power.' As if to mock the brave words, there was a forlorn demonstration outside the recent land sales.

The Eskimos claim that the land for sale is theirs by right of previous long-standing ownership: that when the U.S. Administration paid the Russians $7.2 million for Alaska in 1867, the political hegemony was purchased, not the freehold of the land.

Swarming with Bailiffs

They claim that while the barren tundra was useless to the white man, he was content to let the Eskimo roam over it. But after the discovery of the oil, the white man's law could show that the Eskimo was a squatter.

Not that the Arctic is swarming with oil company bailiffs evicting Eskimos from their homesteads. The land is deceptively barren and apparently deserted. There are no Eskimo settlements as such within 100 miles.

But the Eskimo is a nomad: He follows the migrations of birds and beasts. The sale of these leases (with presumably more sales to follow as the scale of the oil strike becomes known) excludes him from a hunting ground rich in game at certain times of the year.

Much of that game now finds its way into the stockpots of the drilling camps. On the walls are notices encouraging the men to apply for game licences. While I was at Sagwon the whole camp lived on home-killed caribou.

If this is bearable, what is not are the large fortunes that non-Eskimo Alaskans have made out of the oil boom. If not the freeholder de jure, the Eskimo regards himself as the owner de facto.

Thus the apparently unjust situation has arisen where a clever speculator (inevitably a white American) who has bought a few thousand acres of Arctic tundra at a landlease sale for a risible sum, can sell the lease to an oil company for millions, while the Eskimo, who has lived on and off that land, sinks into a more abject and helpless poverty.

Begin to Flex Muscles

Last year two Fairbanks men became millionaires in this way. They were Tom Miklautsch, a pharmacist, and Cliff Burglin, a supplier of office equipment.

But there are signs of a little muscle-flexing among the Eskimos. The Constitution makes education compulsory. While most Eskimo children never make the grade because their first years at school are taken up in learning English, a small Eskimo intelligentsia is forming at the University of Alaska.

If it can be persuaded to return north to help its people — a big 'if' — the result could be dramatic. But even as it is, the Eskimos have organized themselves into 12 districts, with delegates and a headquarters in Anchorage presided over by Emil Notti, who has an electronics degree from San Francisco.

His ultimate aim is Eskimo self-determination: the immediate aim to wring some compensation from the State for loss of land. The Eskimos are asking for a lump sum of $500 million, an Eskimo reserve of 40 million acres, and a perpetual 2 per cent royalty on oil production. Notti's agency has appealed four times to the Senate in the last two years without success.

It would be unfair in all this to represent the oil companies as irresponsible exploiters. They are nothing of the kind. Indeed, the very politics of the situation demand that they behave and are seen to behave.

Try to Placate Concern

Pressures from the Wilderness Society and the Sierra Club—which has seen so much debauching of the land in the southern 48 States—has held up vital decisions on the pipe-line right-of-way.

In the light of the concern felt in Washington, the oil companies, and the State of Alaska government, which of course stands to gain enormously from the oil discovery, have gone to great pains to placate concern felt in the south.

But years of exploitation by the white man have left the Eskimo suspicious. The oil companies' sudden conversion to conservation could be mere posture striking towards Washington.

When the pipe-line route is agreed, the animal may well revert to type, and in the two areas that affect him personally, he has little to cheer about. His hunting grounds are disappearing—and all but a very few jobs are going to white men.

Barrow is the largest and most sophisticated Eskimo community. Becuase it has a school and a hospital, it is something of a magnet, and more and more fishing villages are being abandoned.

There is electricity and a piped fuel supply from a nearby natural gas well. There is a weekly newspaper, the Tundra Times, and television—videotapes are flown in from Anchorage and transmitted from a local station.

The native hut of peat sods has given way to the prefabricated shack. The motor-sledge has made the husky redundant, thus relieving the Eskimo of the task of providing meat all the year around.

Barrow Like Shanty Town

For all this Barrow has paid a price. When the Eskimo was a nomad, he dropped his waste over a wide area. In the Arctic nothing decomposes very quickly, and permafrost hinders burial.

In permanent settlements, there is a disposal problem. Barrow looks like a shanty town through which a retreating army has fled in haste. It is strewn with garbage. Sewage in oil drums is dumped on the edge of a nearby lake.

Adults are hardly to be seen on the streets of Barrow by day, and it is a strange sensation to walk about a town seemingly populated by the very young.

The adults are indoors drunk, sleeping off hangovers, or sprawling over the floors and tables of the cafes, shouting or murmuring in slurred Inupiat.

It is a dreadful picture of a culture undermined by the white man, living in a spiritual vacuum, too hopelessly corrupted to return to the simple life, and too poor to profit from anything other than the worst in the white man's culture.

Ironically, Barrow is a 'dry' town. But nothing prevents orders being placed in Fairbanks, 500 miles away. The Town Magistrate, Sadie Neokuk, recently conducted a survey from airline freight bills. She discovered that 7,000 pounds of liquor—cheap whisky and brandy—come into Barrow each week.

The effect on the children is disastrous. The Council have tried to introduce a system of curfews—9:30 p.m. on schooldays, 10:30 p.m. at weekends—but without the cooperation of parents it is unenforceable.

At best, the children run wild, forming gangs that centre around the Polar Bear Cinema (an amusement hall run by white men); at worst, they are literally starving, as the dole money goes on booze. Juvenile crime is rampant, and last year some teenagers began 'glue-sniffing' — inhaling the vapour of epoxy-resin through polythene bags. Drugs had arrived.

The city fathers have decided to make the best of a bad job. Since so much liquor was coming in anyway, it was felt that the town might as well profit from its downfall, rather than subsidize the merchants of Fairbanks. By 155 to 139 votes, Barrow voted 'wet.'

Experiments in other Eskimo towns are not a happy augury. The introduction of liquor to Kotzebue coincided with a series of brawl-murders, and Kotzebue went 'dry' again.

A guilty conscience has prodded the white man to disburse a generous dole, family allowances, free medical treatment and free education.

If anything, this has made the situation worse. It has blunted the Eskimo's traditional skills, and reduced him to a drone, dependent on the white man's charity.

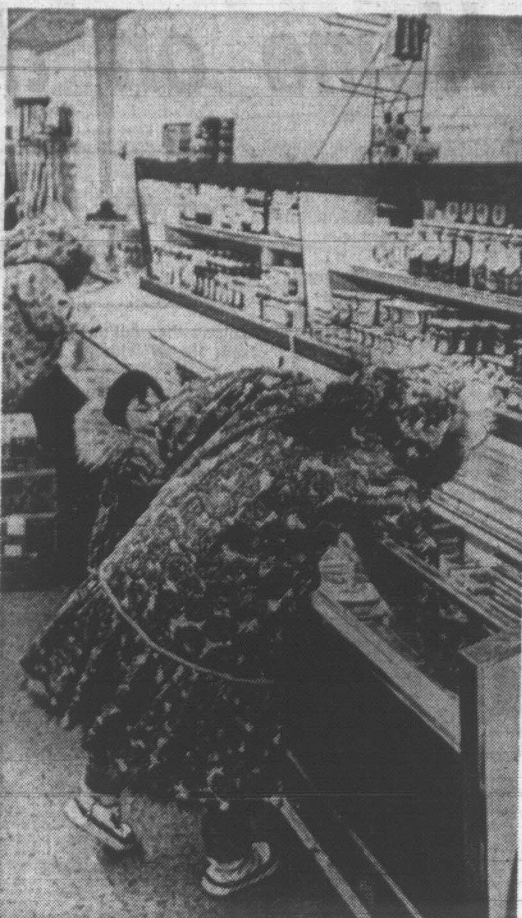
Even the form of education he receives has been a mixed blessing. He leaves school identifying neither with his Eskimo culture nor with his new American gloss. At school he is not taught about himself in any real sense.

Give Them Real Work

At Barrow, the powerful missions and a few rich whaling families must not be antagonized. The school, whatever it may wish, cannot tell the truth about the crimes of the early whalers or the catastrophic blunders of the early missionaries that started the Eskimo on his decline.

A part-answer to the mess is to provide the Eskimo with real work, and with the oil boom just bursting, the work is there.

The pantomime of souped-up tambourine-beating and blanket-tossing that the Eskimos dutifully perform for tourists on the Grand Tour could then stop. Real work on the oil rigs would at least restore their self-respect—even if their sense of identity is totally lost.



REACHING into an artificial deep-freeze for her food, this Eskimo housewife in Barrow, Alaska, is caught in the wrenching change from one culture to another.

Polywater: New Mystery Matter of Science

By STUART AUERBACH

Everybody knows about water.

It boils at 100 degrees centigrade, freezes at zero. It covers about three-fourths of the earth's surface and the human body is 90 per cent water. Without water, there would be no life on earth.

Just about the first chemical formula children learn is for water — H2O.

Now science has discovered a new H2O — a substance named polywater that has the same chemical formula but looks, acts and feels like an entirely different substance.

Scientists don't know much about this new type of water — only about a whisky jigger full of it has been made in labs scattered around the world.

They do know, however, that it is very different from common water. It doesn't freeze, but solidifies into a glass-like substance — not ice — at about 40 degrees below zero. In its solid state, it expands much less than water.

No one knows its boiling point — but it is greater than 500 degrees centigrade. It is almost twice as dense as water — looking, says Dr. Ellis R. Lippincott of the University of Maryland, like glycerin or droplets of baby oil. You can poke a hole in it with a thin wire.

Most startling, its infrared spectrum — the unique linear fingerprint that every chemical compound shows when infrared light passes through it — differs from any known substance.

This was determined when the spectrum from polywater was compared by computer with the known spectra from 100,000 other compounds.

Scientists think they know what makes the H2O of ordinary water different from the H2O of polywater.

It is the molecular structure of the compound and the bonds that hold the hydrogen and oxygen together. These bonds never have been seen before in hydrogen-oxygen compounds.

They were suggested as long ago as the 1920s by Maurice Huggins, a pioneer researcher in hydrogen bonds.

The bonds that hold the hydrogen and oxygen together in ordinary water, Lippincott said in an interview in his Maryland lab, are weak. The hydrogen is also close to the oxygen.

In polywater, however, the bonds are much stronger. This is what causes its unusual properties and leads to its name of polywater, or a polymer of water. A polymer is a long chain of giant molecules.

Research on polywater has been difficult. Scientists have been unable to make it in large amounts and up, to now, have concentrated in proving that it indeed was a new form of H2O worthy of study.

Actually, the technique for making polywater is simple and doesn't require great, complicated apparatus. Some chemists have quipped that it could be made in someone's basement.

The problem, though, is making polywater that is free from impurities—and that would be impossible in the basement.

The other pressing problem is making it in large quantities. For instance, Lippincott estimates that only a gram or two have been made at the University of Maryland—and never at the same time.

Polywater presently has to be made in tiny tubes. The first were capillaries about the thickness of a thread. Now, though, Maryland scientists use tubes as thick as a tenth of an inch.

Although polywater is supposed to be easy to store, it doesn't always work out that way. It tends to "creep" away up the walls of a tube and out the open end. Many a researcher has found his polywater gone with a tiny layer of film on the workbench its only remnant.

Lippincott says the University of Maryland scientists have lost about half the polywater they have ever made.

Polywater is made by condensing water vapor in quartz tubes. These tubes are suspended over distilled water in a sealed vacuum for about 18 hours. At the end of that time, the liquid in the tube generally changes to polywater.

Scientists really don't know what causes the change. One explanation is that it may be due to a catalytic reaction between the surface of the tube and the vapor.

Not everyone agrees that polywater is really something different. Some scientists believe that the differences are really due to impurities picked up in the tubing.

Dr. Willard D. Bascom of the naval research laboratories in Washington, for example, believe polywater is really a silicone solution made from the corrosive action of small amounts of water on the surface of the tube.

But Lippincott says his spectragraphs have shown no traces of silicone in the polywater. He and his colleagues insist they spent most of their time searching out impurities.

Lippincott himself started his research with polywater as a scoffer. In 1968, Dr. L. J. Bellamy of the British ministry of technology asked him to analyse polywater, which at that time was known as either "offspring" or "anomalous" water.

"In the early stages," Lippincott recalls, "we didn't believe in it, but we thought we should take a look. He (Bellamy) made the samples and we'd look at them.

"At first we didn't believe it, but when we got the signal on the infrared (the distinctive fingerprints that differed from those of common water) we knew we had something."

The history of polywater is a fascinating example of the vagaries of scientific research.

In the 1920s, a Johns Hopkins University chemistry professor named Walter A. Patrick noted that the vapor pressure of water in capillary tubes didn't act the way it was supposed to.

One of his students, J. L. Shereshefsky, wrote his doctoral thesis on this phenomenon in 1928, but couldn't explain it. Lippincott says the scientific tools just weren't available then.

In 1961, an obscure chemistry student in the hinterlands of Russia, N. N. Fedyakin, made polywater for the first time. He found that a different substance, which he called "offspring water," collected at the ends of tiny tubes after he changed water vapor to a liquid.

Boris V. Deryagin, a Russian scientific giant, brought Fedyakin to Moscow to continue his work. Deryagin published his first studies on "modified" or "anomalous" water in 1962, but it was greeted with skepticism.

The first publication of American experimental research—by the University of Maryland-National Bureau of Standards team—appeared last June in Science magazine. Hardly a month goes by without an article appearing in some scientific journal about polywater.

Now that they have made polywater in laboratories, scientists wonder if—and where—it appears in nature.

any, but most scientists are any. but most scientists are sure it exists. Lippincott, for instance, speculates on the basis of "indirect evidence" that polywater is responsible for the plastic quality of clay.

Biologists are looking toward polywater to explain many perplexing questions of nature. For example, it may be in the "bound water" that is credited with keeping winter wheat seeds from freezing in the cold ground and allowing hibernating insects to survive the bitter cold of winter.

The climbing qualities of polywater may tell botanists how liquids are pumped through capillary action to the top branches of giant redwood trees.

It's easy for brainstormers to figure practical uses for polywater—once scientists learn to make it in any quantity.

These proposed uses range from desalting water, anti-freeze compounds or surface treatments for metals to prevent corrosion. Because its boiling point is so high, it could serve as a fluid for high temperature work.

It also opens up an intriguing area of research because of its unique hydrogen-oxygen bonds.

Lippincott and his team are looking for other compounds with these newly-discovered bonds. So far, they have found some alcohols and organic acids with the new bonds.

Over-Care and the Trend to the Knife

The MEDICAL POST

How much of the surgery done on this continent is necessary?

When one reads that the number of hysterectomies fell by 75%, appendectomies by 60% and hemorrhoidectomies by 35% when the United Mine Workers introduced a clause into their medical coverage plans requiring specialist consultation before any operation, the question becomes more than academic.

Dr. John P. Bunker, professor of anesthesia, Stanford University school of medicine, did a survey contrasting the surgical practices of the U.S.A. with those of England and Wales.

He found that U.S. surgeons operated nearly twice as often as their colleagues in Britain. No such frequency study has been done in Canada but it would be interesting to have one.

The reason U.S. surgeons operate twice as much as their British colleagues lies in the way the patients reach the surgeon.

In Britain, under the National Health Service, surgeons only see patients who are referred to them either by family doctors or hospitals. The U.S. surgeon also works on a referral system but in addition he may accept patients on his own or he may be a general physician and surgeon. This latter category is dying out but many still undertake the dual role.

Left on his own, without medical consultation, the surgeon naturally leans toward surgery. It is inherent in his special training.

There is a difference in personality between the British and U.S. surgeon. The U.S. surgeon is more aggressive, he appears to hold higher expectations from surgery. On the other hand, the British surgeon is more modest in his expectations.

Much is to be said for this appraisal of the attitudes toward surgery in the two countries but it is not altogether accurate.

Much of the difference hinges not on eagerness of the U.S. surgeon to take up the knife nor on the reluctance of his British colleague but comes down to a matter of money.

The British physician may be more conservative in his approach to surgery but he also knows surgery is expensive and the money for it is hard to come by.

The U.S. surgeon knows that most of his patients can afford surgery that is often not necessary but desirable.

As the costs of our medical care increase, the question of over-care is going to come up more frequently.

Dr. Bunker's survey will have served its purpose if it makes the surgeons consider their own criterion for surgery and to disprove Parkinson's Law for surgeons: "Patient admissions for surgery expand to fill beds, operating suites and the surgeon's time."

Home on the Sea for Tax-Plagued Landlubbers?

at the boat show with PAT DUFOUR

If Vancouver's fifth annual boat show is any indication, B.C. waters will soon become as congested as downtown city streets at rush hours.

And, eventually, unless some long-range planning is done, there'll be almost as big a "parking" problem on the marine scene.

There has been criticism in the past that the show was shy on boats, leaning too heavily toward trailers, campers and other sports equipment.

They're still there in quantity this year — but so are the boats, offering a choice from modest-priced kayaks and canoes to luxurious power cruisers that will pry you lose from $50,000 with no trouble at all.

Boat manufacturers, like their less prolific competition, car manufacturers, have used modern technology to the utmost in their bid for the market. In the case of boats, fibreglass is the key to success.

It may also lead to the pitfall of complete conformity.

Gone are the days, except for the really rich, when a boat buyer can dream and plan with his favorite ship builder. It's now a case of choosing one off the assembly line, with or without the frills, depending on your finances, and coming up with a color scheme.

As far as color is concerned, we're still ahead of the Americans. Many of the large boat manufacturers in the United States decline to give their clients any privilege of choice.

This week's "assembly line" in the show at the PNE grounds includes many newcomers, especially from Vancouver yards and designers.

One that's bound to make a hit with the water skiers and those who like to have their sea-time at speed looks like a water-borne snowmobile.

This is the Sea Dart, designed by North Vancouver marine architect Frank Carius. Designed to carry two, the Sea Dart can take speeds of more than 40 miles per hour, using outboard motors ranging from 6 to 25 horsepower. She costs $541 plus the price of the motor.

If you're a do-it-yourselfer and would like a yacht but are strapped with a budget of dinghy dimensions another Vancouver company has the solution. Use cement.

Geoff Wellens and John Samson have gone so far as to write a book on how to build your own power cruiser or 45-foot ketch.

The costs are low enough to give the most cautious of men sea fever. Armed with the $9.95 book and about $1,500 you're well on the way to the ketch of your dreams. For about $1,000 in materias and some labor you can skipper your own 36-footer.

The men's company, Samcon Marine Design Enterprises, is also ready to come up with special designs if you choose to be an individualist.

North Vancouver builder Al Nairn has two entries in the show that are bound to catch the attention of race-circuit sailors.

These are the Cal 21 and Cal 29, latest to come off the planning board of American marine architect Bill Lapworth, whose designs have captured more than their fair share of racing laurels.

The Cal 21 is designed with a retractable keel that allows it to be easily transported by trailer "portage." The Cal 29 is roomy, as most of the Cal boats are, but her hull lines give no suggestion of barginess.

Some of the entries from eastern Canada suggest that West Coast yards will have to pare prices if they hope to stay in competition.

Yachtsmen who think nothing of sinking anything from $15,000 to $21,000 in a 29-foot sloop were amazed this week to see the Hughes 29. Fully equipped, with lots of extras, she goes for $13,000 while the stock boat sells for $10,000.

This is a surprising price tag when you figure she's designed by Sparkman and Stephens, whose genius created the America Cup winner Intrepid.

The Hughes 38, fully equipped at $30,000 is another Sparkman and Stephens design. Like the most sophisticated of 12-metre America Cup entries, she comes with a trim-tab and a rudder for more positive steering.

A fleet of runabouts in various sizes are there to choose from, some in colors as dashing as an Eastern bonnet. There's the occasional traditional white hull but, on the whole, colors are bright.

House boats, by the numbers at the show, are going to solve housing problems for many a tax-plagued homeowner. Canadian Leisure Industries Ltd. have chosen the catamaran twin-hull principle that crams a lot of living into a 24½-footer that sleeps five. Because of her twin hulls she can be easily beached which is just as well because Vancouver is in even worse trouble than Victoria when it comes to docking space.

Displayed at the show are plans for a proposed public marina to be built in West Vancouver. It will provide berthing for 300 pleasure craft — still a drop in the bucket when faced with a boat explosion.

One of the show officials told me he'd come west from Toronto because of his love of boating. "But what do you do when there's no place to keep one?"

His answer, and the solution for other would-be boat owners may lie in a boat you can tote on your back.

Such is the Sportspal canoe. She weighs 29½ pounds and although her hull has the birch-like effect of those in which voyageurs opened up our country, modern science and mass production have combined to give her safety features in line with 1970 standards.

Driver Refused Breath Test Because He Was 'Plastered'

A 23-year-old man who told arresting police officers he was driving his friend home because his friend was drunk was fined a total of $525 in court Tuesday for impaired driving, refusing to supply a breath sample when required to do so and driving without a licence.

Marc Rosa, 1125 Fort, pleaded guilty and was also prohibited from driving in Canada for six months.

He was first observed in the driver's seat of a vehicle stopped at the intersection of Yates and Government about 11 p.m., March 2, with a passenger in the car talking to a pedestrian.

Shortly afterwards he was stopped at Fort and Langley for going the wrong way on Fort and was asked to go to the police station.

He refused to take the breathalyzer test saying he was "plastered."

Judge William Ostler fined Rosa $350 for impaired driving, $150 for refusing to take the breathalyzer test and $25 for driving without a licence.

Paul E. Kirby, 25, of 546 Rithet, was fined $200 when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting 68 cents worth of stationery.

He was observed in the Canada Safeway store in James Bay Feb. 23 about 5:55 p.m. when he picked up some envelopes and writing paper, put them in a shoulder bag and left the store without paying for them.

Ostler noted that the value was "trifling" but pointed out the theft was the principle.

John E. Perry, 18, of 780 Wilson, received a suspended sentence and was placed on a one-year probation for breaking and entering and theft.

He broke into the Old England Inn, 429 Lampson, with another youth and stole about $15 in coins.

Ostler said Perry presented a "vexing" case because he hadn't much going for him but with probation the accused could have a better chance at establishing himself.

Steve Field, 55, of 2949 Shakespeare, was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was driving a car Feb. 13 about 11 p.m., hit a parked car on Wildwood and drove away.

The force of the crash drove the parked vehicle into a power pole and demolished it.

Crash Injures Two Crofton Men

NANAIMO — Two Crofton men were injured when the car in which they were riding overturned on the Island Highway near Cassidy airport.

Barry Powers, 28, sustained back injuries and is in good condition in hospital. Driver of the car, Peter Hedstrom, 28, was released after treatment for face cuts.

Police said the accident occurred Monday night when Hedstrom attempted to pass another car and the car went out of control, ran into a ditch and turned over.

They Must Sell It Like They Tell It

LONDON (AP) — The customer demanded his money back when he discovered that the girls in a London nudie movie wore more clothes than the models in come-on photographs in the lobby.

The disappointed cinema-goer lost his complaint under Britain's new Trade Descriptions Act. Authorities ruled the photos part of the permanent theatre decor unrelated to the film being shown.

But thousands of consumers are winning under the law, which makes businessmen tell it and sell it—like it is.

Shoppers brought 38,000 complaints of fraud and sharp practices in the first 12 months of the act. It provides stiff fines and jail terms for vendors whose "unbreakable" products aren't just that, for hoteliers whose premises don't "face the ocean" as advertised, for garage owners whose "24-hour service" shuts down after midnight.

Such groups as the British Consumers' Association are seeking still more legislative reforms.

Consumers began to swing political weight in Britain less than 15 years ago, when revolutions in production and marketing were turning a nation of shopkeepers into a country of supermarkets and department stores. Shoppers had to deal with a bewildering array of new, prepackaged, variously priced and impersonally sold goods.

BEGAN IN GARAGE

The 600,000-member Consumers' Association began publishing comparative product tests from a converted London garage in 1957.

Then came creation of the 12-member Consumer Council, a government-financed agency acting as the consumer lobby at Parliament, and the 1963 Weights and Measures Act, the first major legislation in the field in 85 years.

David Tench, the Consumer Association's lawyer, said there's much more to be done before consumers can go into the market place on an equal footing with sellers. He says shoppers lose millions of pounds a year because they are cheated or lack information needed to make sensible purchases.

Enforcement of the Trade Descriptions Act has been assigned to 1,200 local officers across the country and it varies widely from place to place.

In Sheffield, the 530,000-population centre in the industrial Midlands, three officers hear more than 300 complaints a month and say they bring buyer and seller to a friendly agreement in most cases.

If there's no agreement and the store is at fault, it's up to British consumers to sue for their money back.

Moon Dust Turns Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 2.3 grams of lunar dust stolen during a benefit dinner here Saturday night was found Monday, police said, after an anonymous caller reported it would be placed in a mailbox.

Police Chief Edward M. Davis said the vial of dust, a portion of Apollo 11 lunar rock No. 50, was recovered from the mailbox after police received a telephone call about 6:30 a.m.

The unguarded vial had disappeared Saturday night during a $100-a-plate benefit dinner for scientific research at a Wilshire Blvd., department store. Those attending had viewed it under a microscope.

The sample was from the Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics at the University of California at Los Angeles. It had been assigned to Dr. George W. Wetherill by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

1970 TAX TIPS

Q. My mother lives in Germany and I send her a regular allowance. Her income is less than $950 a year. Is there a special form I must complete when claiming her as a dependant?

A. You should complete and attach to your return a form TIE-NR. You should also submit remittance receipts such as cancelled cheques, bank drafts, and money orders, as proof of support. These documents should show the amount remitted, date of purchase, and the name of the person to whom the support was given.

Q. My nephew wants to attend university and his parents cannot afford to send him. Therefore I am planning to pay his university fees. Can I claim any of this when filing my income tax return?

A. No. Tuition fees are deductible only in computing the income of the student regardless of who actually paid them.

Q. Would you please tell me the difference in the expenses allowable for income tax purposes for a salaried nurse and a private duty nurse?

A. A private duty nurse is carrying on a business and is entitled to deduct reasonable expenses incurred in earning her income. A salaried nurse, on the other hand, may deduct only those expenses specifically allowed as a deduction from salary or wages by the Income Tax Act. Among the more common expenses usually deductible by private duty nurses but not salaried nurses are outlays for transportation, shoes and uniforms and costs of attending nurses' conventions.

Q. My wife's uncle is unemployed and is living with us. Can I claim him as a dependant on my tax return?

A. Not unless he is mentally or physically infirm. If he is, you can claim the amount you actually spend on his support up to $550.

Q. My wife and I are the same age and this year I qualify for the age exemption. On my tax form do I claim $500 age exemption for my wife as well as $500 for myself?

A. No. The fact that your wife is entitled to claim the $500 age exemption if she files her own tax return does not affect the amount you yourself can claim as married exemption.

Nude Makes Scout Paper Best Seller

SITTINGBOURNE, England (AP) — The magazine produced by local Boy Scouts is a best seller this year. It has a naked girl on the cover.

On inside pages there are jokes about turkeys and chickens taking the contraceptive pill, an article in favor of camps for both sexes and a glowing report on the movie The Killing of Sister George, which is about lesbianism—all for six cents.

The magazine, called Dimension One, sold out its first printing of 100 copies when buyers spotted the bosomy blonde pouting and hugging a swivel chair.

District Scout Commissioner Sidney Beacon was philosophical.

"I appreciate that in these days it was the sort of picture young people want to see," he said. "I hope it will help build up circulation—but I don't want to see any more nudes."

Announcing
the beginning of tomorrow.

Pontiac's all-new Firebirds are here.

The luxurious Firebird Esprit (left) and the high-performance Firebird Formula 400.

Certain items shown are optional at extra cost.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Firebird...new, even for Pontiac.

As usual, it took Pontiac to leap into the future and come through with four totally new sports cars for four totally different drivers.

Firebird. We modestly call this beauty a basic Firebird. It was designed for the driver who wants a sports car, doesn't have lots of cash to spend on one and doesn't want to be reminded of the fact.

No reminders here. The basic Firebird seats four for two reasons. One: more room. Two: a Wide-Track ride that would do an $8000 sedan proud. (Details to come)

The front end is made of Pontiac's famous Endura. It resists pings, dings and what-have-you.

The brakes are front discs. Rear drums.

And the styling is so clean we even hid the radio antenna in the windshield.

Seen anything that even suggests budgeting? You won't. Until you check the price.

Firebird Esprit. The luxury Firebird. At last, the conflict between luxury and sport is over. Esprit has both.

The instrument panel is covered with wood-grain vinyl. Rich. Yet the controls and instruments are all-business. Easy to read. Easy to reach. We even designed it so any light bulb can be changed within 60 seconds.

The upholstery is plush knit vinyl and Morrokide. Yet every passenger has his own comfortable molded seat.

Which also gives Esprit the big-car ride we promised to explain. The seats provide room to raise the drive tunnel between them. So the suspension has more room to travel when you hit a bump. And that's a big-car ride. Yet Esprit has all the handling and maneuverability you expect from a sports car. Amazing that nobody else has done it before.

Firebird Formula 400. The true enthusiast is convinced that a performance car should have front and rear stabilizer bars, a big engine (say . . . 330-hp, 400-cu.-in. V8) and a fiberglass hood with scoops that function if you order a Ram Air V8. Right? Formula 400 does.

Firebird Trans Am. A rear spoiler. A spoiler at each wheel well. Air extractors on the front fenders. A front air dam. And a shaker hood. They all work.

The four all-new Firebirds are here!

Industrials Hold Gains

Industrial issues continued to hold gains in trading today on the Toronto and New York stock markets.

Prices were also higher at Montreal while at Vancouver prices were mixed in light trading during the morning.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, International Utilities was up 1⅞ to 27⅝, Melchers 1⅝ to 18¼, Occidental Pete 1⅜ to 24⅝, White Pass and Yukon 1¼ to 22 and Consolidated Bathurst 1⅛ to 23.

Shell Canada lost 1 to 27¾ Power ⅞ to 10, Noranda ⅜ to 36 and Dominion Citrus ¾ to 6¾.

Hudson's Bay Oil was down ¾ to 45½ and Pacific Pete ¾ to 28¾. Great Plains gained ½ to 28½.

AT NEW YORK analysts said the market was torn by conflicting forces. Persistent hopes of lower interest rates continued to inspire some buying, but uncertainty over whether there would be a nationwide railroad strike in the U.S. Thursday was disturbing, they said.

AT MONTREAL, all sectors of the stock market moved higher in moderately active trading today. Banks led advances as investors continued to hope for lower interest rates in the near future.

Consolidated Bathurst was active following a report that Power Corp. plans to offer 2½ of its common shares for each share of Consolidated that it does not already own.

Consolidated Bathurst moved up 1⅛ to 23 and about 118,000 shares were traded by 1 p.m. Power Corp. slipped 1 to 9¾.

Denison Mines fell 1 to 40¼ after slipping five points Tuesday when Roman Corp. Ltd. ran into federal government opposition to its plan to sell its 25.5 per cent interest in Denison to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas.

AT LONDON, prices generally advanced today on the stock exchange following Tuesday's gain on Wall Street and release of the February gold figures for the United Kingdom.

Rank rallied strongly in line with New York and the future prospects of Rank-Xerox as seen by the chairman of the Xerox Corp. ICI, Dunlop, and Beechams were among other leaders to move ahead, although gains were usually small.

British funds were firm at the short end of the market while mediums and longs were steady.

Among Canadians Canadian Pacific added two points. Other gainers included TransCanada Pipe Line, Hiram Walker, Algoma, and Massey-Ferguson. Dome, however, lost six points and Inco also declined. Banks were lower although Montreal firmed against the trend.

AT VANCOUVER prices were mixed in light trading on the stock exchange today. Volume was 141,643 shares to 11 a.m.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading continued extremely light in all commodities and prices were generally stronger at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

The March future of rapeseed posted fractional losses under some liquidation pressure from commission houses while deferred futures posted fractional to marginal gains in light exporter buying.

Flax was steady in light local and commission house trade and some domestic shipper buying for eastern feeders.

Oats and barley were fractionally stronger in a routine domestic shipper trade.

Rye posted fractional gains in light exporter buying interest and some inter-month spreading.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged except the durums which were two cents lower.

CHICAGO (AP) —Soybean oil and soybean futures, which have advanced almost steadily in price in recent weeks, came under heavy profit-taking and speculative liquidation on the board of trade today.

Soybean meal, which maintained some strength through the early portion of the session, also came under heavy selling pressure in the waning minutes of the session.

When trade had ended, soybeans had declined nearly 3 cents a bushel, soybean oil was down 90 points or nearly 1 cent a pound, and soybean meal was down around $1 a ton.

Corporate Dividends Set Record

Highest level of first quarter dividend payments in Canadian corporate history was recorded for the January-March period this year.

Bongard, Leslie and Co. Ltd. figures show the quarterly total of $378.8 million stands 2.6 per cent higher than the previous record of $369.4 million paid by Canadian companies in the first quarter of 1968.

The 1969 quarter, brought up to date by dividends declared for payment this month, is 6.9 per cent higher than the same period last year, when $354 million was paid.

Dividends for March total $174.28 million, up $12 million from a year ago.

All categories showed improvement, the industrials up $4.8 million to $90.2 million; mines up $4.2 million to $53.4 million; utilities up $580,000 to $7.7 million; institutions and trusts up $1.7 million to $22.8 million.

Great West Plans to Seek Name Change

CALGARY (CP) — The Great West Saddlery Ltd. has announced that it will seek approval at its annual general shareholders' meeting to change the Calgary-based company's corporate name to Great West International Equities Ltd.

Shareholders will also consider a motion to move the head office from Toronto to Calgary, where the executive offices now are located.

Burns Foods Ltd. of Calgary had the highest sales and earnings in its history in 1969, with a net profit of $1.97 million or $2.41 a share compared with 1.3 million or $1.68 a share in 1968.

In a preliminary report to shareholders, Burns said net sales increased by $34.78 million to $274.6 million.

Meat-packing operations accounted for the largest part of the improvement in profit.

Banff Oil

Per share income for 1969 is reported by Banff Oil Ltd. as being 23 per cent higher than 1968.

No totals were given, but the company said cash income went from 31.4 cents to 38.5 cents, and net income gained 19 per cent in rising from 20.4 cents to 24.3 cents.

Ferro, Formex

The Montreal firms, Ferro Metal Ltd. and Formex Ltd. plan to enter into a consortium to supply metal-formed products in allied fields, for which they have combined orders to date of more than $2 million.

Their combined sales in 1969 were worth in excess of $3.2 million and they project $4.3 million this year. Ferro makes oil, gasoline and chemical tanks, and has branches in principal cities west to Vancouver. Formex manufactures modular formwork, panel systems, structural components and accessories.

The latter deals largely in dams and bridges, while Ferro Metal has become active in atomic energy and anti-pollution systems.

Seventeen American oil companies are combining to perform 7,800 miles of seismic and marine gravity surveys in the Bering Sea to within a few miles of the Soviet border this summer.

Operator of the group will be Skelly Oil Co., which last year performed more than 25,000 miles of aeromagnetic survey over 300,000 square miles in Norton Sound, lying generally south of Nome Alaska.

Principal companies involved are Atlantic Richfield, Gulf Oil, Humbler Oil, Mobil Oil, Phillips Petroleum, Standard, Sun, Texaco and Union Oil.

A British firm and two Canadian companies have combined efforts to produce a new high voltage line damper for the Nelson River hydro project in northern Manitoba.

Canadian Bronze Co. Ltd., which recently finished a $2 million plant renovation in Winnipeg, has begun deliveries on the $650,000 contract from Dunlop of Canada to Atomic Energy of Canada.

The dampers, made from Alcan alloy, were designed by Polymer Engineering of England, a Dunlop subsidiary, and they have passed two years of line testing. Canadian Bronze, a division of CAE Industries Ltd., looks for additional contracts in North America.

France Ready to Welcome 'Fair Share' of U.S. Cash

WASHINGTON (WP) — French President Georges Pompidou told a select audience of big U.S. businessmen and bankers Tuesday that he would "welcome a fair share" of American investment in European Common Market countries.

At a breakfast meeting with about 26 corporation officials at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, Pompidou made it clear that he wanted to establish a distinct break from Gaullist suspicions of foreign — and particularly American — investment.

Nevertheless, the Frech president did not hold out a completely open invitation to American business, such as prevails (for example) in Belgium.

"He said," according to one participant, "that what he is concerned about most is where the (corporate) decisions are being made." He would prefer those decisions to be made in France, rather than somewhere else.

In other words, the way his businessman-audience understood him, Pompidou would be most partial to those American investments that give the greatest degree of independence to a French subsidiary.

ENCOURAGED

On balance, the Americans were encouraged by the shift from what had been stated Gaullist policy, ackowledging that in practice, "De Gaulle's bark was worse than his bite."

Among the participants were Arthur K. Watson, chairman of the International Business Machines Corp.'s international division and ambassador-designate to Paris, Fred J. Borch, president of General Electric; J. K. Jamieson, president of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey); Harold S. Geeneen, president and board chairman of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., and Ellmore C. Patterson, president of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.

Other companies represented included Caterpillar Tractor Co.; Westinghouse; National City Bank of New York; and Allis-Chalmers.

EFFORTS REJECTED

The French government recently had rejected Westinghouse and I T and T efforts to take over major French enterprises. There was nothing specific out of the breakfast meeting to suggest there had been any change in those situations.

Pompidou started off Tuesday's session by observing that in the past, the U.S. had shown a "tendency" to invest in other Common Market countries. But now, he said, France would be happy to see some of that investment money flow its way.

He said France also favored the concept of a multi-national European Corporation, as has been discussed in Common Market circles in Brussels. As prototypes of stronger European companies, he mentioned both Philips and Lever Bros.

Importance of Small Business Ignored

TORONTO — The federal government's white paper tax proposals present a crisis of credibility and confidence, believes Crown Trust president Harold F. Kerrigan.

In a report to shareholders Tuesday at the company's annual meeting, Kerrigan said that the white paper has served to crystallize public opinion.

Industry is being asked to commit itself to restraint while government spending contines, thus creating a credibility gap, Kerrigan said.

In the tax proposals, insufficient recognition is given to the importance of small business in the enonomy. A capital gains tax and confiscatory gift and estate taxes take too much wealth out of the private sector, the meeting was told.

Kerrigan asked shareholders what kind of country they want — a land of opportunity where thrift, initiative and entrepreneural skill are rewarded, or a centralist state where activity is regulated and regimented by authorities.

Under the proposals, new pools of wealth would be almost impossible to create, Kerrigan said.

7,000 More Layoffs By Boeing Company

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The giant Boeing Co. cut its work force in the Seattle area by another 7,000 in February after a reduction of 5,000 in January, bringing its total employment down to 68,000 in this region.

In announcing the figures Tuesday the aircraft company said the 12,000-worker cutback since Jan. 1 includes 10,000 who were laid off and 2,000 who quit voluntarily.

The company said further cutbacks are expected to continue "at a substantial rate" through March because of a recent decision to delay deliveries of the 747 convertible passenger-freighter airplanes by one year.

The March decline will be less than in the first two months, a spokesman said. More cuts in the work force will be made "at a lessened rate" through the remainder of the year.

"Total reductions will depend on the success in acquiring commercial orders and winning major government contract competitions," the company statement said.

The 68,000 Boeing employment total at the end of February was down from a high of 101,500 in mid-1968.

Complications Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten major Canadian corporations sought Tuesday to have the Commons finance committee modify the government's proposed new corporations act to bring it into line with Ontario legislation.

The 10 companies, five federally-incorporated and five provincially-incorporated in Ontario, are all listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange and comply with its regulations, those of the securities acts of Ontario and the four western provinces, and will be governed by the new federal law.

Thomas Bell, president of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., speaking for the group, said that where the proposed new federal law differs from Ontario legislation, new complications will be made in company compliance.

He said the procedures for investigating company behavior and penalties imposed by the various governments involved should all be the same. When there are variations, companies might find they cannot comply with conflicting regulation or take actions that might be nullified by some part of the law.

The companies, all included in the 25 largest in Canada, are Abitibi, Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., Consumers' Gas Co., Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., Molson Industries Ltd., Moore Corp. Ltd., Noranda Mines Ltd., Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., Simpsons, Ltd., and Steel Company of Canada Ltd.

While these are all Canadian companies, Bell told Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) he finds nothing iniquitous in foreign ownership.

"It's because of foreign investment that we are where we are today in Canada," he said. "There shouldn't be any distinction in the law between Canadian-owned and foreign-owned companies."

One third of Abitibi's assets are in the United States, he added, "and I'd hate to have the United States legislate against foreign ownership there."

Saltsman proposed that 75-percent Canadian ownership should be required of any company incorporated under federal law. He also advocated complete disclosure of all corporate accounts and other business by closely-held corporations as well as those that are traded on public stock exchanges.

Bell said that speaking for Abitibi, he would agree on full disclosure by all corporations. But J. W. Younger, secretary of Stelco, said he and some other members of the group of 10 would not agree that it was necessary.

Long-Term Plan For Industry In B.C. Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Employers' Council of British Columbia says the fact that Ottawa still looks to Europe for markets while B.C. seeks outlets in the United States and Japan causes much of the tension between the federal and provincial governments.

F. G. Peskett told the Vancouver chapter of the National Secretaries Association that governments at both levels should create a long-term program to establish how B.C. industry can best serve Pacific Rim markets with both resource and manufactured goods.

Meo Tribesmen Key Target in Laos Drive

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP) — The North Vietnamese and Communist Pathet Lao forces appear to be striving to achieve two major objectives in their current offensive in Laos.

One of these objectives, Western analysts here believe, is the elimination of the two main bases southwest of the strategic Plain of Jars that serve the Meo units fighting for the government.

The other, in the opinion of these analysts, is to take over the region north of Vientiane theoretically controlled by the neutralist faction loyal to Prince Souvanna Phouma, the prime minister.

By capturing the bases at Sam Thong and Long Cheng, the Communists apparently hope to strike a decisive blow against the estimated 20,000 Meo tribesmen commanded by General Vang Pao.

These troops, most of them guerrillas functioning withn American advisers and supplied by U.S. aircraft, are regarded as the most effective elements on the government side.

Without the Meos, who have borne the brunt of the fighting in Laos within recent years, the government would be dependent on its regular army, which has repeatedly been unable to counter the Communists.

The importance attributed to the Meos has been reflected in the fact that American B-52 bombers are being used for the first time to support them. Until now, B-52s were primarily employed to bomb North Vietnamese infiltration routes in the Laotian panhandle.

While the Communist effort to defeat the Meos is prompted almost entirely by military motives, their drive to take over the zone occupied by the pro-government neutralists seems to be inspired by essentially political considerations.

Key to Winning

. . . or Losing

This sector, which stretches south along Route 13 to the village of Hin Heup and north to about 20 miles below Luang Probang, was originally occupied in 1961 by the so-called neutralists commanded by Captain Kong Le.

The emergence of Kong Le introduced a centrist group between the right-wing and Communist forces then at war in Laos. At that time, the Kong Le neutralists backed Prince Souvanna Phouma.

In June, 1962, during the Geneva conference on Laos, the three factions agreed to form a tripartite coalition government under Souvanna Phouma. Under the deal, the neutralists received eight cabinet posts while the rightists and Communists each took four.

Since then, however, the coalition has undergone changes. The Communists quit the cabinet and the neutralists split into two parties. One has remained loyal to Souvanna Phouma while the other, which calls itself the "Patriotic Front," operates under Communist auspices.

If they can dislodge Souvanna Phouma's neutralists from their zone, it is believed, the Communists would put the sector under the aegis of the "Patriotic Front."

And the purpose of this manoeuvre by the Communists would be to demand increased representation for members of the "Patriotic Front" in the event that the coalition government is reactivated.

Rhetorically at least, the Communists could claim that this demand does not violate the Geneva agreement, since the "Patriotic Front" is in theory a neutralist group that broke away from the Kong Le faction.

The head of the pro-Communist neutralists is Col. Deuan Siphaseuth. Taking about 200 dissidents, he allied himself with the Communists following a quarrel with King Le in 1961. Kong Le, who left Laos in 1964, now resides in Paris.

Though the Communist-run neutralists are still considered to be numerically small, it is significant that a North Vietnamese radio broadcast monitored here claimed the present offensive is taking place under their "leadership."

Peterson Roasted Over Trust Failure

DOWDING
. . . cites Alberta act

By BRUCE YEMEN
And VIC PARSONS

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson rod out a barrage of opposition criticism and a non-confidence motion in the legislature Tuesday on his handling of the Commonwealth Trust affair.

A 37-to-12 vote — government against Liberals and New Democrats — crushed the move by Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) to reduce Peterson's salary by $1 to $19,999.

The opposition pressed Peterson to grant at least one fiat giving one of the collapsed company's shareholders the right to sue the government and to give the courts a chance to decide whether Peterson and Premier Bennett were negligent in their handling of the affair.

Gardom raised the Commonwealth matter by repeating a series of questions he had asked Premier Bennett, who as, as finance minister, last week declined to answer.

'35 People Lost $64,000 In 5 Months'

The Liberal MLA said that during the five-month period that Peterson was attorney-general when the company was still operating, 18 separate cases involving 35 people lost $64,000 in investments. The last case was three days before the RCMP closed the company in November, 1968.

Peterson challenged Gardom's statements that shares were bought by investors after an order was issued to the company president by the finance minister and then attorney-general Robert Bonner, to take corrective action.

"I say this, after having had my officials look into the matter not one share — common or preferred — of the trust company was issued by the trust company subsequent to Feb. 12, 1968."

The only kinds of investment that could be made after that date, said Peterson, were guaranteed investment certificates or by way of deposits and these were fully insured.

Gardom interrupted to say Peterson's statement was "categorically incorrect" and later waved a certificate for 200 Commonwealth Trust shares which had been sold for $7,000 in March to an unsuspecting investor.

"You have not done your job properly," Gardom said.

Instead of defending the right of wronged people to get justice, Gardom said, Peterson was "defending a government here today and defending your own office."

He said it was against the tenets of law for Peterson to be "the judge and jury to your own performance."

Peterson had permitted Commonwealth salesmen to sell more "junk" and that's why many people were bilked, Gardom said.

'Can't Guarantee Investments'

Peterson rejected any suggestion that the government was negligent or slow to act in the matter, or that the government allowed investments to continue knowing that the company was about to go under.

"Since when was an investment in a public company guaranteed to be successful?" he asked.

Peterson also criticized those who suggested that the government should have made known the order of Feb. 12.

"Had we made the order known, I expect we would be criticized by those who would say that our disclosure of this order had resulted in a run on trust company funds."

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said the province of Alberta has an act enabling citizens who feel wronged by the crown to seek justice in the courts.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said Peterson had tried to distort the opposition stand that people should have the right to sue for damages by saying the opposition was calling for the government to pay back everyone who lost money in the Commonwealth collapse.

All that is being asked, he said, is that the investors who felt wronged have the same right to seek justice as anyone else who had been "failed by a person in a position of trust."

Aborigine to Run

BRISBANE (Reuters) — The Queensland state branch of the governing Liberal party has picked Neville Bonner, 52, an aborigine, to seek a Senate seat later this year. Bonner, believed the first of his race to contest a federal Australian election, called his nomination "a breakthrough for the people of my race."

Hatcheries 'Best Bet' For Salmon

A young biochemist at the University of Victoria believes fish hatcheries are the best bet for insuring enough salmon reach the ocean to perpetuate the harvest.

Artificial spawning beds such as the Big Qualicum project are important, Dr. David Groves said Tuesday. And he believes the numerous small streams of the province can be better used for spawning runs.

But the first requirement now is to make sure the ocean is sufficiently stocked with salmon in the face of big rivers being dammed for hydro projects and impaired by mills.

BETTER RETURNS

Rearing salmon in a hatchery can produce better returns by releasing larger fish, he adds.

Groves is one of a number of scientists taking a close look at the cycle of the salmon and as a biochemist he is intrigued by chemical changes involved in growth.

"Our main limitation on growth around here is the water is too cold," he says.

MAN-MADE FOOD

This being so, the possibility of fish-farming salmon on the coast someday presents some interesting scientific challenges and Groves is working on one of them—developing a man-made food for the domesticated fish.

Fat is a vital ingredient but a common form, tallow, can't be used because it won't melt at the temperatures involved. Sunflower oil is being tried with some success.

Balancing protein, a relatively expensive ingredient, to the needs of the fish is another problem.

Dr. Groves estimates local researchers are one or two years away from a winning formula. In any event, it's pretty hard to beat the salmon's natural food—herring—which has everything needed and comes in a convenient package.

If salmon farming comes to B.C., he sees it as a natural development after hatcheries have been established and the needs for sea stocking have been met.

There appears to be a tremendous market for smaller salmon but, particularly in the U.S., there are numerous legislative hurdles to be cleared first.

Details Of Acquittal Made Public

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The cache of hand grenades that led to the arrest of the daughter of T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party and MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan, was supplied by a police undercover agent who acquired the grenades from the United States Navy, court testimony has disclosed.

The agent's action was cited by a federal judge who dismissed charges last month against Shirley Jean Sutherland, 35, of Beverly Hills, and Donald Freed, 37, of West Los Angeles, a school teacher. Prosecutors said the defendants planned to give the grenades to the Black Panther party.

Transcripts of Judge Warren Ferguson's ruling were released by defence lawyers Tuesday at a news conference.

Colwood Divers Aid in Recovery

SURREY (CP) — RCMP today were attempting to identify the body of a youth recovered from the waters of Semiahmoo Bay. It is believed to be that of Richard Kendall, 13, of Surrey, lost Saturday when a boat capsized in the bay.

The body was recovered Tuesday at 6 p.m. by a team of four naval divers from the Colwood unit, led by CPO Robert Larsen.

New Camaro.

We've never announced a car at this time before.
But then nobody's ever announced a car like this before.

Super Hugger

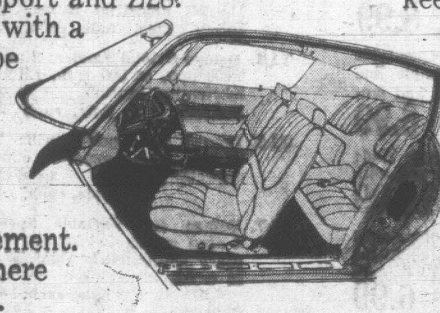
If it were just an ordinary sportster, we might have introduced it at the ordinary time.

But we didn't.

And as you can see, time was on our side.

Because we didn't bother with the simulated air scoops. Or any other put-ons that might put you off.

Instead we took the time to build a whole new car from the ground up. In four distinctive versions: Standard, Rally Sport, Super Sport and Z28.



We started with a sleek new shape and a low road-hugging stance. So it hovers a few short inches from the pavement. Right down there with Corvette.

To that we added more hood. A faster fastback. More window area. And wider doors for easier entry.

On RS models, there's even a resilient bumper that surrounds the grille. To protect against nicks and knocks.

Compare the new Camaro with any competitive car in its field.

If you can find one.

Two extra buckets.
No extra bucks.

Most sportsters give you two buckets in front. And a sofa in back. We've done them two better.

The back seat sofa is out. In are two rear bucket-styled cushions.

Up front the buckets are deeply contoured to put you firmly in place. And keep you there. Even in tight turns.

The instrument panel is just as functional. It's flat black and wraps around. With enough dials and instrumentation to make you think you're piloting a 747.

Only with this one you don't need a flight crew.

is built right in.

Camaro always had a tough reputation when it came to taking on tight turns. Now we've made it tougher.

With a forward-mounted steering linkage and an improved front and rear suspension that give the new Camaro a leech-like grip on the road.

It's something other cars will have a tough time coming to grips with.

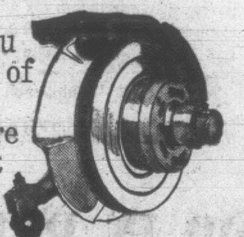
What motivates all this?

Six power plants up to the 360-hp Turbo-Fire 350 you can order. And four transmissions.

Pick the combination that best suits your driving.

Then go pick on an open road.

Standard front disc brakes. You stop as well as you go.



It's only natural.

With all that go, you want an equal amount of stop. You've got it.

Front disc brakes are standard. For less heat buildup. And more resistance to fade.

New Camaro. The Super Hugger.

Other sportsters always feared it might come to this. And they were right.

Only their timing was wrong.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

Betsy Sweeney Simulates a Swirl of Smog

'If you look around
It's getting worse every year'

She Saw Real Pollution

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A young American woman teaching at the University of Victoria says she doesn't want to see pollution get out of hand in British Columbia as it has in many parts of the United States.

"I remember hiking in California and seeing trees dying from air pollution," said Betsy Sweeney, a laboratory instructor in physiology.

"I've seen many dead birds washed ashore because of oil pollution at sea.

"I've seen green places ruined by litter and refuse.

"It could happen here too. It is actually happening but by slow degrees."

Her first-hand experience with environmental decline is the main reason she is taking an active interest in the big teach-in on Environment Tomorrow at the University of Victoria Saturday, she said.

She and more than 50 students have been planning and working on the public meeting for weeks.

A former resident of southern California and a graduate of San Fernando Valley State College, near Los Angeles, she had devoted much time and study to environmental decay since she made Victoria her permanent home five years ago.

She says there has only been talk on preventing pollution in British Columbia.

"If you look around it's getting worse every year," she said.

She pointed out that there are places around Victoria where you can't go swimming because of pollution. There was plenty of evidence of litter along public highways. There were reports that some birds had died from insecticide poisoning.

"Unless people take action to prevent this, it will get worse," she warned.

She feels the government should launch a feasibility study to determine if it will be in the economic interest of both the pulp and paper industry and province to have the companies pool their production resources.

"Is it really necessary for pulp mills to establish themselves on every major river on Vancouver Island to detriment of other resources?" she asked. "is it really necessary for them to each establish a little empire?"

(The CPR is now seeking a site to establish a new pulp mill)

She noted that some industries were pooling their production resources.

"We are facing an environmental crisis," she added. "In developed areas in the United States the situation is serious."

Why is the Uvic Biology Club sponsoring a teach-in when people are already concerned about pollution — when there is so much talk about environmental decay?

"We feel that although the public is concerned, it is not really informed," she replied. "But equally as important is what can we do about it."

She said these matters will be discussed by panels of experts at Saturday's meetings.

She hoped the public will support proposed follow-up activities.

Mrs. Sweeney said the teach in will take in land-use and conservation.

"It is important that large natural areas be established at this time," she said. "We were pleased when a large part of the west coast was set aside as a natural park."

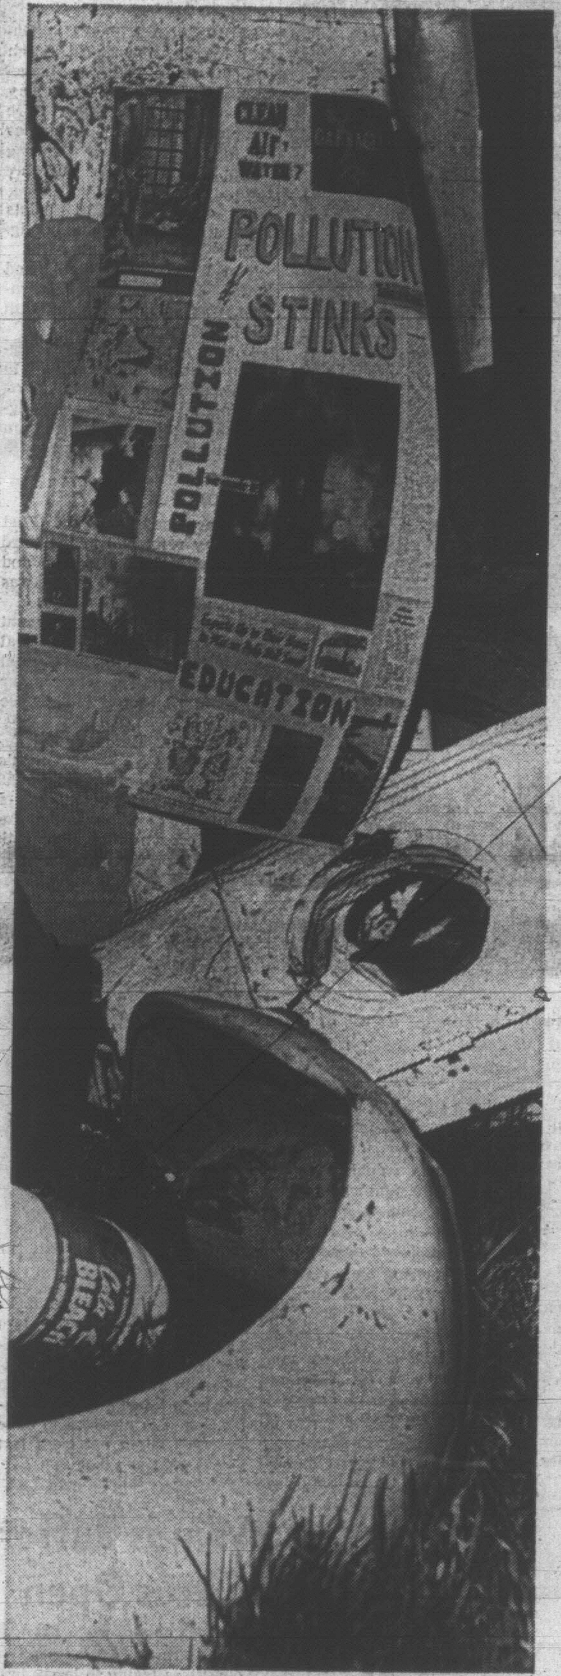
The Victoria teach-in is the first in Canada, she said.

In the United States, universities from coast to coast planned massive teach-ins for April.

"It is a subject everyone should get involved in," she said. "Today were are faced with a crisis. Some scientists even say it is too late because the present levels of air pollution, pesticides, resource consumption, have already overstepped the limits up to which the earth's systems can compensate.

Mrs. Sweeny is not so pessimistic. She thinks there is still time — if people act now.

"What can you do? Come to the meeting."



SCULPTURED MESS will be one of the ways the University of Victoria teach-in Saturday will try to imprint on the minds of the public how common pollution is becoming.

22-Acre Site For Hospital Approved

The region's hospital board has approved purchase of a 22-acre hospital site in Central Saanich.

The property is on Mount Newton Crossroad west of the Patricia Bay Highway and will cost $128,000.

Bill Long, the board's executive secretary, said today the next step is obtaining approval of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark for the purchase.

Plans call for a 150-bed hospital on the site, to replace Resthaven Hospital at Sidney.

Half the beds will be for extended care, meaning long-term bed-ridden patients who require constant nursing rather than doctor's care.

Funds for these beds have already been approved by referendum but the other 75 acute care beds must still go to a public vote.

The regional hospital board has had the Central Saanich site under consideration for some time.

A potential hitch in plans involves sewers. A sewer plan was rejected by Central Saanich voters last year but an amended program will be put to a referendum again in June.

"We'd have to make our own arrangements if there were no sewers there," Long said. He did not elaborate.

Whale's Sex Remains Mystery

The sex of the albino killer whale captured with four other whales by a crew from Oak Bay Marina's Sealand Sunday still remains a mystery.

Today the 16-man crew at Pedder Bay where the pod is netted were struggling to reset the two nets closer in, hoping to eventually form a closer pen close to the north shore of the bay.

A Sealand spokesman said once the pen was made the next step would be to try and determine the white whale's sex.

"This can be determined, sometimes, by the dorsal fin, depending on the age of the animal."

The white whale is estimated to be about 2½-year-old and may be too young for the diagnosis to work.

Meanwhile, the crew is maintaining a round-the-clock vigil and Pedder Bay Marina remains closed to fishermen and visitors.

Accident Victim Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Helen Mitchell, 69, of 1761 Pembroke, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday, 10 days after she was injured in a three-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Chemainus River Road.

RCMP said at the time of the accident Feb. 21, Mrs. Mitchell was a passenger in a car driven by Francis Robert Crabbe, 26, of 2856 Fith, when another vehicle tried to pass them. Six people went to hospital.

Mrs. Mitchell was transferred from Chemainus Hospital to St. Joseph's Feb. 25.

Gas Stations Organize To Protest Assessments

Victoria service station operators — alarmed by substantial increases in their 1970 business rental assessments — are planning a full-scale protest at the court of revision on March 18.

Robert Dunsmuir, chairman of the Automotive Retailers Association, Victoria group. said 25 members representing 97 per cent of the city membership, met Tuesday night to discuss their course of action with Ald. Ove Witt.

The assessments, upon which business tax is calculated (last year 6¼ per cent), have risen by three, four and five times their 1969 levels, operators contend.

No explanation of the dramatic rise has been given by city hall, they say.

Today, city assessor Alfred Joyce said the entire business assessment roll has been updated.

"All business premises in the city of Victoria, including service stations, are being assessed on the same basis," he said.

City manager Dennis Young confirmed the total assessment roll had risen from $9.5 million to $12.5 million.

"There was no relationship to actual rental values," Joyce said, even though actual rentals only were used as a guide when the assessments were calculated.

An assessment appraiser uses his professional judgment in arriving at the figures, Joyce said.

$5,700 MORE

Among factors he must consider are location of the business, condition of the building, nature of the business, other tenants, and the relationship of tenant to owner.

The service station operators cited one notice that rose from $3,600 last year to $9,000 this year; another from about $2,800 to $13,500 (also involving expanded premises); a third from $8,620 to $13,780.

Joseph Armitage, an operator on the edge of the downtown core, said his increase represented "$5,700 more than I pay in rent."

"I would like Mr. Young to tell me why two businesses of identical property and identical buildings on Oak Bay Avenue are assessed differently. One is 50 per cent more than the other and does 50 per cent less business," Dunsmuir said.

Young admitted the assessments had not been kept up to date, but he suggested the way to go about protesting is to make written protest to the court of revision.

Dunsmuir said the meeting was impressed by Ald. Witt, who did not promise a remedy but did agree to act as liaison between the operators and city hall and urged the operators to make their protest to the court of revision.

Dunsmuir said one of the objections was that the increases were imposed all at once which, Joyce explained, is council policy.

"To the best of my knowledge, compared with the average retailer, the increases to sevice stations are way out of line. We want a justification," he said.

HEATING INDUSTRY WARMS TO COOL-AID PLIGHT

The plumbing and heating industry of Greater Victoria will donate $75 a month to Cool-Aid for the next year.

The decision was made Tuesday night after Cool-Aid organizer Charles Barber outlined the past programs of the organization which helps young people in trouble.

Alex Rawlings, chairman of the Mechanical Trade Promotion Fund, a labor-management group charged with the responsibility of promoting the mechanical trades, said the monthly donation would be part of a continuing program of community interest.

Last year the same group, comprised of management and members of Local 324 Plumbers and Pipefitters Union, donated the materials and the labor to install new plumbing in the Victoria Hostel for Girls on Fernwood.

"We were all pretty proud of that effort," Rawlings said. "I think we shall be just as proud of this a year from now."

MONTHLY DEFICIT

Barber noted that this year's operation will be a little tougher than last because Cool-Aid was $72.50 a month short of operating capital.

Tom Wheatley, business agent for Local 324, suggested the MTPF donate $75 a month to cover the deficit. Michael J. Griffin supported the move on behalf of management.

In addition to the involvement with the girls hostel and Cool-Aid the mechanical trades also sponsor a $300 University of Victoria scholarship annually.

FIREMEN TO HOLD BABYSITTER TALKS

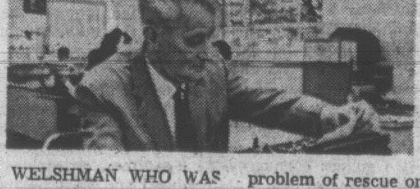
A seminar for babysitters is being arranged by the Saanich fire department.

Approval to go ahead was given Tuesday night by the municipal fire committee.

The seminar, which Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland hopes will be held after Easter, will go much further than fire prevention in the home.

It is planned to hold a 10-lecture series including practical demonstrations of baby feeding, a talk by a pediatrician, kitchen safety and food preparation, resuscitation, a safety talk by police, activities for pre-school youngsters as well as fire safety.

There would also be a review and test and a graduation ceremony.



Arthur Mayse . . .

A WELSHMAN WHO WAS also a poet once tossed a question to his readers:

"What is this life if full of care, we have no time to stand and stare?"

What, indeed: but the staring W. H. Davies approved was not the sort that reportedly hindered ambulance men and obstructed police at the scene of the collision that claimed four lives last Sunday.

"I don't know what it is," a Saanich police sergeant is quoted as saying of the dark attraction that riveted the starers to the accident location. Justifiably angry, he suggested morbid curiosity or plain ghoulishness as motives.

But the why of the primitive urge matters less than the fact of this flocking of starers where trouble strikes. By their presence, they create a clutter that adds to the problem of rescue or cleanup.

The merely thoughtless who form a close circle around some downed victim of accident or seizure—muttering, "Oh, the poor man!" while a luckless human struggles for air—would do well to move on if they can't offer knowledgeable help.

As for the stubborn obstructionist who maintains his right to stand and stare even if his visual blood-drinking delays rescue and costs a life, let him share the scene by all means.

. . . In the back of a police car, I suggest, with a court appearance pending!

B.C.'s FIRST ENVIRONment teach-in is coming up on Saturday at University of Victoria under Uvic Biology Club sponsorship. This 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. scrutiny of earth as a space ship with limited life-support systems will be a lively as well as an instructive affair.

There will be speakers, discussion groups, films and displays. Also, the Pollution Players and the Clean-Air Singers will help put across the teach-in message that "The Environment You Save is Your Own."

Never having run into any anti-pollution songs, I was curious to learn about them, and have borrowed a few numbers that will be aired during Saturday's interludes.

Here are a couple of pungent snatches from The Ballad of Beautiful B.C.:

We export Alberni fog
And sell it down south as
L.A. smog
Compliments of Beautiful
B.C.

And again, from the same:

Santa Barbara gave us a
lesson I fear
But don't worry, folks,
'cause 'it can't happen
here' . . .
Here in Beautiful B.C.

Some of the songs are imports. The Sounds of Silence is one, and that well-seasoned inevitable, The Times They Are A-Changing is another. And here's a highly-pertinent revamp of This Land is Your Land.

While French and English
were busy crying,
U.S. investors were quietly
buying.
We didn't spot it until they'd
got it,
This land that's made for you and me.

Froth on the wave? By no means. The intent is serious, and the teach-in sponsors promise a vigorous delving into their theme of Environment Tomorrow.

There's no charge for attendance, and Victorians who go should come away well-informed on environmental problems of grave import.

If they're left unsolved, in fact, our species could run out of tomorrows.

VICTORIA YOUTH COUNcil's brisk news letter electrified any number of its readers in its last issue by requesting the services of "One daredevil stuntman who is willing to fall down the waterfall at China Beach."

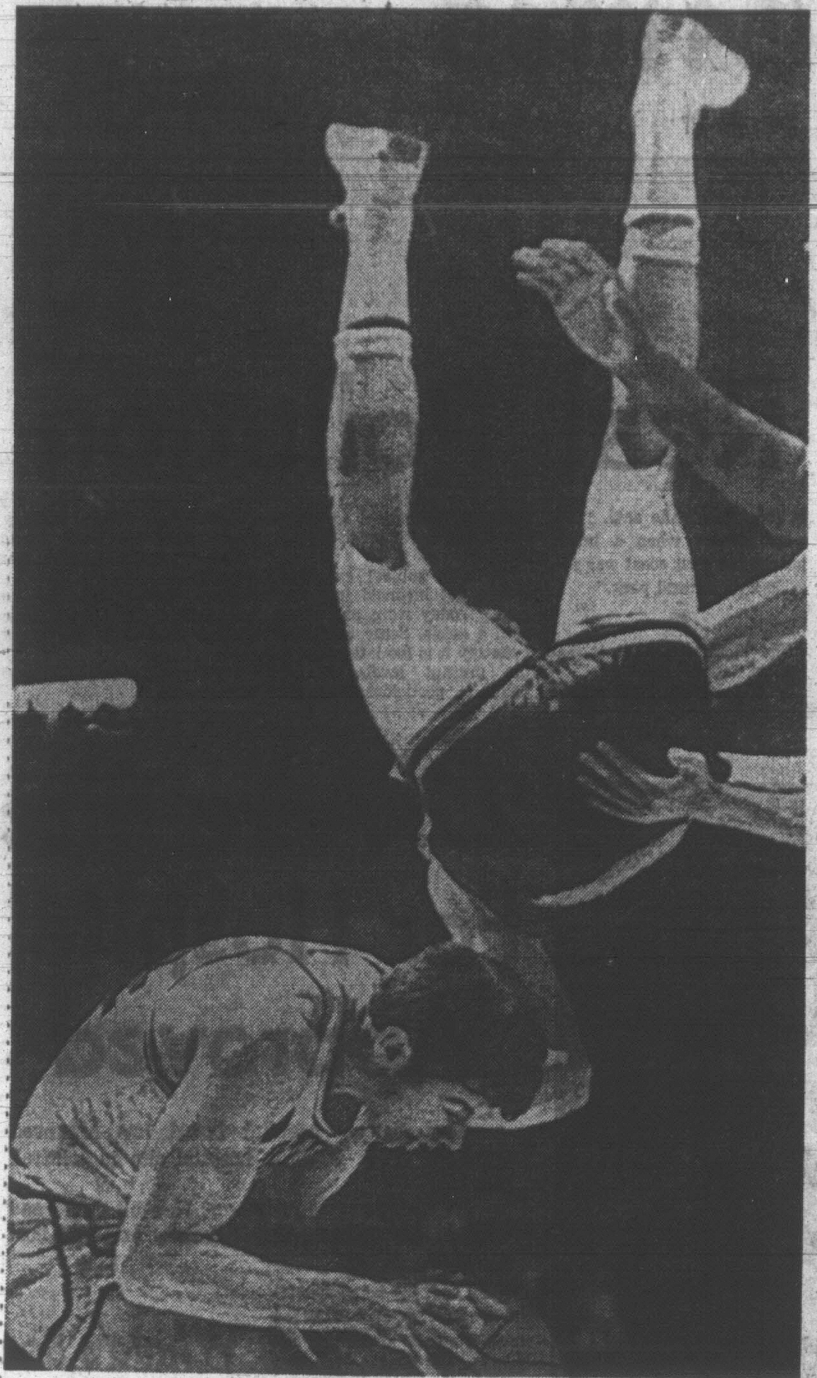
I'm told the invitation to plunge down this Niagara-in-miniature was no more than a bit of funning.

"But what surprised us," said one of the young men concerned, "is that we got a fast reply from a daredevil stuntman willing to volunteer."

There at the moment, the matter rests. And possibly just as well, since the story is that the last falls-rider took a cruel beating!



UP, UP, AND AWAY!

Going into flying spin as Illinois rival comes down with rebound is University of Minnesota centre Larry Mikan. Action was in basketball game at University of Illinois Assembly Hall while host team was on way to narrow, 75-73 triumph. (AP Wirephoto)

Vancouver Centennials have stepped away on the right foot at Vernon and Victoria Cougars hope to follow the fashion tonight at Kamloops.

Centennials opened their portion of the best-of-seven B.C. Junior Hockey League semi-final playoffs Tuesday by upsetting the league-winning Essos at Vernon by a 5-4 count in a struggle that went into a second, sudden-death overtime session.

Cougars open the other half of the semi-final set tonight with Victoria coach Doug Anderson concerned over one major problem — a broken bone in Dale Pennock's right hand.

PLANS SHIFT

If Pennock is unable to play, Anderson plans to move either Murray Kennett or Lon Miles back from their line with centre Alex Shibicky to partner Gerry Bond on defence.

Scott Munro would then be moved into the Shibicky line.

Randy Bock and Laurie Moore will form the other defensive pairing with Chris Riddell centering for scoring champions Bruce Cowick and Ted Plowe.

Rob Little will form the other line with Shayne Webster and Pat Askew with Ed Forslund starting in goal.

Second game in the series is set for Thursday in Kamloops with the third and fourth games moving to Victoria on Saturday and Sunday in Memorial Arena.

DICK GETS WINNER

Alex Dick's goal at 51 seconds of the second overtime period decided the issue in Vernon after Essos and Centennials had traded goals thoughout the game.

Other Vancouver socrers were Neil Murphy, Dennis Metcalfe, Larry Simons and Lloyd Bittner.

SHARP GOALTENDING

Lionel Trudell was outstanding in the Centennials' net as Vernon outshot the visitors, 40-24.

Vernon outshot Vancouver, 7-3, in the first overtime session before Dick scored in the sudden-death period.

Bittner knotted the score to send the game into overtime at 17:08 of the final regulation period before 1,525 fans.

Second game in the series is scheduled for tonight in Vernon.

Hard-Won Experience Brings Boxing Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Panamanian Ismael Laguna learned the value of experience the hard way, then used it to wrest the world lightweight boxing championship from young Mando Ramos.

The end came after the ninth round Tuesday night at the Sports Arena before 15,577, with Ramos cut near both eyes and bleeding profusely. Under California rules it went as a ninth-round knockout.

Manager Jackie McCoy decided Mando had absorbed enough punishment from the sharp-shooting Laguna, who won and lost the title when he was 21 in bouts with Carlos Ortiz in 1965.

"When I fought Ortiz, I had no experience and that's why I lost," Laguna said. "Now I'm 26 and I have the experience."

Laguna weighed the lightweight limit of 135 with Ramos one-half pound lighter. And the gate hit $150,081 with Laguna getting only $10,000 to $100,000 for the man who put the title on the line and lost it.

CUT IN SECOND ROUND

The Panamanian opened the cut near Ramos' left eye in the second round and worked on it continuously with left jabs and straight rights as he fought at long range.

Ramos, who won the title on Feb. 18, 1969, stopping the late Carlos (Teo) Cruz, landed the harder punches but Laguna said: "I wasn't hurt at any time."

Czech Star Leads

LJUBLJANA (CP-AP) — Ondrej Nepela, 19-year-old Czech student whose hobby is horseback riding, held the lead today after compulsory figures were completed in the men's singles of the world figure skating championship in this Yugoslav town.

He collected 1,193.1 points from the six compulsory figures.

Tim Wood, 22, of the United States, defending world champion, was in second place with 1,184.8 points.

Wood, a specialist in free-style skating, is expected to challenge Nepela's lead Thursday night, when free-style figure skating is on the program for men's individual competition.

CANADIAN IS 12TH

Gunter Zoeller, 22, of East Germany remained in the third place with 1,163.0 points and Patrick Pera of France was fourth with 1,146.8.

Compulsory figures account for 50 per cent of the total points earned in the individual figure skating. The other 50 per cent will be earned in the free skating.

David McGillivray, 20, of Toronto, Canada senior men's champion, was 12th with 973.9 points. Toller Cranston, 20, of Toronto, runner-up for the Canadian crown, was 15th with 942.6.

SIGNING contract for 1970 National League baseball season Tuesday was Atlanta first-baseman Orlando Cepeda, who had been holding out for $90,000, but it is reported to have accepted slight cut from last year's $83,000 salary.

Winds Buffet Citrus Open

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Bill Collins and a pair of youngsters trying to break in on the Professional Golfers Association tour, shot 67s Tuesday to grab the first-round lead in the $35,000 Florida Citrus open golf tournament.

Collins blistered the front side with a five-under-par 31 but then high winds buffeting the back side held him to par.

Mike Morley, a first-year player from North Dakota, shot a sensational 30 going out but he, too, met the high winds and settled for a one-over-par 37 on the back nine.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot 34-36—70.

Twenty-two golfers conquered par over the 6,768-yard layout at the Lone Palm Golf Club.

The Citrus Open is a satellite tournament for the Citrus Invitational opening Thursday at Orlando.

No Rinks Undefeated In Canadian Curling Race

By BILL WALKER

WINNIPEG—Manitoba stirred up the storm, and that's not a mere figure of speech. But British Columbia was to put it all in perspective a few hours later.

This was Day Two in the Brier—the 1970 Canadian curling championship at the Winnipeg Arena. And if Monday's first draws held any surprises, they were paled in comparison to what occurred Tuesday.

True to the record of such things like weather, Brier officials, unwittingly, or otherwise, laid on a mantle of white, which by morning had totalled eight and one-half inches, and by mid afternoon, one inch more.

But regardless of conditions which were described as "seasonable" the Brier proceeded. Schools in the city area remained open. Ones in outlying areas were closed. The curling championship had to go on, and did.

Four years earlier on the occasion of a normal evening, a similar happening had taken place.

On March 4, 1966 it started to snow and it wasn't to stop until the next day.

The city of Winnipeg was completly immobilized. Oh, sure, they got out of it, the Winnipeg folk, but it took three days.

It was overcome.

This year of the Manitoba Centenary, there was no holding back. It was an immediate problem and the Brier was on. Manitoba had a chance.

The Manitoba rink skipped by Don Duguid, pronounced "do-good" had until this date, upheld its end of the bargain, and wasn't about to default its part of any arrangement. Winner of two games Monday, Duguid had grabbed off another win against Ontario Tuesday morning, then was to run head on against B.C. in the afternoon.

But this was the "luck of the draw."

Or as skip Lyall Dagg of the Vancouver rink said at breakfast: "We will do better."

By "Better" he meant there shouldn't be a recurrence of the first day woes when B.C. lost to Ontario in a bit of a stunner.

To prove his point, Dagg started off the day's proceedings by thumping previously-unbeaten New Brunswick 11-6 to set the stage for a move to bigger events, which was Duguid.

Dagg somehow, and that means B.C. had survived a remarkable series of incidents to be tied up at 8-8 against Duguid playing the 13th. He had been one down playing the 12th after many misses, which to repeat would only prove embarrassing, and he had stolen one on the 12th to draw even.

Now it was the 13th end, an extra affair. Dagg had missed badly earlier, on the sixth, the eighth and the 10th ends, and the only reason his rink was alive was because his mates had made the shots necessary to possible success.

Dagg had been a miserable failure in this regard, up until this juncture. Then in the 13th, as he explained later, I said to my rink: "We've just got to be shot." He then did his part and chipped out a Duguid rock and rolled in behind a guard.

Duguid was forced to draw the button if he wanted victory, but he came up short of the rings.

That miss threw this year's edition of the Brier wide open.

For Bob Pickering of Avonlea, Sask. had moments earlier dropped from the unbeaten ranks. Pickering had been the victim of an upset by Ron Franklin and his Nova Scotia rink.

This had been a bit of a startler, because Franklin had always appeared to be in command, and in Winnipeg, his simple chore was to draw the eight-foot, which he did.

Those two events left the situation more confused than ever, for going into today's play, three teams were tied for the lead and no less than six teams out of 11 had lost only one game.

Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba were in command with three victories one defeat and B.C., Nova Scotia and New Brunswick were only a shadow behind with two victories and one loss.

Hard-luck rink at the moment has to be the Northern Ontario entry. In four draws, skip Tom Tod has won two and lost two. He defeated Quebec and Ontario on Tuesday and only lost earlier on Monday to Saskatchewan and Alberta by one point. No one else can say that. This Tod could be a vital factor in the final result for he still is a threat with his 2-2 mark.

But now it all becomes too easy. Everyone, who anytime was anyone, is in town for advice, or en route.

Ernie Richardson, a four-time winner of the Brier, is a radio announcer for a Yorkton station. Leo Sikes, secretary of the Ontario Association, is in attendance and hoping for a show of talent from his department. Alfie Phillips Sr., and Alfie Phillips Jr., Canadian seniors' and Brier champions of the past respectively, have been here. Dave Phillips, lead of the apparently ill-fated Ontario rink, is a brother of Alfie Jr.

But for the longevity mark, this record must belong to Emmett Smith.

He is the only surviving skip of those who competed in the first Brier in 1927. Smith called shots for Northern Ontario at that time. Eight rinks were entered in that competition and Nova Scotia, skipped by Murray MacNeill won it. But like everyone else, everything was better in his day, Smith implied. But he did appreciate the finer talent of the take-out game of the present competitors.

"Its the never-ending competition which produced the better players," he commented.

But there's still more help on the way for whoever needs it. Three-time champions Ron Northcott and Matt Baldwin are due today.

Meanwhile, there is the suggestion that the attendance record of 52,000 established in Saskatoon will be broken.

The crowd was understandably sparse Tuesday morning because of the unfavorable conditions. But it perked up in the afternoon with 4,000 in attendance.

And the Winnipeggers are eager. Duguid is their local choice, naturally. He curled third for Terry Braunstein in the 1965 Brier championship victory at Saskatoon.

Terry's big moment however, still has to be the 1958 Brier in Victoria.

"Wasn't that something," he quipped.

Braunstein, it will be recalled, lost in a playoff to Matt Baldwin. And the fact that a high school rink had come within an ace of winning the Canadian championship caused a change in the rules.

No longer are high school curlers eligible.

This year it doesn't matter, because the Brier now is a toss up.

Look at the standings and take your pick.

The only clue is that when the sun came out Tuesday, Dagg showed to the best advantage and won.

He was used to sunshine.

Winnipeggers and Duguid are not.

RATED THREAT to upset some of favored rinks, Tom Tod, skip of Northern Ontario entry, plans strategy during play in Canadian curling championship at Winnipeg.

Cable Curbs Were Needed, Says Gaudaur

OTTAWA (CP) — Football fans who enjoyed watching on television the home games of their Canadian Football League teams lost that privilege Tuesday because of a decision announced by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The CRTC announced a restriction on the importation by cable TV of CFL games in areas where local TV stations are blacked out, a system that used to allow subscribers to watch home games in living-room comfort.

Although the brief statement did not elaborate, Harry J. Boyle, commission vice-chairman, said in a later interview the decision means an outright ban on the importation by cable of home games in black-out areas.

The decision was greeted enthusiastically by Murray C. Chercover, president of the CTV network, and David Loeb, owner of the Ottawa Rough Riders of the Eastern Football Conference.

Mr. Chercover said in an interview the CRTC decision is an "appropriate and proper measure to prevent cable operators, as third parties, breaking contractual agreements between TV networks and the CFL concerning black-outs."

LOEB GRATIFIED

Mr. Loeb said he is "very gratified—it was a necessary step to keep Canadian football alive."

Mr. Loeb said he believes the ruling may be relaxed slightly after representatives of the commission, the CFL and cable operators have a chance to meet.

For example, he said, cable companies might eventually be asked to black out only a 35-mile radius around a game city, compared with the 75-mile limit that must be followed by TV stations, under an EFC ruling.

The CRTC announcement said the decision was taken in view of the inability of cable operators and league officials to reach a solution themselves.

A dispute has raged for several years between the CFL and cable companies over the circumvention of home-game blackouts.

Some of the stiffest opposition has come from officials of the Ottawa team which threatened early last year to ban telecasts of Rider home games unless cable companies respected the blackout.

ACTION NECESSARY

Jake Gaudaur, CFL commissioner, said Canadian football could not have survived without the CRTC's action.

It indicated the commission's interest "in promoting Canada," Mr. Gaudaur said in an interview.

Jack Baker, president of the Edmonton Eskimos, said in Edmonton: "It's the best news I've heard in years."

Although Edmonton was not affected by the problem the decision would strengthen the Ottawa and Toronto clubs financially.

Rogers Lehew, general manager of Calgary Stampeders, also praised the decision. Calgary is not affected, he said. But when gates in any CFL city were down, the rest of the teams suffer.

SHOULD HAVE TRIAL

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge today refused eral judge today refused to enjoin organized baseball's reserve clause system, holding that such a vital matter should have a full trial.

The injunction was sought by outfielder Curt Flood, fighting the trade that sent him from the St. Louis Cardinals to Philadelphia.

Flood charged in a Jan. 16 lawsuit the big leagues are joined in a "conspiracy" in violation of federal anti-trust laws through the "reserve clause" system. He alleged that it amounts to "peonage."

Judge Irving Ben Cooper, in a 55-page opinion after oral argument Feb. 3, wrote that to grant the preliminary injunction would subject baseball to "unfair surprise."

Stamps Get Bark In Evanshen Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference Tuesday completed a deal with Calgary Stampeders that may bring flanker Terry Evanshen back to Montreal.

General manager Red O'Quinn announced that the Als have dealt centre Basil Bark and a future draft choice to the Western Conference Stampeders in return for Evanshen.

REGULATION AGAINST SUBSTITUTES . . . . . . CALLED 'OUTDATED AND INHUMAN'

Veteran Curler Fights 'Those Archaic Rules'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Dr. Wen Macdonald of Charlottetown is leading this year's fight against what he calls "those archaic rules of play" in the Canadian curling championship.

Macdonald was furious Tuesday after failing to interest delegates attending the annual Canadian Curling Association meeting that a rule which limits a rink to four players for national competition is "outdated and inhuman."

The current rules states that if one of the four members of any rink is in the national tournament is unable to play because of illness or injury, the rink must compete with three players.

The rink is allowed to use one man as a replacement sweeper for the sick or injured teammate, but the substitute cannot throw a stone.

The consensus among the curlers—one that has been discussed at length for a number of years—is that each provincial champion should be allowed to name five players to compete in the national championship.

The fifth player would then become the fourth member of the rink if one of the regular members was unable to play.

There is a rule that also states that if in the event of sickness or unforseen problems, a member of any rink is unable to compete before the start of the tournament, a sustitute can be named.

In this case, the substitute must not have played in the provincial championship the same season.

"It's tradition that keeps this stupid rule in existence," said Macdonald, who has represented P.E.I. in the Canadian championship, the national seniors and the Canadian mixed.

Wally Ursuliak of Edmonton, who was with Hector Gervais when he won the world title in 1961, agrees.

"It's just plain stupid," Ursuliak says. "I remember in one Canadian championship my hand was swollen so bad I had to keep playing. I couldn't expect the rink to go out there with only three players."

"The CCA is solely to blame," says Macdonald. "Some of those follows on the association are so old they haven't seen a curling game for 20 years. Sixteen past presidents of the association are still alive and the CCA allows all past presidents a vote.

"This voting power should be redistributed to give the curlers a voice in the CCA matters. They the curlers) get nothing."

Macdonald said he attempted to introduce discussion on the subject at the CCA's meeting. "but they wouldn't even listen to me."

Horton to Aid Rangers In Hunt for Lost Lead

By The Canadian Press

New York Rangers will have defenceman Tim Horton from Toronto Maple Leafs in their lineup tonight as they go hunting for their lost lead in the National Hockey League's East Division.

The Rangers picked up the 40-year-old Horton Tuesday in a trade that will see the Leafs acquire four or five draft choices or young professionals to be announced later.

Horton was the only veteran among the Leaf defencemen but the rookies took his absence in stride and backed the team to a 4-1 victory over Oakland Seals Tuesday night.

In one other game, Chicago Black Hawks beat Los Angeles Kings 3-1 to move four points in front of fifth-place Detroit Red Wings in the battle for the last eastern playoff berth. The Hawks also moved into a tie with Montreal Canadiens, six points behind New York and seven back of the leading Boston Bruins.

MEET WINGS TONIGHT

The Rangers play host tonight to the Red Wings and desperately need a victory to keep them in contention for the division title. The New York squad has led the east most of the season but last weekend dropped one point behind the Bruins who are in action tonight at St. Louis against the Blues.

Next games: Tonight — Montreal at Pittsburgh; Detroit at New York; Boston at St. Louis; Philadelphia at Minnesota.

Other games have the Canadiens meeting the Penguins in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Flyers visiting Minnesota North Stars.

Horton, a veteran of 18 NHL seasons with the Leafs and three times selected to the first all-star team, will fill a gap in the battered Rangers defensive unit.

New York defenceman Jim Nielson was sidelined Feb. 13 with stretched knee ligaments and Brad Park suffered a broken ankle Feb. 19. Penalty-killing ace Don Marshall also is out of action.

"Naturally, we're most pleased to acquire a player of Tim Horton's calibre," said Ranger coach and general manager Emile Francis. "He's a proven NHL all-star and will be a definite asset to the New York Rangers."

HAD QUIT EARLIER

Horton, who has played in 1,185 NHL games, last spring announced he was retiring from hockey to devote more time to his doughnut franchise business in southern Ontario.

But the Cochrane, Ont., native was finally lured out of retirement by a large pay increase.

Harold Ballard, Leafs executive vice-president, said the trade was not prompted by any fears that Horton might again be a holdout next season.

"No, there was nothing like that," Ballard said. "The deal was made on the condition that Horton agree to report to New York, and he'll be there."

Walton's Point Spree Saves Berth for Bays

Doug Walton played a giant's role Tuesday night which enabled Oak Bay to withstand a challenge by Courtenay Towhees for the third and final Vancouver Island berth in the B.C. high school boys' basketball championship tournament, slated to begin next week in Vancouver.

Oak Bay's six-foot, three-inch centre fired an astounding 36 points in the sudden-death game to help down visiting Towhees, 61-54.

Walton's production was only a single point shy of his total output during three games in the Island tourney, in which he earned first all-star honors.

And Bays needed such a padding to protect a 32-17 first-half lead from a Courtenay rally in the second frame.

PRESSING DEFENCE

Coach Howard Ellis' Towhees rattled the Bay guards with a pressing defence in the second half, failing in their rally mainly because Walton connected for 20 of Bay's 29 points and 11 of the team's 14 in the final quarter, where Bays were outscored by seven points.

Duff McCaghey, the only other Oak Bay scorer in the final eight minutes, added 16 points overall from his forward slot.

Terry Moore and Paul Henderson each scored 13 points for Towhees while Mike Burns and Carl Vesterback, a second-team all-star selection in the Island tourney, each contributed 11 points.

Oak Bay coach Don Horwood admitted that his squad wasn't performing as well as expected since taking the Victoria league title with only one loss.

"But I think the boys should be settled down by the B.C. Doug seems to be out of his slump and that should make it easier for the others," he added.

Colquitz Advances To Island Tourney

Colquitz slipped through the only loophole Tuesday to gain admittance to the Vancouver Island junior high school boys' basketball championship tournament, slated for this weekend at Campbell River.

Fifth-place finisher in the Victoria-area zone tournament, Colquitz challenged and defeated Oak Bay, 36-21, to snap up the fourth and final berth at the University of Victoria.

Colquitz had the right to challenge Bays because the two teams had not met during the area tourney.

Vic Teng paced Colquitz with 21 points while Grant Boland led Bays with nine.

Lansdowne, Elizabeth Fisher and Central will join Colquitz and upper-Island reps Parksville, Ladysmith, Woodlands of Nanaimo and Campbell River when play starts for the Island title Friday.

Recipe of the Week

FROM BEA WRIGHT'S KITCHEN

THREE METHODS FOR COOKING SAUSAGES

Pan Fried Sausages: Place the sausages in a cold frying pan lightly greased and cook over medium heat, 15 to 20 minutes, turning often until they are browned evenly. Remove excess fat as it collects.

To keep the sausages more plump and leaner, prick with a fork and pour boiling water over them, cover and bring to a boil. Drain and fry slowly until browned evenly following the first method.

Baked Sausages: Spread sausages in a lightly greased shallow pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes in a 350 F oven. Turn the sausages once during the baking. This method is a time saver, if you are baking something else in the oven, at that time.

Broiled Sausages: Place the sausages in the broiler pan 5 to 6 inches from direct heat and broil 5 minutes on each side.

Note: To take the fat out of sausages put them into cold water and bring them to a boil, drain and cook the usual method.

Calgary School Board Votes 5.3 Mill Slash

CALGARY (CP) — The public school board has cleared the way for a tax reduction which could save the average city home owner $51 this year.

The board Monday set its 1970 budget at a firm limit of $64,871,528, approving a 5.3-mill drop in taxes. The saving will be passed on to property owners if city council does not increase its spending.

The board's new budget would produce a $37 saving in education for the ratepayer, while elimination of the four-mill provincial hospital tax and a two-mill increase in the provincial tax for education will net another $14 saving for the property owner with a $7,000 taxable assessment.

The city's 1969 mill rate was 65.5. If there is a 5.3-mill reduction the rate would be 60.3.

The new budget, $750,000 below a draft budget adopted last April, is $7,800,000 higher than school board expenditures in 1969 and calls for a $2,963,551 decrease in supplementary requisition demands on local taxpayers.

"Now we'll have to see if we can rely on the city to do its part for Calgary taxpayers," Trustee Deloy Sallenback said. "It's not a sure thing yet."

Students Get Seats

REGINA (CP) — Legislation that would give students seats on the University of Saskatchewan senate was introduced Tuesday in the legislature.

The measure advanced by Education Minister J. C. McIsaac would allow student councils at the Regina and Saskatoon campuses to appoint two students each.

The senate, the supreme academic decision-making body, now is comprised of university and government officials, members of convocation and representatives of community groups.

Claim Rejected

CALGARY (CP) — The Exchequer Court of Canada Tuesday ruled against a claim by a naval reserve officer that wardroom dues are income tax deductible as annual professional fees. Commander Robert Montgomery told the court that the dues were required by the armed forces to retain officer status and should be deductible under the Income Tax Act.

'Too Little, Too Late'

CALGARY (CP) — The executive director of the Canadian Wildlife Federation says the new Canada Water Act may be too little, too late. "The new water act seems at first glance to bristle with defences against water pollution, but actually it nips only at the edges of the problem," Richard C. Passmore said in an interview.

Penalties Sought

REGINA (CP) The Saskatchewan government remains strongly opposed to legalization of marijuana for non-medical use and will urge the federal government to institute more severe penalties for such use, Premier Ross Thatcher said Tuesday.

Lotteries Allowed

REGINA (CP) — Charitable or religious organizations in Saskatchewan may hold lotteries with prizes up to $25,000, Attorney-General D. V. Heald told the legislature Tuesday. Under new regulations, the attorney-general may issue licences for big-prize lotteries and local authorities may grant them for lotteries with prizes up to $1,000.

FOR DISCRIMINATION

Alberta Indians Ask Prosecution

EDMONTON (CP) — The Indian Association of Alberta said Tuesday that school boards and their teaching staffs should be liable to prosecution in cases of discrimination against Indian students.

The association, which represents 27,000 treaty Indians in Alberta, asked that the revised school act contain provisions to prohibit "unseemly racial acts" against Indian students.

The association's brief was presented by its president, Harold Cardinal, during the first day of a two-day hearing by the legislature's standing committee on public affairs, agriculture and education.

Cardinal said the association had documented various types of discriminatory behavior and educational policies that effectively emphasized the social gap between Indian communities and town populations.

These "deter Indian students from attending school regularly and earning the academic achievements of their non-Indian counterparts."

The problem of the Indian student as a drop-out is national, he said.

Statistics indicate only 50 per cent of Indian students go beyond grade 6, about 61 per cent fail to reach grade 8 and 97 per cent fail to reach grade 12.

"Amongst the non-Indian population of Canada only about 12 per cent of those who enter grade 1 fail to make it as far as grade 12."

Cardinal also requested the government withhold the section of Bill 35, the new school act, which will allow participation by native people on local school boards.

"Our attitude is that passing this section would permit new advanced involvement between Indian reserve representatives and provincial education jurisictions at a time when we as treaty Indians have not yet had our legal status and educational rights reconfirmed by the government of Canada."

PUBLIC OPINION HAMPERS ANTI-INFLATION BID

Business Gains from Rising Prices: Poll

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Some idea of the complexity involved in the government's hope of winning a voluntary price-wage restraint is seen in the fact that the majority of Canadians (58 per cent) say that business and manufacturers together are gaining most from rising prices. Only 8 per cent say this is true for labor.

Moreover, this majority belief is maintained throughout all occupational groups. Among executives and professional segments 57 per cent think this; among sales and clerical workers 68 per cent do so.

In skilled and unskilled labor 52 per cent think this is true, while among farmers and others the level is 50 per cent. In each case, only a small percentage say labor is gaining most.

Gallup Poll interviewers handed a scientifically selected sample of men and women a card, listing six occupations and asked: "Who's gaining most from rising prices — farmers, labor, business, manufacturers, professional, or white collar workers?"

The table below compares attitudes in the various occupations, with that of the Canadian average.

		Opinion Among These Groups
	Total	Executive Managers	Sales and Clerical	Labor	Farm and Others
Manufacturers gain most	32%	30%	47%	30%	31%
Business	26	27	21	32	19
Professional people	14	10	12	15	18
Labor gains most	8	15	11	4	5
White collar workers	7	4	2	6	13
Farmers	1	1	1	1	..
Other	3	3	1	4	4
Can't say	9	10	5	8	10
	100%	100%	100%	100%	100%

During the past 20 years, belief that business gains most from rising prices has grown considerably, while the opinion that professional workers benefit the most has doubled. To show how the pendulum of public opinion has swung on this question, here is how Canadians thought in 1951, as compared to today.

These gain most from rising prices:

	1951	Today
Manufacturers	35%	32%
Business	16	26
Professional people	6	14
Labor	6	8
White collar workers	5	7
Farmers	10	1
Other	8	3
Can't say	14	9

Canadians hold much the same opinions whether they live in large or small cities, towns, villages or on farms.

Montreal Mail Moving Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Inside post office employees in Montreal were back at work today following a one-day slowdown Tuesday when more than 1,000 attended a "study session."

A post office spokesman said the day shift reported on time today. But only 25 per cent of the 400-worker overnight shift in the city had worked.

There are 3,700 inside postal workers in Montreal. About 1,000 attended a study session at east-end Paul Sauve Arena Tuesday to discuss a national control proposal. Postal officials said the turnout by employees resulted in a 48-hour delay in mail delivery.

"There will be some mail delivery today," the post-office spokesman said, "although not as much as we have on hand. We couldn't deliver to sub-stations Tuesday."

Mail for out-of-town points also was not dispatched.

WILL GO TODAY

"We didn't have workers to take the mail to outgoing points but all the mail on hand today will be delivered for points outside Montreal."

Incoming mail, delayed in railway stations or at airport terminals Tuesday, was to be picked up today for delivery. Over-all there will be about a 24- or 48-hour delay in all mail delivery.

City Postmaster Hector Cormier told a news conference Tuesday things "were fine until noon" after which the work slowdown began.

In Ottawa, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the study session had been called by the postal sorters' union to explain terms of the offer made by the government on current negotiations, which broke down Monday.

Neither side in the dispute has made public government offers or union demands for a new contract, to replace one that expired Sept. 30.

Involved in negotiations with Ottawa are the Letter Carriers Union of Canada and the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The city's mailmen, members of the Letter Carriers Union, were not involved in the study session Tuesday.

Kennedy Mobbed; 1 Arrested

DUBLIN (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy was mobbed briefly Tuesday night in the land of his forefathers by about 60 young Irishmen who assailed him as an "agent of U.S. imperialism."

Several people were injured slightly when the demonstrators rushed Kennedy's car kicking it and throwing placards as the Massachusetts Democrat left Trinity College after a speech. One demonstrator was arrested.

As Kennedy spoke inside, the demonstrators outside displayed portraits of Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung alongside a "Down with Kennedy" banner. The young radicals plastered buildings around the campus with posters, some depicting Kennedy with fangs and a bloody dagger and others with the words "Down with Ed Kennedy, agent of U.S. imperialism."

The senator was invited to speak at Trinity by the college's historical society, which is celebrating its 200th anniversary. He spoke on Edmund Burke, the Irish statesman who befriended the U.S. cause before the American Revolution.

Foreign Ownership to Be Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — A report on foreign ownership of Canadian industry will be presented to the cabinet in about a month, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday.

Replying to opposition questions on the government's move to stop a deal that would have put control of Canada's richest uranium mine in foreign hands, Mr. Trudeau said a cabinet minister would submit recommendations to the cabinet for study.

He didn't name the minister, but it is thought to be Herb Gray, minister without portfolio.

Outside the House Mr. Trudeau told reporters he assumed parts of the report would be made public, but he didn't say how much of it or when.

HOLD HALF NOW

He said the government stepped in to stop the sale of Roman Corp. which controls 25.5 per cent of Denison Mines Ltd. because, "If this particular transaction had taken place, the result would have been that less than 10 per cent of Canada's known uranium reserves would have been controlled by Canadians.'

More than 50 per cent of known reserves now are under Canadian control.

Mr. Trudeau said the decision to stop the sale was taken because of the magnitude of the Denison operation.

He agreed Canada has control over export and price of uranium "but it is important also to control the property." He understood the proposed Denison transaction was to have been announced Tuesday.

In the Commons he said the government had received no official word of the takeover. It acted on knowledge from newspaper reports.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) said it was not in keeping with Mr. Trudeau's responsibility to make an announcement "on a hypothetical basis."

ASKS ABOUT OFFICES

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the "veto" of uranium company takeovers would extend to movement of head offices from Canada.

Mr. Trudeau called the question hypothetical.

David Lewis (NDP—York South) welcomed the action. He suggested the Atomic Energy Control Act be strengthened to prevent takeovers of uranium producers even before the threat appears.

IF OTTAWA BLOCKS MINE SALE PLANS

Denison Head Threatens to Leave Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Roman came to Canada from Slovakia in 1938 to work as a farm laborer for 50 cents a day.

Now a multi-millionaire, he may move to the United States where he would have "more opportunity" to add to his fortune.

Roman, 48-year-old chairman of Denison Mines Ltd. and Roman Corp. Ltd., threatened Tuesday to move if the government blocks the takeover of Denison by foreign interests.

Roman Corp. is negotiating to sell its 25.5 per cent interest in Denison to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., which is 65.7 per cent owned by Continental Oil Co. of Delaware and 21.9 per cent by Hudson's Bay Co. of London.

"With my nature, which is non-political, I would have more opportunity there (the U.S.) than Canada gives me," Roman said in an interview.

His threat came after Prime Minister Trudeau interrupted a Commons debate on wheat policy Monday to say the government had learned a substantial interest in Denison, Canada's largest uranium mining company, might pass into non-Canadian hands.

"Our reservations about this change of control of Canadian uranium resources are such that, if necessary, the government will introduce an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act to take effect as of today to prevent such a transaction," the prime minister said.

The prime minister said Tuesday the government has received no official notification of a foreign takeover of Denison and his statement Monday was based on "hypothetical" newspaper reports.

But Roman said he sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau Monday night asking for a meeting to discuss any possible legislation to keep control of Denison in Canada.

"I resent that they think that because the chairman is an immigrant boy from Slovakia and the president is a Polack we are third-class citizens," Roman said.

Roman, just 16 when he moved to Canada, said his thinking about leaving the country "was done under great emotional strain." He said the government could not keep control of Denison in Canada if he moved to the U.S. with his stock.

"When I go across the border, I carry with me enough to give someone else the control of Denison anyway.

"What are they going to do — stop me at the border and take my stock certificate away?"

He defended his proposed sale of controlling interest in Denison.

"I believe that between Hudson's Bay and Denison, a Canadian-based natural resources company would be formed that would be second to none."

He said if he moved to the U.S., he would remain in the natural resources business.

A company spokesman said he did not mean the companies would move their head offices out of Canada.

"He meant he personally would move."

Roman's departure from Canada would be the finishing chapter in an incredible success story. After working as a farm laborer, serving in the army and as editor of a Slovak weekly newspaper, Roman took his first crack at the stock market in 1945 — he lost his entire savings of $2,000.

But in 1946 he formed a mining syndicate with $5,000 and in four years his personal income soared to more than $1,000,000.

Taking part in a massive 1954 uranium find near Blind River helped him climb to his present position with Denison Mines.

Despite his wealth, Roman has said money isn't his primary goal.

"When did I make up my mind to become a millionaire?" he asked once.

"Well, actually never. You see, money has always been secondary to me.

"Money itself is not my goal. It is only a means to an end and that end is a secret."

Roman, who adheres to his Catholic background, was the only Canadian lay delegate to the Vatican Ecumenical Council in 1954.

He lives with his wife and six of his seven children at nearby Gormley, Ont., where he raises Holstein cattle. He says he puts his religious beliefs into effect at work.

Marijuana 'Least Hazardous'

MONTREAL (UPI) — Marijuana is less dangerous than either alcoholic beverages or readily-available non-prescription pharmaceutical preparations, a Montreal doctor told the local bar association.

Dr. John Unwin told the lawyers, "of all the drugs in popular misuse marijuana is by far the least hazardous," and said he was more concerned by the effects of current legislation on young people than by their use of marijuana.

While stressing that he was not trying to present marijuana as good or desirable, Dr. Unwin said describing the drug as either dangerous or harmless was as silly as saying aspirin was either dangerous or harmless.

Marijuana does not result in physical dependency although psychological dependency may develop in the person using it as an escape but where potential hazards of drugs are concerned, Dr. Unwin said marijuana must be placed "far down the scale".

British Women Don't Try Harder

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The era of equal pay for women may be just around the corner in Britain, but the principal of a school for business studies here is beginning to wonder just how interested women really are in equal opportunity with men.

Dr. Arthur F. Earle, 49-year-old former Alcan and Hoover executive from Toronto, who heads the London Graduate School of Business Studies, says the school has had only four women students since it was started in April, 1965. It has none at all this year.

"They just do not apply," says Dr. Earle, whose college turns out executives trained in various aspects of business management. Hundreds of men have enrolled for the courses tailored for post-graduate students, "executive development" candidates, senior executives and specialists of various kinds; since the school, one of two such in Britain, was set up with £5,000,000 ($13,000,000) subscribed by British companies.

All candidates, male and female, have to take the same gruelling, 3½-hour test in verbal and mathematical reasoning, a whole series of questions with multiple choices. After that comes a searching interview.

"We are looking for high motivation and the will to make a successful business management career," says Dr. Earle. He believes there are women with the necessary drive and dedication, but they just aren't coming forward.

"It's strange, because it seems to me that here's a way of assuring oneself of equal opportunity.

"But I believe it's simply that women don't think of it," he added in an interview, referring to the higher echelons of management. He thinks it's party the fault of parents: when their daughters leave university and seek advice on a career, they recommend taking a secretarial course.

APOTHECARY JARS OF THE PAST

Pharmacists' wives planning the annual spring bursary dance of the Ladies' Pharmaceutical Auxiliary would like to have used historic apothecary jars from the collection of a local firm as decorations, but the rare pieces are irreplaceable. So convener, Mrs. C. F. Boughey, centre, and co-convener Mrs. Doug Crosby, left, are planning something more orthodox. Pictured with the conveners is auxiliary president Mrs. R. B. Bates. Funds raised by the dance, which is to be held Saturday at the Red Lion Inn, go towards bursaries for Uvic and UBC students.

Box of Grasshoppers Gift to Social Worker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bridget Bird is where she thinks the action is—protecting children's rights.

Mrs. Bird, 23, is a social worker with the protection department of the Catholic Family and Children's Services.

Her job is to investigate complaints of child neglect and in severe cases to remove the child from the home, permanently or temporarily.

"Children have the right to care, to parents, to a home—a home where they are wanted," she said in a recent interview.

"It is a comparatively new idea that a child is an individual, like any adult, and has rights.

"Usually when we investigate the parents are upset and want to pour out their feelings. They are filled with guilt.

"We want to help them sort out their problems—not take away their kids. Beating or neglect is a result of pressures. If we can alleviate the frustrations we won't have the sweat."

Mrs. Bird has spent nearly three years in social work, two years in Merritt.

"It was fun working in the country," she said.

"Things were bad in Merritt, but there was never the same dimension of distress as here. There's something about bashing people one on top of the other in a city, in crowded rooms and box-like apartments."

Her job there was different in other respects, too. One pensioner refused to come and see her, so she went to him—on horseback.

He rewarded her with a box of live grasshoppers for fish bait.

Alliance Francaise to Hear Professor from Sorbonne

The official speaker of l'Alliance Francaise de Paris, Yves Rey-Herme, will be in Victoria Friday for a meeting of the local Alliance. His topic will be Ecrivains du XX Siecle Face au Probleme du Mal.

M. Rey-Herme is professor of French literature at the Sorbonne, and is director of the summer school of the Alliance Francaise de Paris. He is also an authority on contemporary theatre and has published several books on the work of Alain Fournier, Jacques Riviere and Charles Peguy.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the auditorium, 112 Cornet Building (the former social sciences building), University of Victoria.

Princess Margaret Lets Her Hems Down

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret is the first of the British royal women to buy a maxi coat. She chose a grey tweed one which she wears to take her two children, Lord Linley and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones — for walks and also to go shopping and driving.

It's a natural for Margaret. For some time, the fashion-loving princess has been choosing long-skirted dresses for private parties as well as official functions. She thinks they make her look taller. Princess Margaret always has been very conscious of the fact that she's only five feet two inches in shoes.

Her husband, Lord Snowdon, likes her in the longer lengths, too. He takes close interest in everything she wears, offering frank comments and suggesting alterations if he thinks they're needed.

Princess Margaret usually accepts his verdict but there have been occasions when they've disagreed and a lively argument resulted.

Tony has done some work as a designer of women's styles. Once he arranged a fashion show of ski clothes and winter sports outfits, but that was before his marriage.

While Princess Margaret and Tony were in Japan last year, opening British Week in Tokyo, the princess was presented with a wall banner of orange and gold embroidery. Tony decided it would make her an evening dress.

"There's hardly enough for a swim suit," the princess remarked. So the dressmaker was told to use the banner for the top, adding flame chiffon folds to the floor and wide sleeves trimmed with gold embroidery. Ever since it's been Princess Margaret's favorite after-dark outfit.

She's just acquired the very newest craze for daytime wear — a pair of soft leather boots, cowboy style, with square silver heels that clatter as she walks. A sombrero goes with them but it's said the princess was somewhat put out when a certain member of the royal circle asked:

"Where's your horse?"

Mitzou Scores for Spanish Fashion

By BLANCA NOVO

MADRID (UPI) — Quite a few exhausted foreign buyers, mainly from the United States, took their seats at Mitzou's, unaffected by the exquisite decor of her premises in Serrano Street—Madrid's version of Carnaby Street. They were fearing another slow-motioned fashion show like the massive one, organized by 10 Spanish high-fashion firms, they had attended earlier.

To their relief, five first-class models, moving to a dynamically sophisticated music, presented Mitzou's collection spring-summer 1970 in 30 minutes.

Mitzou is a vivacious, pretty young lady whose 10 years of hard work and devotion to fashion, sky-rocketed her into the Spanish fashion arena.

Some fifty creations made up her superb all leather and suede collection. But, please, don't label leather with the sports wear tag. To prove that it is high fashion, Mitzou was extremely clever in presenting at the same time a few models made up in leather and material. The first ones looked more supple and clingier.

"Real high-fashion, like art, is always difficult to materialize," Mitzou said when asked why she chose leather and suede. "However, I wanted to show the world that these two hides, properly combined, and given attention as to the choosing of colors and cut, could be ideal materials for real high-fashion."

Nobody before Mitzou related pleated skirts to suede and leather, or two-color striped blouses to go with jumpsuits of matching crease-line pipings in suede. Again, nobody so far, had thought in terms of leather and suede lace and braiding, or elaborate seaming designs in such hides.

Leather matching linings, bindings and facing were side fixtures Mitzou heightened to give the exclusive touch to her collection. The sometimes daring, and other subtle color combinations added to her young, fresh and elegant fashion.

To all lights, Pertegaz (the Spanish fashion wizard who once declared he wanted "real competition from within Spain") may stop wishing for Mitzou seems here to stay. She said "people should stop looking for a country's fashion personality or look."

She thinks it would be wise for big designers to come to terms among themselves and decide on a set of general rules to go by in every fashion season.

Another side of Mitzou's enterprise is her connection with the filming industry. She already has done the costumes for "Valdez is Coming," a Burt Lancaster-Susan Clark film.

Her next move into this field will be the design of something spectacular for her husband Jose Maria Izquierdo's script of Nobel prize-winner Jacinto Benavente's "Bonds of Interest."

Cesar Fernandez Ardavin—the Spanish film director who won the Gold Bear of Berlin's Film Festival in 1960 with his "El Lazarillo del Tormes" — will direct the original treatment given by Izquierdo to the Spanish Benavente's classic in his script.

Natalie Wood, Jean Shrimpton, Henry Fonda and James Coburn, some of Mitzou's real-life clients, may follow Lancaster and want to become her screen clients too.

Heels Rise as Hems Drop

By FLORENCE De SANTIS

The higher heel has been coming on ever since the first midi skirts appeared, and now that the midi has been endorsed by Paris and Rome, high heels will be necessary for the right figure proportions, just as low heels were for the above-knee skirt.

Straps are back, circling the ankle, spanning the instep, crossing to make a "T." The sling-back returns, while cut-outs include the open toe, the slit instep and the cut-out side.

From the forties, the platform sole returns, now in new color treatments, such as El Greco's pumps which are half white leather, half black patent, the colors reversed on the platform to accent it.

Where it's been color which chiefly distinguished shoes in the past few years, it's now detailing, in the manner of the thirties.

The midi skirt means that clothes will become dressier, even for a day, so smooth, soft leather (they used to call it kid) and brushed suede will overtake patent as new favorites.

But a new patent called "crushed" or "crinkled" keeps this leather on the scene, as it looks softer than the usual smooth patent.

Antiqued effects continue to be used, especially now in smooth leather, and certain grained leathers have caught on from their endorsement in Paris and Rome, notably snakeskin in its natural color mix of black, white and grey markings.

Men's Party Favors Suit Golf Players

By PENNY SAVER

"It will be fairly easy," said my neighbor, scratching her head, "to find little gifts for the women, but I really don't know what to do for the men."

She had volunteered to arrange the party for some very good friends who had been transferred out-of-town, and had run into a snag when she began planning the games that would be played.

I had been sullenly contemplating the weeds growing between the crocuses, so she came to lean on the fence and ask for my help.

"How much," I replied, relieved to have something less strenuous to worry about. about.

"There aren't many games so I can go up to $2, though I wound't mind staying under," was the reply.

"Any hobbies common to them all?"

"Just golf."

"Super, I know just what you need," I said with just a twinge of disappointment that her problem should be so easy to solve.

Just the day before I had been looking over a display of nicly boxed golf whimsies that must have been designed by someone who once got stuck for prarty favors for men.

The least expensive is a 69 cent golf ball — or should I say goof ball? This ball is carefully made to NOT go straight and a note on the package warns against using it for anything except putting.

This ball wouldn't stand up to a close inspection, but it would probably do for last minute substitutions. It was the only one of the novelties that didn't come in a hinged plastic box.

The other novelties are $1.50 each and are almost practical.

Three of the four different sets are fancy gold plated golf ball markers. One has a red sleeve that fits over the top of the club when not in use. A gold-colored disc slips out of this to do the marking.

Another marker clips into a pocket and looks not unlike a key chain while the third is topped by a fluffy mink head with eyes and a tiny beak.

The fourth set contains two gold colored golf tees and a gold golfer's shoe horn.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon if you would like to know where to find these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Hosts Brained

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We have some friends who are about our age (middle-aged), who are very charming people. They entertain at home a lot, and we have always enjoyed their company.

They have suddenly started something new. They invite people over, and the evening's "entertainment" is to play some sort of game. These games are competitive, of course, and require a knowledge of history, geography, politics, literature, opera, "words"—and so on. It's sort of a "how smart are you?" thing I am frank to admit that I don't care for this kind of evening because I am not as well informed as some of the others, and I don't like to be put on the spot that way. I know a few others who don't care for "brain games" either.

If I wanted to show how smart (or dumb) I was, I would go on a quiz show. What is your opinion of such games?—Booby Prize.

DEAR BOOBY: They're wonderful for people who know all the answers and like the mental combat. But I think a host who would force an evening of "skull practice" on guests without being absolutely sure they were all eager to play, is inconsiderate. Next time, you (and the others who don't care for brain games) are asked to play, either speak the truth, or take the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: Some people can't resist the temptation to talk "shop." In this community lives a registered nurse who is such a person.

I recently attended a dinner party where this nurse was also a guest. Regardless of what the conversation started out to be, this woman always managed to turn it to her profession. Then she'd tell some "amusing" little inside stories about patients who were known to everyone in the company. Most of it was far from table talk, but she thought she was "entertaining." I thought she was disgusting.

I understand this nurse is very well trained and efficient in her field, but Abby, doesn't every nursing course include a lecture on "good taste" and common sense?—Irked.

DEAR IRKED: Every nursing course includes a lecture on ethics. That should cover it.

DEAR ABBY: You advised WITHHOLD MY NAME who was being married in a beautiful "dream" church ceremony not to use her daughter as flower girl. (The daughter had been born out of wedlock and she said everybody knew it.) Your reason being it would draw attention to that part of the bride's life which would be better off forgotten.

Since everybody knew it, it seems to me that it would only draw attention to the fact that the groom was more of a "man" than the child's natural father, and that the child is loved enough to be included from the beginning.

Where love exists, Abby, there is nothing to hide, past, present, or future.—Mrs. M.J.C.

DEAR MRS. M.J.C.: Now that you have pointed it out, I see it clearly. Thank you for writing. (P.S. Many others felt the same as you. People are wonderful.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED AGAIN IN EVANSTON, ILL.: Sorry, but I can't help you in the manner that you suggest. It might be in the interest of society to put the Pill into vending machines and require a prescription for cigarettes.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

KNIT AND CHAT

By MAY MAC LEAN

Danish Knitters Eliminate Seams

Recently I had the good fortune to accompany my husband to a conference at Copenhagen. It wasn't planned, and I didn't have much time, which made it all the more fun and enjoyable.

I had been in Copenhagen only once before when I was on my way to Norway, and as I had heard they had a very flourishing hand-knit trade, I was anxious to learn more about it.

I found several shops that sold nothing but yarn and wools and various art needlework supplies and two prominent shops that sold hand-knit sweaters that women knit in their homes. These are lovely and colorful, and are very well made. On the average these sweaters were selling for about $20, which by our North American standards is a bargain.

Being naturally curious, I examined the sweaters and found that they had all been worked on circular needles. As you know it is much easier, quicker and more interesting to do the colorful pattern on the knit rows, and with a circular needle, that is exactly all you do.

I found that they had stranded the yarn across on the wrong side of the work, not too loosely that it would catch, and not too tightly that it would pull and distort the pattern. It was interesting too, that the patterns had been designed so that the wool did not have to be stranded across more than four stitches.

This, I discovered, is the rule of thumb the Danes work to when designing these sweaters.

I also learned that many of these designs are typically Danish. They have been handed down through many generations and have meanings, much like the stitches in Aran sweaters.

As I said before circular knitting was used throughout, and it was so easy to see how this was accomplished with a raglan pullover.

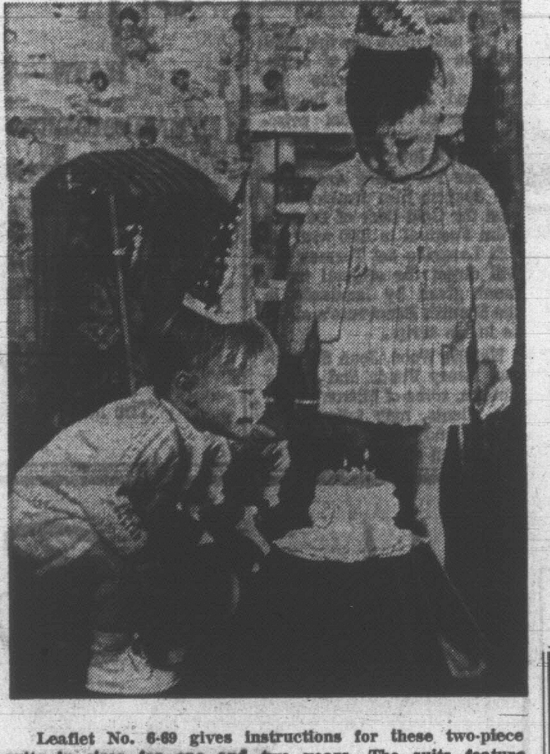
First the body part was knit to the armholes. Each sleeve is knit on four needles, increases for the shaping being made at the underarm.

At the beginning of the yoke, the sleeves are incorporated into the body part, then the decreases for the four raglan shapings are worked. Finally when all but the neck stitches remain, a turtle-neck collar is worked in ribbing. Thus the whole pullover can be knit without a single seam.

Next week I'll continue with the fascinating way they have for worked cardigans again on circular needles.

This week I am offering a two piece suit for a boy or girl, made from a double knitting weight of yarn. Instructions are given for either a pullover or cardigan, pants and the knife-pleated skirt. Sizes are for one and two years. Wouldn't they look adorable on twins?

To order Leaflet No. 6-69, send 35c in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques please). Your order must be accompanied with a stamped self addressed return envelope, long one if possible. Sent to: May E. Mac Lean, "KNIT AND CHAT", care of the Times. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering, and to allow two or three weeks for delivery.



Leaflet No. 6-69 gives instructions for these two-piece suits in sizes for one and two years. The suits feature a cardigan and a knife-pleated skirt for girls and pants for boys.

Spicy Experiments Require Caution

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — An open mind and a dab of caution both help when you are experimenting with spices. Don't be afraid to try a new one, but use it sparingly until you find out how much of it you and your family like.

That's the word from Marjorie Elwood, food consultant for the Canadian Spice Association.

If you are a novice at cooking with spice, she suggests beginning with a basic few.

You should have cinnamon, nutmeg, pepper and paprika. Paprika is very important, even if you use it just for adding color to the top of a casserole or stuffed eggs or a salad dressing.

"You'll need poultry seasoning or thyme. I'm partial to thyme because it's a little milder, and I use poultry seasoning for casseroles or put a pinch in soups.

"People should experiment and use spices in several dishes. Don't just use curry in a curry. When you buy a spice for a German or Italian dish, don't just save it for that dish.

"To get back to the basic list, if you like garlic at all, I think you might try garlic salt. Garlic powder is straight concentrated garlic, garlic salt is a mixture and if you use it you shoud cut down on the salt in a recipe."

GET MORE FLAVOR

She recommends putting whole cloves on the list and trying one or two in a pot roast or in simmered fresh fruit.

"When you can use whole spices, you get more flavor than you do from ground spices, but you can't use them in every recipe.

"If you can afford a few more, I think pepper berries are essential. All brides seem to get pepper mills these days.

"You should have bay leaves. A quarter of a leaf makes a difference to a gravy.

"Chili poweder may be necessary, since chili is such a popular thing now. You can use the powder in a stew or in a sauce for ribs.

"Oregano is necessary for the pizza fans, and it's very good with tomatoes or tomato mixtures.

"You almost have to have curry powder. You can use it in stuffed eggs, occasionally in soup. Don't use enough to make it recognizable, just enough to give the dish a different flavor. The same is true of ginger—try a pinch in vegetable sauces or with vegetables such as carrot and turnip, but not enough so people know what it is.

"Spices can make a good dish an excellent dish, or take it up in the gourmet class."

HEAT STEALS FLAVOR

She recommends that if you haven't used a spice before, you should use it sparingly and then increase it to your own and your family's taste.

"It's surprising how much you do increase them.

"Remember, you shouldn't keep spices more than a year and should keep them in a cool place. Heat can affect their flavor.

"Some of the newer products are helpful, especially for bachelor girls who haven't a lot of food stored.

"There are dried vegetable flakes, chopped dried onion, freeze-dried chives, lemon and orange peel.

"If you want information about spices and descriptions of them and how to use them, write to the spice companies. Most of them will send information free of charge."

Indian and Eskimo Portraits Canadian Artist's Specialty

OTTAWA (CP) — Dorothy Oxborough says painting white children and adults after Indians and Eskimos is "like celery after rhubarb."

The Calgary-born artist, who has lived in Ottawa since 1967, has specialized in portraits of Indian children and old people for 25 years. Her work is seen on stationery, calendars and Christmas cards across the country.

"I love to do Indian children—they're so fat and jolly—and I like to do the old people as a contrast. They have such marvellous faces, especially when they get all wrinkled."

In private life the artist is Mrs. H. A. Jackson and the mother of two boys. She now is studying advanced life drawing and working in ceramics at night school. But she has a commission to do 30 Eskimo children and is "just dying to get up north to do some sketching because there's a big difference between the facial structure of Indians and Eskimos."

Miss Oxborough first came to Ottawa 15 years ago, but was here only a short time when her husband, an employee of the Indian affairs and northern development department, was transferred to Halifax. During her 10 years there, she did pastel portraits of inshore fishermen—the ones who go out in dories and fish by hand.

"They are a dying breed," she says, "but they are so friendly and they have such terrific faces.

"I did one old man who had the flu and I had the flu at the same time, and I had to draw him in a loft where there was absolutely no heat, but we became good friends and he always got me salmon afterwards."

She has only one portrait of a fisherman left. The rest were sold in Nova Scotia, where she belonged to the Nova Scotia Society of Artists.

Miss Oxborough travels west every summer to sketch, and during the winter turns out finished pastels from her sketches. She says there is a good market in Western Canada for portraits of Indians and Eskimos.

"People aren't as Indian-conscious in Ottawa. They don't appreciate them as we westerners do, but it's beginning to catch on."

'Strong Arm' Tactics Charged

"Strong-arm tactics" in the automobile insurance industry were criticized in the legislature Tuesday by William Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet).

He said the government had forced motorists to buy compulsory insurance from companies which are "extorting" an extra $20 million in premiums for no-fault accident benefits coverage.

He read a letter from a State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company underwriter last month to a man whose insurance rates had gone up following the acquisition of drivers' licences by two sons.

The letter said that even though the man explained his sons would not drive the family car, he should relinquish their drivers' licences to the insurance company in order to get a reduction in premiums.

"If that's not strong-arm tactics, I don't know what is," said Hartley, replying to an earlier interruption by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson who objected to the use of the phrase on the government.

Hartley also tabled a circular sent by the Insurance Agents Association of B.C. to independent agents in the province which warned that the insurance "market" is now "tightening and will likely become much tighter in the next few months."

The circular says "any agent who fails to fairly spread his automobile portfolio is in danger of jeopardizing his entire market and will have no one to blame but himself should this happen."

It says the association will assist in placing of "risks" and reminds agents that every applicant for insurance must be served so long as he is eligible to drive a motor vehicle.

"The public should not become aware that any market problem exists as this can only serve to further damage the image of this industry and, unfortunately, at the present time, the image is not without tarnish in the public mind," says the circular, signed by George Rickart, secretary-manager, and dated Feb. 25, 1970.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre), chairman of the committee, said Hartley's remarks to the house were an affront to the committee and should be discussed in the committee.

'Deny Car Insurance Firms Right to Sue Each Other'

By BRUCE YEMEN

A suggestion that automobile insurance companies be denined the right to sue each other for motor vehicle accident damages was made to the legislative committee on automobile insurnace Tuesday.

Bryan Williams of Vancouver representing the insurance subsection of the B.C. Bar Association, said the proposal would result in reduced premiums for the total car insurance package.

He was opposing a provision passed by the legislature last year but not yet proclaimed into law, that property damage resulting from traffic accidents be totally exempt from law suits above the value of $250.

PROTEST YOURSELF

The legislative committee is studying whether the provision should be brought into effect. It would leave drivers responsible to protect their own vehicles either by collision coverage or extra-careful driving for damages in excess of $250. Damages below $250 could be sought from other drivers in small debts court.

Williams said the $250 limit would fail to do what it had set out to do — reduce legal costs to insurance companies by limiting the number of actions arising out of accidents.

The prospect of recovering $250 for damage to one's own car plus a possible $250 that might be assessed against you for another car would be enough to encourage most companies to go to court, he said.

CUT LEGAL COSTS

The law subsection proposal would allow individuals to sue for any amount of damage not covered by their own insurance companies through collision insurance.

But the insurance company paying those costs to its own insured would not be allowed to go to court to recover that amount from another insurance company. This would cut legal costs, Williams said.

There would be some increase in collision covereage rates, he said, but the over all package would decrease because of savings in legal and administrative costs.

People with older cars should still have the right not to buy collision coverage, Williams said, and they would have the right to sue for full damage to their vehicles against the compulsory liability policy of the other driver.

He agreed with committee chairman Herb Capozzi that the plan was in effect a no-fault system for the insurance companies, with drivers retaining the right to sue.

This would solve the problem of the government's proposed $250 limit which would leave damage to property other than motor vehicles virtually uncovered. Williams said.

CITES EXAMPLE

He cited the example of a gasoline truck involved in an accident crashing into a house or a business and damaging it. The damage would be virtually uncovered, he said.

As an alternate proposal in the event the committee could not accept the new idea, Williams suggested that the $250 law suit limit be reduced to $100, thus cutting down the incentive to go to court. As well, the provision should be restricted to motor vehicle damage only, leaving people free to sue for damages to all other forms of property.

The government's provision has previously been opposed by B.C. Hydro and Power Authority which fears huge losses to telephone poles and other equipment from vehicles.

COMPLICATIONS

He pointed out that the provision in the legislation has a maze of potential complications resulting from its non-application to non-residents, who would retain the right to sue for all damages. This could set up an "offshore" type of situation in which non-reisident companies gained advantages over resident companies.

Williams said he agreed with the aim of the B.C. legislation which is to cut court costs, including a great many borne directly by the public through operation of the court system, when the costs simply involve one insurance company trying to get money from another insurance company.

MORE MONEY? . . . IT'S EASY!

For automobile insurance companies that want to make more money, "it's as easy as taking candy from a baby," the legislative committee on automobile insurance was told Tuesday.

Byron Straight of Vancouver, an independent actuary who is assisting the committee in its study of car insurance premiums, said the techinques for making more money are simple.

"If I owned an insurance company . . . I would cream the business unmercifully," he said, by making insurance rates more and more precise for different categories of drivers.

He would, for instance, divide vehicles into various categories on the basis of how many miles they are driven to and from work each day instead of one general category for such cars.

This would enable him to set special rates for special drivers and attract new business, he said.

Asked why some insurance companies don't seem to be making much money, Straight said: "They're lazy, L-A-Z-Y."

But he told the committee that if every company adopted his mythical theoretical approach, the authorities would have to step in at some point to impose limits on premiums paid by bad drivers or those in high risk categories.

The lower the price offered to some drivers, the higher the price paid by others.

In fact, Straight said, the system carried to its ultimate end would involve everyone paying his own accident costs plus a basic amount for administration costs. And this would rule a number of drivers off the road.

As it it already, he said, young drivers pay hefty prices for insurance — and those prices don't necessarily cover the actual average costs of drivers in their category.

"I think it unconscionable that a 17-year-old boy . . . has to pay $409 for insurance," he said.

But the costs of levelling out rates are significant.

To put all unmarried males under 25 years of age on the same premium basis as married males, who get a lower rate, would add seven per cent to the cost of all other insurance, he said.

Straight told the committee at a previous meeting that he agrees with the need for government participation in automobile insurance to a certain extent.

They Do Don'ts Every Time

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

On that part of Rose-Blanshard Streets where cars move south on the divided highway, a series of signs are posted along the edge of the road. Each one presents the same message in bold, black letters. NO PARKING ANY TIME.

It seems to me the words are easy to understand. You're asked not to stop at any point in that section of the road.

Yet, the other day, between one and two in the afternoon, when a steady stream of cars was moving south, a car did slow to a crawl in the outside lane.

As others behind it also slowed, the driver of the first car (a grown man, by the way, not a youth) swerved over to curbside and stopped, right below one of the signs.

There was no hurry in the act. No quick stop and start. It appeared to be a fairly leisurely exercise that, as cars edged past, looked to include a last minute conversation with passenger who were being let out just about where Princess Avenue is now blocked by curbing.

This, of course, was not what you'd call a rush hour. There was traffic in the lanes running south but cars were not bumper to bumper.

Nevertheless, signs say distinctly — no stopping any time. Therefore, this driver was breaking the law and in a place where he might have caused a serious accident.

It's a strange quirk in human nature that the word "don't" or any of its equivalents, seem to immediately raise the blood pressure to a point where people will do exactly the opposite to what is requested.

You see this in many different ways and especially on the highways.

If the speed limit reads 50, most cars are going 70. If there's a solid line for a few hundred yards, someone is sure to pass one or more cars.

Let a sign go up (like the one on Douglas Street opposite Centennial Square) that says "use the crosswalks" and you'll see people jay walking right from beside one of the signs.

Put a placard up "keep off the grass" and watch what happens. Say "don't pick the flowers" and even the dear old ladies in our midst will sometimes wait until they think they are unobserved and nip a few blossoms.

Then, of course, there is the one "wet paint." It's a clear invitation to test the truth of the statement.

These are small things, you say. Laughable really in some instances. But don't overlook the fact that some who defy in small things go on to just as blatantly flout law and order in bigger ways.

As I have already said it's a strange quirk in human nature.

I'm in full sympathy with the efforts of Saanich Municipality to persuade B.C. Hydro to scrap plans for a 75-foot-high power line on Interurban Road and go underground instead.

The road in question is not in isolated teritory. It's conceivable that the day is not far off when most of that area will be subdivided and urbanized.

Weird outlines of high power line pylons certainly add nothing pleasing in such a district. And there is no guarantee that the line would not be followed some day by more such monsters.

You only need go down to southern California and travel the Santa Monica Freeway through various towns to Los Angeles to see how such lines escalate.

The whole place is a network of high power pylons. Spawned in the beginning, no doubt, by one cross-country effort.

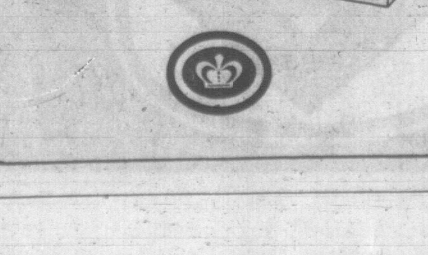
Surely if B.C. Hydro remembers that southern Vancouver Island is mainly residential and that one of the biggest industries is tourism, it should begin now to put its lines underground. Not after the countryside has been ruined and years would be needed to eradicate the scars.

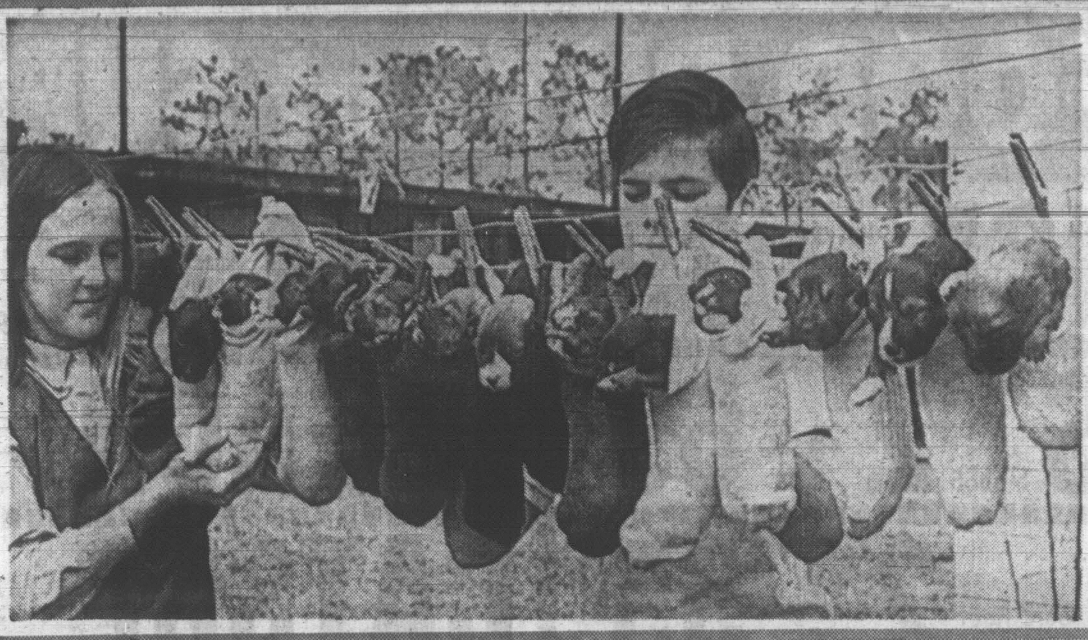
Gorilla Upstaged

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Attendants at the Henry Doorly Zoo had their hands full Monday, caring for a new-born gorilla, an infant orangutan and a jealous father. The youngsters were born late Sunday, the gorilla to Casey and his mate Bridgett and the orangutan to Fu Manchu and Tia. The mothers and Fu Manchu took the events in stride but Casey roared and rattled about his cage. Dr. Thomas, director of the zoo, said all 460 pounds of Casey was jealous. Casey doesn't like the role of forgotten father, Thomas said.

"Imperial Margarine's got flavour fit for a king."

This man sure knows a good thing when he tastes it. He tried Imperial Margarine on a fresh, homemade crescent roll and proclaimed the Imperial flavour so good it made him feel like a king. Imperial has the flavour no other margarine can match. Made with fine vegetable oils, it tastes so good it makes you feel like a king. Try it. Sof-Spread or Regular Imperial.





Florida's Doggy Pinups

Doggy pinup was the order of the day for Donna Lee, 10, and her brother, Roy Odell Pannebecker, 11, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Family pet, Queenie, a mixed shepherd and collie, produced this litter on her first try and with 14—who wants her to try any harder?

Pity Ponderosa

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Taxes are too high down on the Ponderosa and the owners reckon it isn't the bonanza the tax assessor claims it is. The 53-acre ranch, where the Bonanza television series is filmed, was over-valued by the Washoe County tax assessor, owners told the Nevada Board of Equalization Friday.

Victory Near For Tobacco Opponents

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill banning cigarette commercials from U.S. radio and television after Jan. 1, 1971, has cleared a major hurdle in Congress, virtually assuring prompt passage and giving anti-smoking forces a hard-fought victory.

"By next year, cigarette advertising will move into the history books of television," said Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) after the legislation was approved by a joint congressional conference committee Tuesday.

Besides prohibiting broadcast cigarette ads, the bill provides for a new hazardous warning label on all cigarette packages and prevents the states from any further regulation. The health warning will read: "Warning: the surgeon-general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

MAKES CONCESSION

In a concession to cigarette makers, however, the bill bars the Federal Trade Commission from requiring the warning to be included in all printed advertising until July, 1971.

Senator Frank E. Moss (Dem. Utah) said the FTC would be free to move after then if it determined the cigarette industry was diverting to the publishing media much of the $240,000,000 it now spends on broadcast commercials.

In Lexington, Ky., Jack Lewyn, a spokesman for the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, said it is doubtful the bill "will hurt cigarette sales very much since TV advertising is largely a competition among brands and by its nature not intended to create new smokers."

He noted the industry offered voluntarily to withdraw its advertising some time ago.

The broadcasting industry reserved immediate comment.

Sale Approved

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announced approval Tuesday of the sale of Radio CFRW and CFRW-FM in Winnipeg to CJOR Ltd. of Vancouver.

CFRW has been operated by a trustee, C. H. Flintoft of Winnipeg, since last November when its former owner, Radio Winnipeg Ltd., declared bankruptcy.

CJOR Ltd. owns several stations in British Columbia, including CJOR in Vancouver, devoted mainly to country and western music.

DIFFICULT TO SHOPLIFT BROWSING IN THE BUFF

PORTLAND (AP) — A Reed Collge book store rule that caused eight students to take off their clothes and browse in the buff has helped cut down on shoplifting, the store director said today.

The rule, put into effect after a sharp increase in shoplifting, required students to leave their book bags and coats in an area near the door.

Dick Ehlebe, store director, said eight students—six men and two women—entered the store, took off their coats "and then went all the way."

He said the half dozen or so other students shopping in the book store "pretty much ignored them."

Ehlebe didn't. He called Ross Thompson, college vice-president, who got the students' names. Then Ehlebe entered a complaint with the college judicial board, a five-member student board with strong powers to recommend disciplinary action. He said the students' conduct was an embarrassment to the college and warranted some punishment.

The board decision is expected shortly.

Ehlebe said the students didn't tell him why they disrobed. They dressed and left after about 15 minutes.

Dave Rhanda of the college information office said he heard they expressed the view: "If you want my coat, take all my clothes."

Ehlebe said there had been no recurrence of the undressing—and the amount of shoplifting had decreased materially.

Industry Threatened

CALGARY (CP) — Raymond Crepeault, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, said Monday night preoposed regulations to increase Canadian content on television and radio must be amended to avert "almost fatal" consequences to the private broadcasting industry.

Crepeault told a news conference the entire industry welcomes the principle of encouraging the development of Canadian talent but there is widespread concern over the implications of the specific recommendations of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Changes Slow New Hate Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons justice committee Tuesday approved a bill that would make it an offence to propogate hate, but it may be some time before it becomes law.

A series of amendments made to the bill by the committee means that it must go back to the Senate for approval before going to the Commons for third reading and final passage.

Justice Minister John Turner said the amendments improve but do not change the substance of the bill which will make it an offence to foster hatred of any group identifiable by race, color, religion or ethnic origin.

The bill was introduced originally in the Senate where, even with the assistance of Senator Arthur Roebuck, it took three sessions to get it passed.

Senator Roebuck, 92, is in Toronto recovering from a heart attack.

It won unanimous Commons passage on second reading and Mr. Turner said he didn't anticipate any problems when it comes up in the House for third reading.

CREATES OFFENCES

The bill, an amendment to the Criminal Code, provides three new offences aimed at protecting groups from defamation or destruction:

—Advocating or promoting genocide would be an offence punishable by up to five years in prison.

—Inciting hatred against a group by communicating statements in public, where likely to lead to a breach of the peace, would be punishable by up to two years.

—Wilfully promoting hatred against an identifiable group by communicating statements, other than by private conversation, would also be a two-year maximum offence.

An amendment by Terrence Murphy (L—Sault Ste. Marie) specified that a person would not be guilty under the bill if he intended, in good faith, to point out for the purpose of removing it, material that produced feelings of hatred towards a group.

Several other proposed amendments were defeated. Committee chairman Donald Tolmie (L—Welland) had to vote to break an 8-to-8 tie and defeat an amendment by Walter Deakon (L—Toronto High Park) that would have removed truth as a defence against a charge and added defences usually related to charges of sedition.

Mr. Turner said the amendment would have rendered the bill useless. He warned against upsetting the balance of the bill.

Peking-Ottawa Link Seen in Near Future

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — Colin McCullough, assistant to the editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, predicted Tuesday that Communist China will establish diplomatic relations in the near future with Canada but not with Japan.

McCullough served as Peking correspondent for his paper for 18 months until last October. He told a news conference that there is only one remaining point of difference between Ottawa and Peking and he thought the chances for agreement are good.

He said that if Peking follows the same formula with the Canadian government as it did with the French government, a simple agreement to exchange ambassadors would follow on the basis "of you recognize us and we recognize you." This agreement resulted in Nationalist China severing relations with France.

However, Communist China has been asking Canada to recognize Peking's sovereignty over Taiwan, the stronghold of the Nationalist Chinese government. This the Canadians have refused to do, saying that they recognize Peking as the government of China but do not feel required to take a position on border disputes.

NEW PROPOSAL REPORTED

Press reports from Ottawa say that the Canadian government has advanced a new compromise proposal to Peking calling for an exchange of diplomats.

McCullough said the assumption is that Nationalist China would break relations with the Canadian government if Peking accepts the compromise.

McCullough also said that he believes Mao Tse-tung may be replaced as Communist party chairman when he dies by his son-in-law, Yao Wen-yuan, who is in his late 30s or early 40s.

McCullough said the five men who rule China, with Mao "definitely in charge," are all old and the youngest is 63.

"It is almost impossible to see anyone younger," he said, mentioning Yao's name as the sole exception.

"Beyond that I don't see any younger people who would have access to the top."

Meter Maid Possibility Fades Here

The possibility of mini-skirted meter maids patrolling Victoria streets faded Tuesday on the recommendation of City Manager Dennis Young.

Young said that after checking with other cities across Canada he had come to the conclusion that parking meter patrols should remain with local male organizations.

As a result later this year city council will be asked to call for bids for the patrol contract from the local branch of the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires, the Metropolitan Security Services Ltd., and Traco Services of Vancouver.

At present the CCC has the city contract.

The public works committee endorsed the manager's recommendation.

The committee also agreed to April 7 as the date for the downtown area vote on off-street parking facilities.

If the vote is successful a 400-space parking building will go up on Johnson and the View and Bastion Square parking facilities will be expanded. Cost of the projects has been set at $1.5 million.

Canadians In Nicosia

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian contingent serving with the United Nations force in Cyprus has been given a new assignment.

The defence department said Tuesday that the Canadians, who have potrolled the Kyrenia district in northwestern Cyprus since 1964, are to replace the Danish and Finnish contingents deployed around the capital city of Nicosia.

The department said the move, part of a general redeployment of UN contingents now under way, is designed to increase the operational effectiveness of the Cyprus peacekeeping force.

Snowstorm Hits U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — A snowstorm and striking airport firemen brought air traffic in and out of London to a near standstill today.

Many flights into London were diverted to the Continent when snow-covered runways at Heathrow Airport slowed landings and takeoffs to a trickle. The capital's second airport at Gatwick was completely closed by a firemen's go-slow and heavy snow.

Rail and road traffic was snarled throughout England and Wales and thousands of commuters were late to work.

Heathrow reopened this morning after being closed for the second straight night by a firemen's strike.

The striking fire fighters want 12 shillings ($1.56) a week shift pay allowance added to their average weekly pay of £32 ($83.20).

'JOLLY NICE' say some, 'disgusting' say others as they view the new 30-storey barracks for Queen Elizabeth's mounted bodyguards. The building towers 300 feet above Hyde Park. (AP Wirephoto)

Horses Can't Squeeze in Lift

LONDON (AP) — The Queen's horses didn't fit in the elevator, so cavalrymen couldn't get to the officers' mess for after-dinner champagne.

That's only one problem in the building of London's latest sckyscraper—a 30-storey barracks for the Queen's mounted bodyguards. Another is that the tower soars 290 feet over the lush greenery of Hyde Park, and architectural critics say it spoils the view of trees and flowers.

But a barracks has stood on the spot for 200 years, and the army claims it is still essential.

The new building is to house the horses and men of the Household Cavalry, those plume-helmeted troops who parade around Buckingham Palace and lead Britain's state processions.

Blueprints first called for the officers' mess to be on the top floor. But because British cavalrymen sometimes bring their chargers in for a traditional drink at big dinners, and the elevators aren't suitable for a prancing, 1,000-pound steed, the dining room was built downstairs. The top floor is apartments.

Because the skyscraper juts up among Hyde Park's trees, critics have called it "disgusting . . . unpardonable . . . unsuitable to the atmosphere."

The skyscraper and its surrounding brick-faced buildings will house 273 horses, about 396 troopers and 66 junior and senior officers. About half a mile from Buckingham Palace, it contains apartments for families, a riding school and stables, and a car park and barn in the basement.

The horsemen moved out of the old barracks in 1966. Since then, the horses have been quartered next door to the palace at Wellington Barracks in a street called Birdcage Walk. They are due to move into the new building this fall.

Board Asks College For Fee Percentage

DUNCAN — The school board has asked that Malaspina College pay 15 per cent of its collected tuition fees to the board for classes it holds at Cowichan senior secondary school.

Robert Thorburn, director of adult education, said Malaspina currently gives two courses at the school for which it levies and collects the fees.

He suggested, and the education committee of the board agreed, that the college should pay the same share as two other agencies—Canada Manpower and the Indian affairs branch—to help cover maintenance, administration and advertising costs.

Uvic Graduate Gets Scholarship At Oxford

A University of Victoria graduate student has been awarded a two-year Commonwealth Scholarship to Oxford University.

Donald W. Tarasoff, 27, of 1830 San Pedro, will receive $4,500 per annum to study for his doctorate in history.

He plans to specialize in 19th century British history.

Film's Welfare Plan Affected by Layoffs

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film community's concern over the production slowdown extends beyond bread and butter matters. It also could affect the industry's relief fund, a unique experiment in welfare planning.

"I don't think there's anything like it in America," says William T. Kirk, executive director of the Motion Picture and Television Relief Fund. He cited welfare plans of garment and mine workers, but added that none offers the same range of benefits, supported by industry and labor.

Since 1928, a large percentage of the fund has come from payroll deductions, and that's the reason for concern.

"So far, the studio contributions have held up," Kirk says.

"But if the current slump in employment continues, we may have difficulty maintaining our program."

Last week, film unemployment was figured at 42.8 per cent.

A visit to the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital demonstrates how extensive that program is. The facility is located at the far end of the San Fernando Valley in a pleasant, oak-shaded community.

MODERN SET-UP

The hospital is fully equipped and accommodates 180 patients. The Country House, a series of handsome bungalows, houses 55. Average age: 81.

A new addition is the Lodge, which provides board and care for 18 outpatients. "Because of the increasing hospital costs—10 per cent a year—we need to find ways to get almost-well patients out of the hospital while still providing care," Kirk explains.

Among those now in residence: Edmund Lowe, Chester Conklin, Betty Blyth, Babe London, Carter DeHaven, cartoonist Max Fleischer, as well as less famous film workers—the benefits are for all crafts.

"We're always looking for ways to take care of more people," Kirk says. "One of our next plans is the construction of 850 apartments for retired people. The rental would be about $110 a month, and they would have access to health care and entertainment, the same as those in the Country House."

All this takes money, and the fund is supported by the efforts of industry leaders. Four years ago, a drive headed by Gregory Peck was started with the aim of providing $40,000,000 for expansion and future support. So far a $12,500,000 endowment has been reached.

A windfall for the fund was the bequest of the late producer Charles Feldman of 80 per cent of his residual estate. That may amount to $3,000,000.

The Country House and Hospital now operate on a $4,300,000 annual budget.

Claude Wagner Resigns Seat In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Claude Wagner, defeated Liberal leadership candidate, has resigned his Quebec national assembly seat as member for Verdun.

Speaker Reynald Frechette read to the assembly Tuesday Wagner's latter of resignation.

Wagner announced in February he would resign. He lost to Robert Bourassa in the mid-January race to elect a successor to Liberal leader Jean Lesage.

Pierre Laporte, who stayed on as the Liberal house leader, was the other leadership candidate.

The resignation leaves standings in the 108-seat national assembly at Union Nationale 57, Liberal 45, Independent 4, vacant 2.

Lifetime of Remembering In Cellist's Performance

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Throughout the entire cello literature there can be few numbers as searching technically or as demanding of a high muscial sensitivity, as the Kodaly unaccompanied Cello Sonata.

The great scope of the work, in concept, emotion and virtuosity requires exceptional attributes from its performer.

Tuesday's audience at the McPherson heard from Hungarian cellist Janos Starker, what must surely stand as the definitive performance.

This quietly authoritative master who, in himself, preserves an almost anonymous presence, plays even this big, fantastically brilliant and beautiful work with a complete absence of histrionics.

For Starker the musical presence is all important and is established dramatically with the first notes he draws from his instrument.

If one has to speak technically on the subject, Starker's left hand on the fingerboard must be one of the marvels of our time in its incredible flexibility.

PERFECTION

His bowing is perfection and his tone is virtually unmatched for it has the glowing yet mellow patina of antique gold.

If the Bach Cello Suites—Nos. 3 and 2 in C major and D minor — were less spellbinding, it is only because their scope was less amazing, their form and content familiar and therefore predictable.

Starker's performance of them was immcaulate. A clear, exquisitely styled, ideally proportioned presentation.

This extraordinary musician has become noted for his unaccompanied recitals and the reason is obvious. The absence of any supportive instrument in his case brings the character and full potential of the cello into absolute focus.

The result is something to be remembered for a lifetime.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Walter Weir, Manitoba Conservative leader, said Tuesday he is "happy that the federal government is injecting some capital into western Canada" through its announced acreage withdrawal plan "although the proposal is not what we or the farmers would have liked."

CANADIAN TO RECORD PLAY PART

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Christopher Plummer and Eric Porter of Britain have been signed to record the parts of Henry II and the martyred Archbishop Thomas a Becket for a sound-and-light production in Canterbury Cathedral this summer.

The production, Conflict at Canterbury, is one of the highlights of a season of dramatic and religious events to mark the 800th anniversary of Becket's murder at the hands of King Henry's knights.

Singer's New Son No Boy Named Sue

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Johnny Cash became the father Tuesday of a boy—and he didn't name him Sue.

John Carter Cash was born to Cash and singer June Carter a week earlier than the mother had predicted. But Mrs. Cash said all along it would be a boy.

The Cash's son weighed in at seven pounds 10 ounces.

Cash's Boy Named Sue was named the top country and western song of 1969 at the annual Country Music Association awards banquet in Nashville. The song has been nominated for the top popular recording of the year.

Mrs. Cash is a member of the famed Carter family singers. The couple has six girls by previous marriages.

Clear, Cold On Prairies

Clear and cold weather covers most of the Prairies today and little if any change is expected for a few days at least.

In the Winnipeg-Brandon region the high today was 15 above and low forecast for tonight is 10 below.

Early today, Red Deer reported a reading of 22 below and Calgary was not far behind at minus 15. Tonight, temperatures are expected to drop to similar levels.

HOME GARDEN

Seeds Need Moisture, Warmth

By HILDA BEASTAL

Sowing seed and raising the seedlings indoors is a fascinating hobby, for the experience increases one's garden knowledge with every success and every failure. Before we sow any seds, we must have an idea of the number of days or weeks the plants require before they are ready to go into the garden.

Hilda

To illustrate with two extremes — snapdragons sown on January 21 will be ready to plant out (after hardening-off in a coldframe) about April 21; while the dwarf French marigolds can be sown on April 7 and be planted out by May 7 if the nights are not frosty at that time.

So you see where experience plays a practical part in allowing a schedule to be made for seed sowing indoors, thus fitting each kind into its allotted span, avoiding a crowded condition, and preventing weakened plants from being kept indoors too long.

All seeds require moisture and warmth in order to germinate, each of these elements in varying degrees for different seeds.

While seeds will germinate without being surrounded by a medium which we designate as a seeding medium, or a growing medium, they will not continue their growth and produce a healthy seedling unless they were in close contact with that medium at time of sowing.

This bring us to a point often neglected by even advanced gardeners. When seed (of any size of shape) has been sown, the next step is to press it gently into contact with whatever the sowing medium may be — soil, sand, or a specially prepared mixture.

Even as the animal kingdom thrives with a bit of adversity in its early stages, seedlings need the effort of thrusting roots downwards and a growth shoot upwards with some opposition. This effort makes for stronger tissues.

Many failures observed have been from lack of pressing the covering soil over the seed. In small seed boxes or pots indoors, this is best done with a smooth block of wood fitted with a handle so that pessure is evenly distrubted over the surface.

Outdoor seed sowings can be firmed by pressing either a smooth plank along the rows, or more commonly the back of the rake.

Depth of covering is a point to gauge as experience increases.

The finest of seeds such as petuinia, begonia, lobelia, should not be covered but they do need pressing down gently into contact with the seeding medium. Each kind should be done separately, wiping off the wood block each time over the seed area in case any adhere to the block.

Here's hoping these sowing hints will help a few more gardeners to enjoy the excitment of success.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

While he was the Chinese ambassador to the United States from 1946-1956. Wellington Koo derived much enjoyment from the game of bridge. In the deal presented today, which arose in a rubber-bridge game about 20 years ago, Mr. Koo, in the West seat, "swindled" our South declarer in the latter's play of a slam contract.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

♡ 10 9 6
♣ A J 9

WEST
♠ K J 9 5 4
♡ K 8 2
◇ K 6

EAST
♠ 8 6 3 2
◇ 9 8 4

SOUTH
♡ A Q J 7 3
◇ J 7
♣ K Q 10

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	6 ♡	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ◇.

Having heard the opponents bid aggressively to a slam in hearts, and looking at his own hand, Mr. Koo realized that his partner didn't figure to have even one jack in his hand. Therefore to lead either a spade or a club was tantamount to conceding declarer his slam.

And further, as he looked at the K-6 of diamonds in his hand, he felt, based on North's bidding, that North probably possessed a diamond suit headed by the A-Q. And, if such were the case, then South would have no trouble in establishing that suit via a successful finesse against West's king.

On the positive side, Mr. Koo appreciated that his trump king would probably win a trick, since South, for his rebid of hearts, rated to have the heart ace.

After some deliberation as to where the setting trick might come from, Mr. Koo decided his best hope was to talk declarer out of taking the diamond finesse. Thus, at trick one, he opened the six of diamonds!

When the dummy was put down, our South declarer didn't care for what he saw. If West's six were a singleton (which it could easily have been), then by taking the finesse and losing to East's king, declarer would go down at trick two when East returned a diamond for West to ruff.

So, rightly or wrongly, declarer spurned the finesse in diamonds. He won the trick with the board's ace, and led the 10 of hearts, taking the finesse against East's hoped-for king. Eventually Mr. Koo also made his king of diamonds, for the setting trick.

As is evident, had a diamond not been opened then after trumps were drawn declarer, by finessing, would have brought home the entire diamond suit without the loss of a trick.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Que. Missed Chances To Own Labrador

By BOB BOWMAN

There are a number of anomalies about the map of Canada such as the Yukon-Alsaka border, and the way the State of Maine juts north into territory that looks as though it should belong to New Brunswick and Quebec. The strangest quirk of all is Labrador belonging to Newfoundland rather than Quebec. It is the result of a decision made by the British Privy Council in 1927 and still not recognized officially by Quebec.

The awkward and costly territorial divisions are the result of ambiguous treaties dating from the earliest days of Canada.

Newfoundland claimed Labrador because her fishermen has bases along the coast, and was awarded the area when Britain got Canada from France in 1763. However, there was so much confusion about fishing rights that Labrador was transferred to Quebec in 1774 and the arrangement stayed in effect until 1809 when Newfoundland was given the area again because Quebec had neglected the fisheries.

Nobody was greatly interested in the interior of Labrador until nearly 1900 when it became valuable for pulp and paper development. The problem was where to fix the Western boundary and the British Privy Council was asked to make the decision in 1907. However, it was not until 1920 that the contending parties reached agreement on the terms of reference, and the case was not actually heard until 1926. In 1927 the Privy Council gave Newfoundland the area drained by the rivers flowing into the Atlantic, and this set the western boundary of Labrador as it is today.

Quebec had an opportunity to buy Labrador from Newfoundland before the Privy Council made its decision. Newfoundland offered to sell the area for $30,000,000 but Quebec declined the offer on March 4, 1925. What would Labrador be worth today? Recent iron ore and hydro-electric power develpments have probably placed it beyond price.

Other events on March 4:

1791 — British House of Commons began discussing Canada Act creating Lower and Upper provinces.

fun with figures

By J A H HUNTER

We have 1256 for the game today. Using all four each time, one of each but no other digits at all, you form expressions for consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation (that's not the simple plus) or factorial symbols. Remember powers, decimals, and the root sign.

For example, 51 + 2 — 6 is a solution for 47.

The limit without a break seems to be 138. I found 83, 91, 98 and 136 really tough, and would be most interested to see your solutions for any of these. Free hints to help in future games will be sent if requested.

Tuesday's Answer: GUN was 908.

Destructive Effect Of Sunlight on Skin

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Always when I see someone, especially in the tropics, lying out on a beach getting a suntan, I think of what a number of my good friends who are skin specialists have said to me. They have said that it distresses them to see someone getting a suntan, because they feel as Dr. M. Kilgman did when he wrote an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association (AMA) recently. He said, "Sunlight, not innate aging, is mainly responsible for the worst manifestations of senile skin."

Often I have been greatly impressed as I have examined men and women — thousands of them in my 65 years of practice — to see that the skin of the face, and particularly that of the back of the neck, and the hands might be wrinkled and old in appearance, especially if the person was older than 60 years, and had lived an outdoor life; but the astonishing thing would be that if the person never sunbathed, the skin of the body, from the neck down, would be that of a young person.

Furthermore, cancer of the skin most commonly appears on the face or the backs of the hands.

It looks now as if before long, when a woman who should not have a child, and does not wish to have a child, finds herself pregnant, she can next day after missing her period have a miscarriage, brought on by the injection of a newly-discovered chemical, which is now being tested in Europe, and so far has worked very well. It works much as does the chemical that causes a woman to have her baby after it has grown in her body for nine months.

As the chemist in Europe say, if all works well, the new drug can save hundreds of lives now lost because of incompetent abortionists working illegally. Also, if a woman has her uterus emptied the day after she misses a period, there will be many fewer feelings of guilt, because what will come away will be only a microscopic globule.

A hemorrhoid (pile) in an enlarged vein in the rectum can cause a person much pain and discomfort. As many people know, having an operation to remove the hemorrhoids can also make a person very uncomfortable for a while. That is why I am happy to note that a number of specialists in rectal diseases, like Dr. Raymond Jackman at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., are using a marvelous new method devised by Dr. Blaisdell of Pasadena, Calif., in which, with a special instrument, a small rubber ring is fastened tightly around the base of a hemorrhoid. This can be done in the doctor's office, and without an anesthetic. In a few days, the hemorrhoid drops off.

I have talked to persons who were treated in this way, and they were delighted with the cure.

TRAFFIC LIGHT is only for foot traffic as a pedestrian makes her way through deep snow in Yuzhno-Sakhalinski in Russia. The city is now digging out from a five-day blizzard — with the help of shovels and bulldozers. Photo was released by a Soviet press agency.

Why Do Kids Turn On? Experts Divided

TORONTO (CP) — Why do youngsters take drugs and where do they get them? What should a parent do when he discovers an adolescent using drugs?

Some experts believe young people take drugs to escape from problems or from a world they believe worthless, to set themselves apart from adults or to be accepted by friends.

Ron Gaskin, 20-year-old social worker with Trailer, an agency that helps people with drug problems, says:

"It's a friendship thing, a social intensifier, like adults having a drink with friends.

Psychologist Reginald Smart, a researcher with the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation, says that in some groups, you don't really feel you belong unless you turn on.

But Insp. John Wilson, head of the Metropolitan Toronto police morality squad, says youngsters are attempting to escape reality.

Some people believe youngsters are engulfed in a sorrow about the future of mankind. They reject the materialism, violence and dehumanization of present-day society.

Lawrence Purdy, regional director of the addiction foundation, is skeptical of this theory.

He says they use the sorry state of the world as a cover-up.

"Every drug user is at least partly motivated by the desire for pleasure."

There is no simple answer to the question: Where do drugs come from?

Techniques differ. But with the exception of heroin, which still is handled largely by non-addicted racketeers, drug distribution in the area is a do-it-yourself thing.

Possession of speed (amphetamines) is legal. Only trafficking is illegal and this is so difficult to prove that police have made only a handful of arrests and few convictions.

Police and social agencies estimate there are 10,000 "speed freaks" in Metropolitan Toronto.

A "deck" of speed costs $3, contains 1.5 grains or less and comes wrapped in silver paper or Scotch tape, providing two intravenous shots for an addict who has built up average tolerance.

According to users, about half the supply comes from the United States, much of it from illicit laboratries. A small fraction is stolen or obtained by forged documents from legitimate drug stores and the remainder is concocted by amateurs in basements or in high school laboratories.

MDA POPULAR

Methylenodioxy a m phetamine, commonly known as MDA, is growing in popularity. It is a prohibited drug and has an effect akin to speed but with some of the features of LSD.

It is easily produced in basements and home laboratories and sells for $3 a deck.

Use of LSD is spreading rapidly in Toronto, police say. Enough LSD for one trip costs $3 to $10 on the street, depending on the quality and the law of supply and demand.

Dr. Andrew Malcom, a psychiatrist with the addiction foundation, says parents should react calmly if they learn one of their children has tried marijuana.

He says if the child is depressed, anxious and unable to cope with life, the parent should seek the advice of someone in the mental health field.

But if the child is coping well with life, a different approach is needed.

Dr. Malcolm says some of the risks of taking drugs should be pointed out to that type of youngster, especially the danger of ending up with a criminal record.

The parent also should talk about the risk of becoming emotionally dependent on marijuana or becoming alienated from former friends and interests.

He Never Has the Time For His Own Horoscope

BY RICHARD BLYSTONE

NEW YORK (AP) — Zolar the astrologer, master of the occult, says he never has time to check his own horoscope.

"I'm too busy taking care of other people. The thing has just jumped up around me in such a way that it's almost impossible to keep track of."

Long before the ancient art attained its current vogue, before there were zodiac T-shirts and wallpaper or astrology sections in college bookstores, Zolar was reading the circling, shifting stars and planets. For nearly 40 years he has been astrologer to thousands, through broadcasts, books, magzines, even coin machines.

Zolar, whose real name is Bruce King, is no hollow-eyed mystic huddling in a garret. If his white moustache weren't so well-clipped, if he had a beard and suit of red instead of rumpled blue, he'd bear a resemblance to Santa Claus.

Did the planets foretell the boom in astrology over the last three or four years?

"Sure, I've been predicting it right along," he says. "I could see that we were going to come into a very, very big upgrade in astrology in 1966 and '67, and we're still not going to hit our peak for another 50 years.

AQUARIUS DAWNS

"You see, we're about getting ready to move into the Aquarian age. That's a very long, drawn-out thing, but Aquarius is the air sign, the sign of revolution, you see—new things, new thoughts, new ideas.

"W've been in the Piscean age for 2,100 years. We're not in the Aquarian age yet; we've still got 100 years to go, but we're already feeling it because if you're within five degrees of the sign you begin to get the feeling.

"Well, moving into the air age we seem to have taken on the younger generation, which was never interested in astrology before. The last three or four years I would say the interest in astrology by the teen-ager from 20 years down has increased about 5,000 per cent.

"And I would say for another thing—it sounds kind of crazy—but you know that screwy play Hair that has that Aquarian thing? I think that's sold 5,000,000 horoscopes."

WAS THOUGHT NUTTY

"I started in 1932 and nobody knew what a horoscope was," he says. Lots of people, you talked to 'em about astrology, thought you were a nut.

"When it hit the chain stores, astrology got down to the masses. Before, it was a high-class thing; horoscopes were $5 to $500. I don't think there were more than a dozen astrologers in the United States then. I've moved from horoscopes into the occult, and now I have 50-60 publications."

They include astrological advice on love, dreams, horseplaying and the stock market,

"I do all the writing on my main books," Zolar says. "On the others it got to be too much so I have some outside help. But I do all the editing and all the arranging and all the printing and all the selling. I hold down about 10 jobs."

How do the heavens look for Zolar in 1970?

"The very biggest year I'm going to have in the last, oh, about 25 years," he says.

"I personally am coming into a very important Jupiter-Mercury aspect, and my second house—which is the house of money—and my fifth house—which is the house of speculation—are both very well aspected this year."

Fly-by-Night Contractors ACA Target

Victoria's public works committee Tuesday morning pledged moral support to a construction industry bid to stamp out fly-by-night contractors.

But it declined a request to introduce a bylaw making it mandatory for all contractors, large and small, to post a performance bond before being permitted to operate in the city.

The bonding request had come from the Amalgamated Construction Association and had strong support from all unions involved in construction.

LAW NEEDED

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady recommended that ACA take its fight to the provincial government rather than press for action at the municipal level.

"What is needed is special legislation similar to the Securities Bonding Act," O'Grady said in a written report on the ACA request.

He noted that he had "serious misgivings as to the competence of the city council to enact regulations of the sort sought."

He went on to state that the authors of the bonding request had stated they wanted the legislation to "help protect the citizens of Victoria from the hazards of unethical business practices."

Said O'Grady: "It should be evident that it is quite impossible to condition a legal liability upon anything as vague as the ethics of a given trade. At best the public could be protected only against what amounted to unlawful conduct on the part of contractors by a procedure of the sort envisaged."

Ed Phillips, executive director of ACA, Victoria, said he was disappointed in the decision.

"We still feel something could be done at the local level," Phillips said. "And we still feel that something must be done to protect the public against unscrupulous fly-by-night contractors."

In rejecting the ACA bonding-bid Mayor Courtney Haddock said he felt council should offer the construction industry all the support possible in an attempt to obtain provincial controls.

Stove Blamed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Officials of Rustad Brothers Sawmills Tuesday confirmed that an oil stove explosion was responsible for a fire Monday which destroyed their sawmill near Bear Lake, 25 miles north of here. Company officials estimated damage at $125,000.

WOODROW WILSON Fellowship Foundation has named Hamar R. K. Foster of Victoria as one of the Woodrow Wilson designates for 1970. It is the only fellowship for which graduates do not apply but must be nominated. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan R. Foster, 538 Landsend Road, Foster is attending Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and will graduate in May with an honors degree in philosophy and history. He attended Margaret Jenkins Elementary, Deep Cove and North Saanich schools, Shawnigan Lake School and the University of Victoria.

Trustees Stalemated On Posting

Greater Victoria school trustees couldn't decide Monday which of four applicants to hire for a new administrative post of director of development and research.

So they decided to re-advertise the position.

"The board was not unanimous in its choice," said chairman Dr. Carron Jameson, "and felt with other candidates it might get a unanimous choice."

The director of development and research will be responsible for personnel and implementation of a data processing system.

He will be one of four department heads under the chief executive officer or district superintendent.

Salary is to be negotiated with the school board.

Of the four applicants interviewed by trustees Monday, one was from B.C. and three were from outside the province.

School Choice Plan Considered

Parents of youngsters who attend five elementary schools in the Gordon Head area have been asked to choose the school they would like their child to attend next year.

Parents' preferences are being surveyed for purposes of future planning only, says a letter sent to them via pupils Monday by the Greater Victoria school board.

The letter says if the survey shows an "open boundary" policy is feasible, parents will be notified at the end of May.

Pupils currently attend schools closest to their homes.

Schools affected are Fairburn, Frank Hobbs, Gordon Head, Hillcrest and Shelbourne (to be renamed Campus) elementary schools.

Purpose of the proposal is to provide a choice of schools for parents.

The letter says limited accommodation may make it necessary to accept pupils on the following priorities:

First, to pupils already in attendance at a particular schoo. Second, to brothers and sisters of the above mentioned who enter kindergarten or Grade 1 next September.

Third, to include students who live in close proximity to a particular school.

Cross-Country Race Draws 350 Students

A total of 350 pupils from the capital region have entered the annual Central Saanich cross-country race Saturday.

The race, the biggest of its kind on Vancouver Island, will start—rain or shine—at 2:30 p.m. at Centennial Park on Wallace Drive.

Organized three years ago by Glenlyon teacher Basil Parker, it is open to the young and adults from all parts of the Island.

Bryan Rudgard, one of the principal organizers, said the boys-under-14 class will have the largest number of teams in this year's event. So far there are 34—six runners to a team.

VANTAGE POINT

The under-16 has 20 teams—120 runners and the senior group four teams. The men's class has four teams.

The course for the men, under-18 and 16 classes is 5⅓ miles and for the juniors 2⅓ miles. The senior groups will finish at Saanichton fair grounds and the juniors at St. Stephen's Parish Hall, off Mount Newton Cross Road.

One of the best vantage points is at Woodwynn Farm on West Saanich Road at Hagen Creek. All runners have to cross the stream.

Mayor Archibald Galbraith of Central Saanich will present medals and ribbons.

Jack Hutchison, president of the Victoria District Track and Field Association, Jack Roe, Ray Smith and Scott Finding will assist in organizing the race.

Vets Urging Survivor Pay

B.C. members of Hong Kong Veterans' Association of Canada suggest that any benefits extended to survivors under terms of a parliamentary commission should be made retroactive.

The association newsletter said approval of the Woods commission report may take another two or three months, and Ottawa should therefore consider making its application retroactive.

"Twenty-three years is a long time to wait," the newsletter said.

Parliament is considering the report, ordered to investigate the special circumstances resulting from the extreme privation suffered by Canadian prisoners of war after the fall of Hong Kong, Christmas Day, 1941.

The association's national president, Charles Brady, is in touch with the minister of veterans affairs, and a report will be given when the B.C. group holds its annual meeting for election of officers Saturday at 8 p.m., 521 Superior Street.

Hong Kong Vets national convention will be held in Toronto July 15-19 at the King Edward Sheraton Hotel, Toronto, marking the association's 25th anniversary.

DUNCAN — A Vancouver area farmer isolated 18 cattle from his herd and left them without food or water to die, it was revealed here Tuesday by the managing director of the provincial Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Commander Francis J. Jones said that 11 had to be shot and the others all suffered from advanced cases of ringworm after they were discovered less than two weeks ago.

A veterinarian said the cattle looked like refugees from Belsen—the German death camp. The owner said the cattle were of no use to him and asked Jones "Why should I feed them?"

Jones said the farm was not a wilderness location but 12 miles from the centre of Vancouver.

VOLUNTEERS STILL IMPORTANT

Paid SPCA Managers 'Inevitable'

By ED GOULD

DUNCAN — Although it was "inevitable" that the province would be cut into zones in control of paid managers, SPCA volunteers should hold dearly to their positions, Cowichan and District branch was told Tuesday night.

Commander Francis J. Jones, managing director of the provincial Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said the necessity for further professionalization of the organization was apparent to him after a northern trip.

Jones told 21 persons attending the annual general meeting here he visited 18 SPCA branches and agencies in the 4,000-mile tour. Much of the territory was incredibly vast for branch inspectors to cover with the result that some areas seldom were visited.

The SPCA has also asked the government for two inspectors independent from the branches, Jones said.

WELFARE SOCIETY

He said Vancouver Island, for example, may have to be broken in two at Nanaimo "although I do not suggest that Duncan would then come under Victoria's jurisdiction. It may be the other way around."

Jones outlined the successes and reverses of 1969 with particular emphasis on problems arising at several branches over an attempt to unionize inspectors.

"I am not going to say I'm against unions. We have all felt their benefits. But attempting to unionize a welfare society like the SPCA is like unionizing a church."

Jones said wages paid inspectors are not as high as the society wished but every dollar wage increase meant returns from the shelter must also be increased.

Jones stressed that the SPCA was once entirely a society of volunteers with absolute control of policy in their hands. But even with employment of inspectors the society has not basically altered.

"You should cherish this right. Even I, as director, can only make recommendations and you needn't accept them if you don't wish to."

CRITICISM BEGINS

The director said retaining good quality staff is difficult because for about a month a new inspector is looked upon by local residents as a "a good guy" and then after picking up dogs and collecting licences, criticism beings.

However, the future for the society looked bright and advances during 1969 far outnumbered the setbacks.

A $30,000 shelter had been built at Kamloops, a new shelter was built upon the ashes of a burned down structure in the Kootenays and a new $50,000 shelter was at Prince Rupert.

'BASTILLE'

Relationships between the society and civic officials in some areas had improved. Jones said 3½ years ago he had "nearly been run out of town with a shotgun" for calling the Kamloops pound a "bastille" but now the mayor and he were on the best of terms.

Jones said the area of intensified farming where animals are raised under extremely controlled conditions and never see the light of day was a field the society could really get into.

He said the British Columbia poultry industry utilized this style of farming and farmers were not even regulated as to the size of cages that their birds were installed in.

Retiring president of Cowichan and district branch, Miss Mary Waldon, was praised for her long service to the local SPCA. She became past president and a director.

Louis Scott-Moncrieff of Shawnigan Lake was elected president.

There's Nothing Wrong with Youth —Except for 'Materialistic' Parents

By JACK SCOTT

DUNCAN — There's absolutely nothing wrong with the younger generation that can't be cured by giving them the confidence of champions. And nobody can give it to them but their parents.

That's the considered opinion of a Cowichan Valley couple who might claim—though they're not the kind to claim anything—that they've a direct line to the aspirations and the hangups of today's youth.

Still somewhat overwhelmed by their designation as Citizens of the Year—the first husband-and-wife team to be honored by the Duncan Kinsmen Club—Ton and Louise Hamilton looked back today on their years of work with young people in the valley and talked not of the child but the parent.

Louise

In the philosophy of Kahlil Gibran—"You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth"—they see the urgent lesson for today's society.

"Every family faces different situations," said the tall, willowy, Amsterdam-born Louise, "but we have found that the one common difficulty of these times is the creation of a generation gap that need not exist. Parents have less time for their children in today's pressures of making ends meet—or, at any rate, they give less time. Meanwhile the attitudes and ethics of young people have changed so rapidly that adults are always in danger of being left behind.

"Margaret Mead has said that all of us who were born and reared before the 1940s are immigrants in the world of our children. When today's young people say to their elders, 'You never have been young in the world I am young in, and you never can be,' they are saying a simple truth. Too many parents are too lazy, too self-seeking or self-satisfied in a materialistic way of life or too critical of the new life style to face up to their duty of understanding the real world of their children."

Her husband agreed.

"All too often you can see a kind of pattern when youngsters turn to drugs or become drop-outs," said 41-year-old Ton Hamilton. "They are almost always children whose parents have no sympathy or understanding for the way they dress, the way they wear their hair, the music they play or listen to, their groping for an understanding of what life is all about.

"When parents are over-critical of these things, when they fail to communicate by listening, they're telling a son or a daughter, in effect, that they are useless. It's the feeling of uselessness that determines the future for many youngsters. 'Why not do my own thing,' they ask themselves, 'when I'm not much good for anything else?' That's a cruel price to pay for what is simply a parent's unwillingness to understand."

The Hamiltons, who came to British Columbia from Holland 16 years ago, each have busy careers, Ton with the B.C. Forest Service, Louise as a teacher's aid in special classes in Duncan. They have a family of their own, two sons, Harold, 13, and Ian, 7, and an 11-year-old daughter, Nancy. But every spare minute is given to youth work. Louise is particularly active in Lions Club swimming classes. Ton, a quarter-miler and speed skater in his younger days, is track and field coach with the Cowichan Valley Athletic Club.

"You can learn something from coaching that we think every parent should know," Ton said. "The important thing is not to take a second off a sprint time or add an inch to a long jump, but to instill a belief in the youngster that he's capable of being a champion. Giving confidence is everything. Every coach knows that you can make tremendous athletes out of almost any normal boy or girl, that the mental aspect, the desire and the conviction that he can do it, are 90 per cent of it. This is the real function of the parent, though praise and interest, in preparing children for the hurdles of life."

"Self-discipline is important," Louise added, "but it cannot be pounded into a child. You have to light a candle toward discipline and it must be done at an early age. You can't teach a sense of obligation or respect for adults to a boy of 15 if you haven't reached him at five. That means a daily, total involvement with your children. It means keeping all the lines open."

"There are times," her husband grinned, "when it takes a brave man to be a father. There are times when you must admit to a child, 'I need your help as a parent.' You must admit that you make mistakes, that you are not a final authority on everything, because that just doesn't work when, rightly or wrongly, they have their own set of values.

"A boy who was taking drugs came to me not long ago," he recalled. "He wanted to speak to me because he said that he could not speak to his father. Well, it was a great temptation to simply tell him that drugs are an evil, that they could ruin his life. Instead I told him I wanted to keep an open mind, that I wanted to learn everything he knew about drugs because I knew so little. What effect did they have that he sought? Why did he take them? That way it was his own doing, it was his own working out of a situation, when he got off them."

Ton

The Hamiltons said the use of marijuana had become as prevalent in country areas as in the cities, but they had not reached a personal decision on what to do about it.

"It's pointless to simply condemn," said Ton. "The parents and the law-makers face the kind of situation that comes up in many family relationships. If it is something you can't handle then you must pretend not to see it. There are no half-way solutions. You make it stick or you don't. If making the marijuana laws stick means making criminals out of youngsters, barring them from the professions in later life and doubling our police forces, then do it. Otherwise just ignore it until you've found other, practical means to bridge that particular generation gap.

"Above all," he said, "we need to evaluate what we've done, as parents, to make marijuana fill a need for our children."

Tehran Exotic, Dusty, But Not Dangerous

By KAYE ROWE

TEHRAN (CP) — Ever since the caravan routes from China and India made Tehran a major stopping place, the bazaar has been a trans-Asian market and the gossip and news exchange centre for a continent.

Since its beginning is traceable to about 1200 AD, the market in Tehran, the capital of Iran, has been the world's largest covered bazaar. It is located in the native quarters of the south end of the city. Women shoppers outnumber the men. They come clad in the chador, a combination cloak, hood and face-veil, or in Western fashions as chic as those of Paris.

But the merchants, messengers, supply people and clerks are invariably male.

TREASURES ABOUND

Scarcely 20 feet across, the bazaar thoroughfare is closed to vehicular traffic. But merchants serve as human transport, weighted under magnificent rugs, enormous strung clusters of shoes, folded lengths of fabric usually of batik, and metal lamps of lace-like tracery.

Noisy, dusty and crowded, the bazaar is a storehouse of treasures. On sale are the handicrafts of village-artisans whose skills pre-date biblical times. Then there are the jewels and lapidary work of Iranian craftsmen whose products are world-renowned.

The bazaar extends through miles of twisting lanes and has its hazards for the unwary visitor. She may be bunted by a donkey at the entrance while carefully focusing a camera, or sprayed by the water-man in his day-long journey through the lanes tossing water with the same flowing gestures as a pioneer sower of grain. The water serves to keep the dust down.

Wily pickpockets abound. But the shopper need fear no bodily harm.

Leave the bargaining to an experienced bazaar-shopper. It involves the technique of spurning the desired article, walking away, casually suggesting a much lower price, then resolutely walking away again. This invariably results in a reduction of price by the merchant.

TEA COMES FIRST

The ploys of bargaining are fascinating to both parties concerned. Finally the package is wrapped and the purchaser leaves the shop with a sense of accomplishment. She has worked hard for possession of the lamp, the rug, the small flawed emerald or the delicate painting on ivory.

Introductions to the shop manager prove a highly elaborate ceremony, with inquiries about the health of other members of the family and the instant offer of hospitality.

The "tea man," an employee in every large shop and office in Iran, brings a tray of small glasses of tea fitted into elegant holders of etched silver. Iranians drink their tea hot and strong.

The bargaining starts after the tea has been drunk.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1970—PAGE 45

B.C. May Lower Legal Age to 17

The provincial government is considering lowering the legal age of juveniles from the present 18 to 17, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Tuesday night.

He added that the age, which now differs in the provinces, may be standardized across the country.

Peterson said the province would continue its policy of not charging juveniles with provincial offences with the exception of flagrant violations of driving and liquor laws and three other offences.

The offences include driving under another's licence, driving without a licence and failing to stop when a police officer requests.

Juveniles are given criminal records under federal law if they are charged with provincial offences, even though adults are not.

The attorney-general made the remarks during discussion of the estimates of the attorney-general's department which were passed Tuesday night after about 13 hours of debate.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett called for the University of British Columbia medical centre to pull its weight in forensic treatment, charging that the institution was mainly concerned with psychiatric research on "upper middle class" patients.

He also warned the government against a "bricks and mortar" approach to corrections, particularly against building a $4 million remand centre in Vancouver. He recommended experimentation with a number of approaches with a view to avoiding the creation of institutions which lock the government into corrections policies which may become outdated.

"I appeal to you not to build a prison on Vancouver Island," Barrett said. The prison camp system was working well at much less cost, he said.

Barrett also said that there should be more people charged with minor offences released on their own recognizance. Experience in the United States indicated that this technique builds up an atmosphere of trust and leads to greater success in rehabilitation, he added.

Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) asked Peterson to look into "infringement of the rights of privacy" by "snoops" who are hired to prepare files on people for private corporations.

David Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) urged the responsibility for checking of heating systems, especially gas, to be placed in the hands of the public works department.

John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich-and-the-Islands) asked if there was any consideration to increase the police force in the Gulf Islands. Peterson replied that the estimates provide for another 38 police officers for the next fiscal year, and the deployment has yet to be decided.

They're Going to Lick This Job ...Every 5,000 Pieces of Mail

A secretarial pool was formed at St. Ann's Academy Tuesday and it's first project is the preparation and mailing of 5,000 letters by today.

The clerical staff are 32 Grade 9 and 10 students who belong to the Junior Action Group, formed last September.

Starting Tuesday, they've volunteered to take on all the clerical duties for the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace on Vancouver Island.

Their first project was to prepare letters for Vancouver Island parishioners for Share Lent Sunday, March 15.

The letters exhort the receivers to give generously in support of the organization's man overseas programs.

They range from 400 sewing machines sent overseas in 1969, farm equipment sent to India, aid for a community centre to Chile, to $124,870 given for food and medical supplies to Nigeria.

In addition to acting as secretaries, the students have many volunteer projects in the community.

Working through the Volunteer Bureau at Spencerhouse, they babysit for mothers of low-income families, take on household chores for elderly residents, visit private hospitals and put on concerts for the patients.

One young student reports: "What I like best of all is taking dear old ladies shopping. It's a ball!"

The energetic program takes time. Each Tuesday after school they meet for planning sessions and each Thursday they each set out on their allotted tasks.

Will the new assignment increase their working load to breaking point?

They say it won't.

"Doing things for others is what it's all about."

Health Checks Proposed For All Food Handlers

Laxity in provincial health laws could result in a Greater Victoria epidemic of tuberculosis, hepatitis or typhoid, former alderman Charles Mollard told Central Saanich council.

Stressing that medical examinations for food handlers should be mandatory, Mollard pleaded for a municipal bylaw that would make examinations mandatory in the municipality.

"I suggest that Central Saanich take the lead and show other municipalites what can be done," he said. The council's health and welfare committee will study the issue.

"We have a fantastic situation here, without regulations either from the provincial government or from the metropolitan board of health."

Mollard said the average person was unaware of the potential danger.

POSSIBLE CARRIERS

"A hotel or restaurant can hire anyone who comes along, irrespective of their health. They can work as chefs, short-order cooks or waitresses, and could be possible carriers of any communicable disease."

He warned council that a typhoid outbreak, similar to that on the P and O liner Oronsay, could be duplicated in the area.

Mollard said he had approached both the provincial department and the metropolitan board of health.

"A provincial officer told me that such a program would cost $500,000. Actually it would be a very simple matter of policing every month or so to check on people hired during that period."

Mollard added that if the bylaw was passed the costs of the program should be borne by companies in the food-dispensing business.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is a 1962 biography of Dr. Sigmund Freud, directed by John Huston. It's at 8:30 on Channel 8, midnight on Channel 6. Montomery Clift, Susannah York and Larry Parks star.

SPECIAL. 8, Channels 2 and 6. Spatsizi (Indian for red goat) is a visit to a remote part of northern British Columbia's Cassiar district. Films show the efforts of Tom Walker to convert the area into a hunting range and conservation reserve. On film, as well, are excellent shots of most of the indigenous wildlife.

DRAMA SPECIAL. 9, Channels 2 and 6. Man Made. A young man becomes the unwilling guinea pig in an experiment conducted by the unfeeling Dr. Packman. His task is to father a revolutionary human being — totally knowledgeable, disease-resistant and technological. Joseph Shaw stars as Dr. Packman.

COMEDY CRACKERS. 10:30, Channel 2. Former football great Sam Etcheverry clowns with the cast at the B and B Pub. A stripper delves into election promises and a frustrated TV host can't get his guests to talk.

MUSIC HALL. 9, Channel 5. "Alan King's Wonderful World of Aggravation — Part II:" Here's a sequel to last year's hour with Alan King in which he poked fun at the minor and major aggravations which touch us all. Tonight, Paul Lynde, Michele Lee and Ann Meara assist King in a number of amusing sketches and songs. Highlights include King and Ann Meara staging a mock fight in order to convince their bickering friends (Lynde and Michele Lee) to stay married and a sketch about parents visiting their sons at college.

JOHNNY CASH SHOW. 9, Channel 4. Tonight's roster of guests are all in the country-western groove and host Cash is right at home with them. There's Brenda Lee singing "Johnny One-Time"; Pete Seeger applying his relaxed style on "Worried Man Blues"; and Roger Miller having fun with "Tom Green County Fair." In his concert spot, Cash sings his current hit, "A Boy Named Sue" and "The Devil to Pay."

ROOM 222. 8:30, Channel 4, "The New Boy." This series does well with problem students and Mr. Dixon has his hands full with one tonight. Rick Kelman plays Dennis, a student transferred from another high school because of his poor record, and it's hard for kids and the teachers to pinpoint his problem at first. But Dennis' uncontrollable need to lie soon becomes apparent to all.

MEDICAL CENTER. 9, Channel 12 After avoiding emotional entanglements for Dr. Joe Gannon, the series gives him a hearts and flowers love story, and it should please his female following. Gannon takes a Mexican vacation, meets and falls in love with a tour director, played by star Chad Everett's real-life wife, Shelby Grant. To keep the medical aspect alive, the tour director has an auto accident and Gannon steps in to find more deep-seeded factors. Romance is the point here, and Chad Everett gives it the old school try.

ENGELBERT HUMPERDINCK SHOW. 7:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 4. The British singing star has quite a talented lineup of stars appearing on his show tonight, led by Jerry Lewis, in a rare TV appearance. Jerry and Engel have some fun with short sketches and team up vocally, too. Jerry also solos to "Blues In Hoss' Flat." Other guests include the pop British singer Lulu, the incomparable Ray Charles, and Marilyn Michaels, who offers stunning impersonations of Ethel Merman, Barbra Streisand and Judy Garland.

COMEDY HOUR HOST on Music Hall tonight at 9 on Channel 5 is the versatile Alan King. King's Wonderful World of Aggravations touches quite a few soft spots.

HAWAII FIVE-O. 10, Channel 12. Although the resume of last week's action takes forever, Part II of the hunt for a deadly test-tube virus which threatens the island population finally gets running room. The chase concentrates on emotional scenes between Establishment officials and the disturbed genius and his growing romance with telephone operator Loretta Swit. Histrionics are high and only McGarrett keeps his cool while taking a few pot shots at government men who want the virus left intact. It's a fairly engrossing effort and acknowledgements are due to star Jack Lord; the sweating, eye-blinking scientist Ed Flanders' and wholesome Loretta Swit, who has a way with a line.

B.C. NEWS BRIEFS

Contempt Charge Hearing Continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hearing continues today on an application for a writ claiming contempt of a coroner's court by newspaper columnist Allan Fotheringham.

In seeking the writ, the British Columbia's attorney-general's department also seeks an order for "a fine or other appropriate penalty or punishment" for the Sun Publishing Co. Ltd.

At issue is a column, published in the Vancouver Sun Jan. 27, which commented on the conduct of Surrey coroner H. S. Keenleyside at a Jan. 23 inquest into the death of Evangeline Azarcon, 7, abducted last fall from near her city home.

The column, read into the court record Tuesday, termed Mr. Keenleyside's conduct "callous and unthinking."

Fotheringham, who said his column was "a background column with opinions on politics, business and general current events," told the B.C. Supreme Court hearing he was writing on the reactions of half a dozen reporters at the inquest.

Moira Farrow, a Sun reporter who attended the inquest, told the court she was "upset and angry" at the "abrupt, brisk and schoolmasterly" way Keenleyside handled the inquest.

"We were shocked," Miss Farrow said. She said she returned to her office the day of the inquest, wrote a news story on the proceedings and a day later left a memorandum on it which Fotheringham said was the basis for his column.

In the column, he said he felt that the presence at the inquest of Mrs. Azarcon was unnecessary. He said that after hearing evidence her daughter had been raped the mother "broke down and at the end of the inquest collapsed."

George Murray, acting for the attorney-general's department, called as witnesses RCMP Sergeant Ellis Domay and Corporal Hilton Randall, both of the Surrey detachment.

Both testified that they had, at the coroner's request, made two unsuccessful attempts to dissuade Mrs. Azarcon from attending the inquest.

Sentence Suspended

PEMBERTON (CP) — Mary James, 21, of Pemberton Tuesday was given a two-year suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of child abandonment. She was originally charged with criminal negligence when her four-year-old daughter died in a house fire Jan. 12 in this community 90 miles north of Vancouver.

Pair Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Melvin Edwin Willock, 20, and Dennis John King, 23, both of Richmond, were charged Tuesday with armed robbery after a man was forced from a car and robbed of $50 at knifepoint.

Contract Awarded

PORT MOODY (CP) — Russ Reid Ltd. of this community has been awarded a $56,000 federal public works for a single-storey federal building at Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands, to house the post office and the forestry and fisheries department.

Hospital Employees Accept Pact

About 8,500 non-medical workers now receiving a wide range of wages at 68 British Columbia hospitals voted narrowly to accept a new two-year contract which includes a $100 monthly increase and a 37½-hour work week.

A spokesman for the B.C. Hospital Employees Union said Tuesday night the contract was ratified by a narrow margin. Earlier polls taken by the union had indicated the employees favored strike action.

Locally, non-medical workers at St. Joseph's, Mount St. Mary and the Queen Alexandra Solarium will be affected by the agreement.

Fringe benefits include additional vacation time and improved arrangements for employees on call.

Multi-Vote Call Miffs Aldermen

At least two Victoria aldermen want more information from Mayor Courtney Haddock before supporting his call for a multi-vote capital budget referendum.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. Clyde Savage this morning expressed surprise at the mayor's announcement that a five-year capital budget vote would be held in June and that people would have the opportunity to vote for their pet projects.

It was the first they had heard of the proposal.

Haddock is reported as saying it would be the first capital budget ever held in Victoria where voters could select individual projects for completion over the next five years.

Savage said he was astounded that the mayor would make such a positive statement before discussing the proposal with his council.

'SHOT DOWN'

"I always thought we approached these things as a team," Savage said.

"The idea of individuals being able to vote for the projects they think important isn't exactly new, you know. As a matter of fact it was suggested prior to the capital budget vote last year and rejected after debate.

"I remember it because I was the one to support the idea and I was shot down in flames."

Savage said he would probably support any move to reintroduce the separate-project-separate-vote proposal "although right now I feel like bucking it because I haven't been invited to express an opinion."

Ramsay said he presumed the mayor was merely voicing a personal idea.

"It's the first I've heard of it," Ramsay said. "The idea may have merit but it has to have a big question mark against it.

"It certainly needs a lot more study before any definite course of action is proposed. I know I shall want to know much more about the entire proposal before I support it."

Haddock softened his approach slightly this morning.

He said it would be his idea to have all the items on the capital budget program debated and then recommended by council to be included in the five-year plan.

The public, presumably, would then have the choice of accepting or rejecting individual projects although strongly recommended by council.

Onus on Hansen To Make Yanks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Utility infielder Ron Hansen, a 10-year veteran in the major leagues, has been acquired by New York Yankees from Chicago White Sox on a look-see basis.

The Yankees paid a small amount of money to take a look at Hansen and have until April 6 to decide if they want to keep him. If they do, they will pay the White Sox more money or a player to be named later. Hansen has been bothered by back trouble the past few seasons.

PastaPenchant Almost Costly For Paduano

MONTREAL (CP)—Donato Paduano's penchant for pasta almost cost him a crown, but the little Italian-Canadian battler isn't going to let that worry him for the next three weeks.

Paduano, 21, retained his Canadian welterweight boxing championship Tuesday night with a unanimous, but narrow decision over former champion Joey Durelle of Sorel Que. in a rough 12-round bout at the Montreal Forum.

No official attendance figures were announced, but close to 14,000—largely from Montreal's Italian community—brought in an estimated gate of more than $110,000.

It was Paduano's 18th consecutive victory as a pro.

Earlier Tuesday, he had to work for more than two hours to lose 1½ pounds and reach the 147-pound welterweight limit. Durelle was in at 146¼.

"After losing that weight I didn't know if I could go 12 rounds," a jubilant Paduano said after the brawl. "I was a little bit tired."

It was the second match between the two. Paduano of Montreal, now ranked 10th in World Boxing Association ratings, took the title from the 31-year-old Durelle at the same site last Dec. 9, also by decision.

Teddy Brenner, matchmaker for New York's Madison Square Garden, was on hand Tuesday and said Paduano has agreed to a May 11 match at the Garden against undefeated Marcel Cerdan, Jr., of Paris.

Cerdan is the son of former world and French middleweight champion Marcel Cerdan, killed in an air crash more than 20 years ago. Cerdan, Jr., has won 46 straight pro bouts.

"The live gate and closed-circuit television revenue could exceed $500,000," Brenner said of the proposed match. "It will be the largest sum ever for a welterweight bout, including championship fights."

It is believed Paduano will draw close to $50,000 as his end of the purse. Both he and Durelle grabbed 17 per cent of the gate Tuesday night.

SLUGGED IT OUT

Paduano, who appeared to be fighting Durelle's type of fight up to the sixth round by standing in the centre of the ring and trying to slug with the former champ, said:

"He (Durelle) fought a dirty fight," Paduano said. "I had the clean fight."

Both fighters were warned throughout by referee Rosario Baillargeon. Paduano was penalized one point for a low blow in 11th round after being warned in the third for the same offence. Durelle was warned on several occasions about his roughing, bulling, and holding and hitting.

Paduano was given the largest margin by judge Bruno Beaudry who scored 59 points for the champ and 53 for Durelle. Judges Robert Theroux and Armand Brissette scored 58-54 and 58-56 respectively in Paduano's favor.

TIME TO UNITE POLICE, FIRE, SAYS SAVAGE

Amalgamation Talks Sought

CLASSROOM DEMONSTRATION draws curious glances from shoppers in a city department store Tuesday afternoon. Boundary Lines 'Imaginary'

By JIM HUME

Ald. Clyde Savage this morning called for a top-level intermunicipal conference as a first step towards total amalgamation.

"It is time elected officials from all municipalities sat down at the conference table to discuss the first steps towards complete amalgamation of services," Savage said. "We have suffered for long enough at the hands of parochial and often confused thinking at the mixed-up municipal government level."

Savage said he had become more than ever convinced that amalgamation of the four municipalities is essential following a series of meetings between Victoria city council and city hall department heads.

"During those sessions the lack of co-operation between the various areas was a predominant theme," Savage added. "Our fire chief stressed his dificulty in planning fire stations due to the irregular borders of various municipalities.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is also a strong advocate of amalgamation.

One of the main planks in his election platform was a call for one government for the entire area. He still insists that the four core municipalities should have one government or at least combined police and fire services.

"Our comptroller discussed the city's new data processing centre which is capable of handling all the needs of all the municipalities—but others others do not care to use it," said Savage.

"Our traffic engineer notes that it is absolutely impossible to regulate traffic flow in a proper and efficient manner

THAILAND SET TO REPEL REDS

OTTAWA (AP)—Thailand plans to meet any threat to its borders from Communist forces in Laos with its own troops, Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman said today.

He told a news conference following talks with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp that "we have been obliged to face infiltration from Laos with our own forces."

Khoman said North Vietnamese regular forces now are operating in Laos and if they should cross the Thai frontier, Thailand would meet them with its own men. No regulars had entered Thailand so far and he said he doubts they will.

He denied that American forces in Thailand have been used in the fight against Communist troops in Laos.

Denison Sale Appears Likely

OTTAWA (CP)—A 45-minute meeting between Prime Minister Trudeau and Stephen Roman ended today with word that a deal between Roman Corp. and American and British uranium interests may yet go through.

The government Monday threatened legislation to stop sale of Roman Corp., a deal that would have put control of Canada's largest uranium producer, Denison Mines Ltd., into foreign hands. Roman is chairman of both Roman Corp. and Denison Mines.

"It may be possible that the deal will go ahead," Resources Minister J. J. Greene said after the meeting in Trudeau's office.

If a deal could be made "in such a way that uranium resources remain in Canadian corporate hands," the government would allow it, he suggested.

Further talks in Ottawa between the companies and federal officials are scheduled.

Greene and Finance Minister Edgar Benson attended the meeting.

Marshall Crowe, deputy secretary to the cabinet, also was present.

MEET PRESIDENT

Earlier, Greene and Benson met with L. J. Richards, president of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas, the company to which Roman Corp. was to sell its 25.5-per-cent interest in Denison. Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas is 65-per-cent owned by Continental Oil Co. of Wilmington, Del, and 21.9-per-cent owned by Hudson's Bay Co. of London, England.

Roman said in an interview the deal was fully agreed upon Feb. 24 and would have been announced Tuesday.

Roman said the meeting with Trudeau "went very nicely and very satisfactorily."

"The government attitude is very fair," he said.

An effort would be made to "find a solution to our prob-

Crime Has Foothold In B.C., Charges Grit

Organized crime is gaining a foothold in the businesses of B.C. because of easy legislation, it was charged in the legislature Tuesday.

The gambling connections of Benguet Consolidated Ltd., the company which controls Alpine Outdoors Recreation Resource Ltd. in the proposed development of Cypress Bowl, are "only a symptom of this disease," Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said during discussion of the attorney-general's estimates.

Every day, said Williams, organized crime seeks opportunities to invest its illicit profits in legitimate private enterprise.

AVOID DISCLOSURE

Under present provincial laws, it is easy to avoid disclosure of holdings in companies, he said. Someone else could hold shares for the real owners.

Williams suggested a corporations' disclosure act to make it possible to uncover exactly who are actual owners of shares.

NDP MLAs have been repeatedly asking Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to state definitively that Benguet and its affiliates will be barred from operation within B.C.

The Benguet involvement in the province was brought up by opposition leader Dave Barrett at the beginning of the afternoon sitting when he repeated his question of Monday night: "Are they in or are they out?"

STILL INVOLVED

Barrett said he had talked in the morning by telephone to an official of the Grand Bahama Port Authority, an affiliate of Benguet, and was told that the company still considers itself involved in planning for the Cypress Bowl project. He called upon Peterson to give a firm answer on whether Benguet would be able to continue to do business in B.C.

The company official also said that a representative of the company was on his way to the west coast to visit B.C. and carry on negotiations in the case.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Peterson replied that it was "most unlikely" that the company would be permitted to operate in B.C., though there were still some details of the company under investigation.

The attorney-general read letters from Resources Minister Ray Williston sent to Alpine, the company owned 75 per cent by Benguet, indicating that the present financial control of the company was "unacceptable" and setting a deadline of May 31, 1970, for action to be taken.

Barrett asked why Alpine was being given a deadline of May 31 in view of the international reputation of Benguet as a company connected with a crime syndicate.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said he could not understand why investigation of the companies by the attorney-general's department was taking so long in the face of the abundance of material on Wallace Groves, chairman of the Grand Bahama Port Authority.

'INTRIGUE'

The MLA read from a book entitled The Syndicate Abroad by an unamed Miami reporter that described "international intrigue" involving Groves and Myer Lansky, "a former casino operator in Havana during the Batista era."

Williams said a layer representing Alpine had met B.C. Lands Director Walter Redel, and had left with the belief that the company had a subdivision on their hands.

"Does anyone believe that a syndicate that has bought governments wouldn't know what they got?"

Alpine should be told that there are no leases available to them, Benguet told that there is no crown land available to them, and it should be made clear the government will have nothing to do with the group involved with the syndicate in the Bahamas and the U.S., Williams said.

'CHECKERED PAST'

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said it was time that the attorney-general made a "definitive statement." The department had no obligation to the companies, he stated.

ALASKA OIL SLICK KILLS 1,000 BIRDS

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Officials are puzzling over the source of oil that has fouled some 200 miles of shore on Kodiak Island and has killed more than 1,000 sea birds.

A spokesman for the Alaska department of fish and game said an estimated 40,000 gallons of oil had washed ashore. The oil, first reported in small amounts Feb. 15, is continuing to show up on rocks and beaches.

Some authorities believe the pollutant was oily ballast dumped by ships and carried ashore by wind and tide.

Northwest Passage Bid Shelved Temporarily

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The United States petroleum industry has temporarily shelved its assault on the Northwest Passage through Canada's Arctic.

Humble Oil, owners of the Manhattan which successfully forced her way through the ice of the passage last year, said today the reinforced 1,005-foot icebreaking oil tanker is returning to northern waters about April 1, but will remain in Baffin Bay and Perry Channel, in the Eastern Arctic.

They said the tanker will continue experiments to determine the economic feasibility of transporting crude oil from Alaska's North Slope fields to the U.S. East Coast by sea.

Objective of the second voyage is to establish a cost comparison between tanker transport of oil and construction of an overland pipeline.

"We expect no record-making precedent and our planned activities will be mainly restricted to the measuring of ice and testing the ship's performance," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, federal officials believe they have located the key to maintenance of Canadian sovereignty claims in the Arctic, a growing issue with the advent of commercial interest in the Northwest Passage and the related fear of wholesale environmental pollution which could result from an Arctic tanker accident.

The key, informed sources said Tuesday, are two specks of land so small they don't appear on most maps — the Princess Royal Islands in the Prince of Wales Strait.

The American oil tanker Manhattan had to sail through Prince of Wales Strait last summer on her Northwest Passage voyage after trying vainly to use another route which the U.S. could claim as an international waterway.

Informants said the Manhattan desperately tried to get through the other route — McClure Strait — because McClure's width precludes Canada claiming it as territorial sea. Heavy ice blocked the route.

Canada now subscribes to the international regulation that territory extends only three miles from the coast.

4,000 FIJIANS GREET QUEEN

SUVA, Fiji (AP) A crowd of about 4,000 gave an enthusiastic welcome to the Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne when they arrived at Nadi International Airport today for a 24-hour visit to this British colony.

Governor Sir Robert Foster and Lady Foster greeted the royal party at the airport. The Royal Family flew aboard a super VC-10 from Vancouver with a brief stop at Honolulu. They are making a tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Thousands of excited Fijians broke through police cordons at Lautoka for a closer glimpse of the Royal Family.

Opposition Controls Legislature in P.E.I.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Keir Clark, a former Liberal cabinet minister who crossed the floor of the P.E.I. legislature to sit as an Independent Liberal, indicated today he would not vote against the government over the throne speech.

Clark stood in the house Tuesday on a question of privilege and asked Speaker Prosper Arsenault for a seat on the Opposition side of the house. He said he could no longer "be associated with the party of the plan." He referred to the comprehensive economic devlopment plan for the province.

Clark's defection left house standings at 16 Opposition members and 15 on the government side—not including the Speaker. With the Speaker only able to vote to break a tie, the government could be defeated if all 15 Conservatives and Mr. Clark voted against it.

The government's first test was expected to come in about 10 days on a vote of non-confidence at the end of the throne speech debate.

However, Clark said in an interview today that "the speech looks fair to me." He said his vote would depend on conditions at the time but "I don't see anything in the speech that bothers me."

BUSS DIDN'T MOVE FOR 101 MINUTES

MUNICH (AP) — West German Frederic Arroyo, 25, and Monika Schaaf, 22, today claimed the record for the world's longest kiss—one hour 41 minutes.

The pair said their kiss, performed standing up and without embracing, exceeded by five minutes 20 seconds the previous longest kiss claimed by London students David Atkinson, 20, and Jenny Winmill, 19.

French Sub Lost; 57 Feared Dead

PARIS (CP) — A French submarine with 57 men on board is missing in the Mediterranean and the government said it almost certainly is lost.

A defence ministry spokesman reported an explosion at sea had been detected and debris found added: "We can consider it almost certain that the Eurydice is lost."

The Eurydice was taking part in a hide-and-seek naval exercise in an area off the French south coast resort where more than 100 sailors have lost their lives in underwater disasters.

The vessel had been out of radio contact since diving at 7:30 a.m. 1:30 a.m. EST and did not return to the surface at 10 a.m. as scheduled.

All available ships and aircraft were asked to search the area after a reconnaissance plane taking part in the exercise reported the Eurydice overdue in surfacing.

The search force discovered patches of oil near the site where the sub was last reported and 2½ hours later the command ship reported finding debris.

The 850-ton Eurydice normally carries a full compliment of 39 men and six officers. There was no immediate explanation as to why the vessel had 57 persons aboard when it disappeared.

. . . MANHATTAN JOURNEY

Wales Strait is some eight miles across. Thus there would be a width of at least two miles down the middle of the strait which Canada could not claim as territorial sea.

Here's where the Princess Royal Islands come to the rescue.

They lie almost exactly in the middle of the channel and from them both Banks and Victoria Islands are only some five miles away.

Territorial limits are measured from any piece of land, no matter how small. The three-mile limit in this case extends from the two specks of island in the strait as well as from the shores of the much bigger Banks and Victoria Islands.

Thus Prince of Wales Strait to either side of the Princess Royal Islands is Canadian territorial water and subject to full Canadian sovereignty.

This is the only point in the entire Northwest Passage where Canada can assert — and have internationally accepted — a territorial claim over Arctic water.

By contrast, McClure Strait is some 60 miles wide.

Informants said the existence of the Princess Royal Islands will enable Canada to maintain sovereignty over the Northwest Passage at least until somebody finds an easy way to get through ice-filled McClure Strait.

Canadian icebreakers will be present at all future Arctic voyages by super-tankers such as the Manhattan, say two Canadians who took part in the Manhattan's voyage last year.

Rear Adm. A. H. G. Storrs, director of marine operations for the department of transport, and Capt. T. C. Pullen, also of the department, said Tuesday night that icebreakers will be needed for emergency purposes on future voyages.

Firms Form Mortgage Bank System

TORONTO (CP) — The Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada Ltd. and a Toronto real estate firm have established a "mortgage bank" system to try to attract private money into residential mortgage financing.

Clifford Madden, mortgage manager of Harry LePage and Sons Ltd., the real estate firm, said the return on money invested is a guaranteed 10 per cent, and there is no risk because the loan is insured.

The investments are in first mortgages on residential property, he said.

He described the move as an attempt to attract a larger portion of the $25,000,000,000 in personal savings and pension funds in Canada into residential mortgages.

"Most of the savings are now in corporation, federal, provincial and municipal bonds which have proved to be poor investments in the past few years as compared to mortgages," Mr. Madden said.

Noranda Blames Uncertainties In Taxation

Only half of Noranda's 1970 exploration budget will be spent in Canada, thanks to uncertainties in taxation planning.

The reduction was attributed by president and chief executive officer Alfred Powis to adverse proposals of the federal white paper on taxation.

Reporting to shareholders, Powis said Tuesday it is planned to spend more outside the country, although more than 80 per cent of Noranda's exploration budget was spent here just five years ago.

The white paper creates "great uncertainty regarding the most appropriate course for Noranda to follow in the future," Powis said.

Start-up at the Brenda copper-molybdenum mine near Peachland has been declyed about three months due to a series of work stoppages involving construction contractors, adding about $5 million to the $63 million estimate.

17 Oil Companies Bid for Licences

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Seventeen oil companies have bid for licences to explore for oil in a 3,000-square-mile area between Trinidad and Tobago, it has been announced.

The cabinet now will consider the bids and make a decision of granting licences by the end of June.

The companies include Trinidad Canadian Oils Ltd.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Weather conditions in the province overnight were quite variable with cloud general along the coast and over most of the interior. Rain and snow were falling in the north coast with snow having reached the Cariboo.

The system now lying through the Bulkley Valley area will continue southeastward and is expected to weaken with general clearing occurring behind it.

Another system approaching the Oregon, northern California coast will cause some patches of cloud over the south coast today. The next disturbance in the series is near the weather ship and will spread rain into the outer coast late Thursday. Temperatures will remain cold.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

One of the surest ways to develop thrift is to live in a cool climate. Nature worked that out in prehistoric times when adventuring man began to move from one continent to another. He was forced to develop a system based on thrift and foresight.

When prehistoric man managed to travel from the tropics to the temperate zone, he found bad weather that made him shiver. He found that to survive in comfort he had to make warm clothing and save food and supplies for rainy and colder days.

And because the virtues of thrift and foresight were more needed in cool climates, the inhabitants generally grew more prosperous than the people in the tropics who didn't have to worry so much about food. People who were not naturally thrifty were forced into it by the weather. They had to save or starve.

FDA ASKS WARNING WITH PILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration said today it will move to require that drug makers include in all packages of birth control pills a leaflet telling of known and suspected hazards and side effects.

The drug makers at present are required to supply such information only to pharmacists.

The regulation is certain to stir opposition in the medical community and among drug makers. Many witnesses have testified at the subcommittee hearings that the majority of women should not be given such detailed information.

Stiff opposition could delay the regulation from taking effect, cause the FDA to change the leaflet and — as an outside possibility — even prompt a court suit.

Library Holds Line On Staff

Cost slashing, with salaries the biggest casualty, will make things tight for the Greater Victoria Public Library this year.

The library board's finance committee, Brian Tobin explained, has been forced to pare more than $150,000 from the amount originally estimated to cover 1970 needs in order to keep the line at $603,808, the amount allowed by the Greater Victoria municipalities.

The municipalities had set the maximum at $4 per capita, based on 1966 census figures.

The new budget will see a $41,651 reduction in the $386,184 paid out in salaries last year. The library's formal work force of 90 (30 are part time) is down to 75, no one being hired since the beginning of November.

The board approved the estimated budget Tuesday. It must also be approved by the municipalities.

The cutback means that Saanich can't expect a branch library before 1971. Saanich representative Ald. Alan Newberry said his council agreed that Oak Bay — without a branch now — has top priority.

With the addition of $28,050 from book fines, film rentals and other sources, the library will have a total of $631,858 to work with in 1970, up only $1,870 from last year's expenditures.

SURVEY COMPLETED

Board chairman, Ald. Arthur Cuthbert of Esquimalt, said the board agreed to freeze hiring of library staff until a survey on the library's operation was completed by the Vancouver consultant firm of Woods, Gordon and Co.

The survey is now finished and will be studied by board members this evening.

Cuthbert said he intended to make the study public and would probably call a press conference Thursday.

"The public paid $15,000 for the survey which, I think, is a good sound one, and they have a right to know what's in it."

unless we look at the problem on a district-wide basis.

"How can you plan traffic programs and patterns for one municipality without consideration and co-operation from our neighbors?"

Savage said it all "adds up to the fact that nothing can be accomplished in the present situation.

"Just about every plan proposed for the betterment of the area fails in frustration and lack of co-operation."

"Parochial thinking hinders our every move," he continued. "What we need, what we must have is the immediate formation of a group of responsible elected officials to lead us forward to a concrete municipal government governing all of Greater Victoria."

REGIONS

Savage said he had hoped at one time that regional government might lead to amalgamation.

"But obviously it won't," he said. "Regional government is for regional matters, not for urban municipal problems. The regional district will continue to function, but it will not serve, nor should it serve, as a substitute for sound municipal government."

Even at the regional level Savage said parochialism reared its head.

FRUSTRATED

"The fiasco facing us in the hospital construction field is indicative of what I mean," Savage said. "We are constantly frustrated because of imaginary lines between the various municipalites.

"The level of government designed to end parochialism has given us more parochialism than we ever had before."

Savage said he was not calling for instant amalgamation.

"It won't be easy," he said. "But we have to start and we have to bring amalgamation about."

In 1958 ratepayers in Victoria voted in favor of amalgamation while Saanich voters were against. At that time 5,090 voted against joining the city while 2,731 favored the move.

In 1962 a second vote saw the margin narrowed although amalgamation was again rejected. Some 4,869 were against and 3,936 in favor.

Power Corp. Will Make Share Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. has announced a proposal to make a formal share exchange offer for all Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. common shares it does not already own.

If the move is successful, Consolidated-Bathurst, a pulp and paper firm, would become a Power Corp. subsidiary.

The Power Corp. statement said:

"For each common share of Consolidated-Bathurst now held the shareholders of that company will be offered 2½ common shares of Power Corp.

"This offer is to become binding on receipt of not less than 2,300,000 common shares of Consolidated-Bathurst."

Power Corp., a conglomerate which already owns 975,000 of about 6,000,000 outstanding shares in the firm, said it reserves the right to accept any lesser number of shares tendered.

It said the formal offer will be made by the end of April.

Would the deal go through?

"We'll see," Roman said smiling.

POSITION UNCHANGED

Benson said the government's position hasn't changed. Asked whether an alternative offer had been made, he replied: "No, not at all."

Asked whether the proposed Canada Development Corporation had been discussed, he replied: "No, not at all."

He said the proposed sale of Roman Corp. had "no relationship whatsoever" to proposed federal tax changes.

Home on the Sea for Tax-Plagued Land Lubbers?

at the boat show with PAT DUFOUR

If Vancouver's fifth annual boat show is any indication, B.C. waters will soon become as congested as downtown city streets at rush hours.

And, eventually, unless some long-range planning is done, there'll be almost as big a "parking" problem on the marine scene.

There has been criticism in the past that the show was shy on boats, leaning too heavily toward trailers, campers and other sports equipment.

They're still there in quantity this year — but so are the boats, offering a choice from modest-priced kayaks and canoes to luxurious power cruisers that will pry you lose from $50,000 with no trouble at all.

Boat manufacturers, like their less prolific competition, car manufacturers, have used modern technology to the utmost in their bid for the market. In the case of boats, fibreglass is the key to success.

It may also lead to the pitfall of complete conformity.

Gone are the days, except for the really rich, when a boat buyer can dream and plan with his favorite ship builder. It's now a case of choosing one off the assembly line, with or without the frills, depending on your finances, and coming up with a color scheme.

As far as color is concerned, we're still ahead of the Americans. Many of the large boat manufacturers in the United States decline to give their clients any privilege of choice.

This week's "assembly line" in the show at the PNE grounds includes many newcomers, especially from Vancouver yards and designers.

One that's bound to make a hit with the water skiers and those who like to have their sea-time at speed looks like a water-borne snowmobile.

This is the Sea Dart, designed by North Vancouver marine architect Frank Carius. Designed to carry two, the Sea Dart can take speeds of more than 40 miles per hour, using outboard motors ranging from 6 to 25 horsepower. She costs $541 plus the price of the motor.

If you're a do-it-yourselfer and would like a yacht but are strapped with a budget of dinghy dimensions another Vancouver company has the solution. Use cement.

Geoff Wellens and John Samson have gone so far as to write a book on how to build your own power cruiser or 45-foot ketch.

The costs are low enough to give the most cautious of men sea fever. Armed with the $9.95 book and about $1,500 you're well on the way to the ketch of your dreams. For about $1,000 in materias and some labor you can skipper your own 36-footer.

The men's company, Samcon Marine Design Enterprises, is also ready to come up with special designs if you choose to be an individualist.

North Vancouver builder Al Nairn has two entries in the show that are bound to catch the attention of race-circuit sailors.

These are the Cal 21 and Cal 29, latest to come off the planning board of American marine architect Bill Lapworth, whose designs have captured more than their fair share of racing laurels.

The Cal 21 is designed with a retractable keel that allows it to be easily transported by trailer "portage." The Cal 29 is roomy, as most of the Cal boats are, but her hull lines give no suggestion of barginess.

Some of the entries from eastern Canada suggest that West Coast yards will have to pare prices if they hope to stay in competition.

Yachtsmen who think nothing of sinking anything from $15,000 to $21,000 in a 29-foot sloop were amazed this week to see the Hughes 29. Fully equipped, with lots of extras, she goes for $13,000 while the stock boat sells for $10,000.

This is a surprising price tag when you figure she's designed by Sparkman and Stephens, whose genius created the America Cup winner Intrepid.

The Hughes 38, fully equipped at $30,000 is another Sparkman and Stephens design. Like the most sophisticated of 12-metre America Cup entries, she comes with a trim-tab and a rudder for more positive steering.

A fleet of runabouts in various sizes are there to choose from, some in colors as dashing as an Eastern bonnet. There's the occasional traditional white hull but, on the whole, colors are bright.

House boats, by the numbers at the show, are going to solve housing problems for many a tax-plagued homeowner. Canadian Leisure Industries Ltd. have chosen the catamaran twin-hull principle that crams a lot of living into a 24½-footer that sleeps five. Because of her twin hulls she can be easily beached which is just as well because Vancouver is in even worse trouble than Victoria when it comes to docking space.

Displayed at the show are plans for a proposed public marina to be built in West Vancouver. It will provide berthing for 300 pleasure craft — still a drop in the bucket when faced with a boat explosion.

One of the show officials told me he'd come west from Toronto because of his love of boating. "But what do you do when there's no place to keep one?"

His answer, and the solution for other would-be boat owners may lie in a boat you can tote on your back.

Such is the Sportspal canoe. She weighs 29½ pounds and although her hull has the birch-like effect of those in which voyageurs opened up our country, modern science and mass production have combined to give her safety features in line with 1970 standards.

Driver Refused Breath Test Because He Was 'Plastered'

A 23-year-old man who told arresting police officers he was driving his friend home because his friend was drunk was fined a total of $525 in court Tuesday for impaired driving, refusing to supply a breath sample when required to do so and driving without a licence.

Marc Rosa, 1125 Fort, pleaded guilty and was also prohibited from driving in Canada for six months.

He was first observed in the driver's seat of a vehicle stopped at the intersection of Yates and Government about 11 p.m., March 2, with a passenger in the car talking to a pedestrian.

Shortly afterwards he was stopped at Fort and Langley for going the wrong way on Fort and was asked to go to the police station.

He refused to take the breathalyzer test saying he was "plastered."

Judge William Ostler fined Rosa $350 for impaired driving, $150 for refusing to take the breathalyzer test and $25 for driving without a licence.

Paul E. Kirby, 25, of 546 Rithet, was fined $200 when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting 68 cents worth of stationery.

He was observed in the Canada Safeway store in James Bay Feb. 23 about 5:55 p.m. when he picked up some envelopes and writing paper, put them in a shoulder bag and left the store without paying for them.

Ostler noted that the value was "trifling" but pointed out the theft was the principle.

John E. Perry, 18, of 780 Wilson, received a suspended sentence and was placed on a one-year probation for breaking and entering and theft.

He broke into the Old England Inn, 429 Lampson, with another youth and stole about $15 in coins.

Ostler said Perry presented a "vexing" case because he hadn't much going for him but with probation the accused could have a better chance at establishing himself.

Steve Field, 55, of 2949 Shakespeare, was fined $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He was driving a car Feb. 13 about 11 p.m., hit a parked car on Wildwood and drove away.

The force of the crash drove the parked vehicle into a power pole and demolished it.

Crash Injures Two Crofton Men

NANAIMO — Two Crofton men were injured when the car in which they were riding overturned on the Island Highway near Cassidy airport.

Barry Powers, 28, sustained back injuries and is in good condition in hospital. Driver of the car, Peter Hedstrom, 28, was released after treatment for face cuts.

Police said the accident occurred Monday night when Hedstrom attempted to pass another car and the car went out of control, ran into a ditch and turned over.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Hold Gains

Industrial issues continued to hold gains in trading today on the Toronto and New York stock markets.

Prices were also higher at Montreal while at Vancouver prices were mixed in light trading during the morning.

AT TORONTO, Consolidated-Bathurst gained ⅞ to 22¾ while Power Corp. slipped 1⅛ to 9¾.

Power plans to offer 2½ of its power shares for each common Consolidated-Bathurst share it does not already own.

Power now holds about 16½ per cent of Consolidated-Bathurst's outstanding shares.

Denison dropped 1 to 40 while Roman was unchanged at 12⅜. Hudson's Bay Oil was off ¼ to 46.

Roman said it has been negotiating with Hudson's Bay Oil, controlled by Continental Oil Co. of Delaware, for sale of its 25½ per cent interest in Denison.

AT NEW YORK analysts said the market was torn by conflicting forces. Persistent hopes of lower interest rates continued to inspire some buying, but uncertainty over whether there would be a nationwide railroad strike in the U.S. Thursday was disturbing, they said.

AT MONTREAL, all sectors of the stock market moved higher in moderately active trading today. Banks led advances as investors continued to hope for lower interest rates in the near future.

Consolidated Bathurst was active following a report that Power Corp. plans to offer 2½ of its common shares for each share of Consolidated that it does not already own.

Consolidated Bathurst moved up 1⅛ to 23 and about 118,000 shares were traded by 1 p.m. Power Corp. slipped 1 to 9¾.

Denison Mines fell 1 to 40¾ after slipping five points Tuesday when Roman Corp. Ltd. ran into federal government opposition to its plan to sell its 25.5 per cent interest in Denison to Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas.

AT LONDON, prices generally advanced today on the stock exchange following Tuesday's gain on Wall Street and release of the February gold figures for the United Kingdom.

Rank rallied strongly in line with New York and the future prospects of Rank-Xerox as seen by the chairman of the Xerox Corp. ICI, Dunlop, and Beechams were among other leaders to move ahead, although gains were usually small.

British funds were firm at the short end of the market while mediums and longs were steady.

Among Canadians Canadian Pacific added two points. Other gainers included TransCanada Pipe Line, Hiram Walker, Algoma, and Massey-Ferguson. Dome, however, lost six points and Inco also declined. Banks were lower although Montreal firmed against the trend.

AT VANCOUVER prices were mixed in light trading on the stock exchange today. Volume was 141,643 shares to 11 a.m.

Peterson Roasted Over Trust Failure

By BRUCE YEMEN
And VIC PARSONS

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson rod out a barrage of opposition criticism and a non-confidence motion in the legislature Tuesday on his handling of the Commonwealth Trust affair.

A 37-to-12 vote — government against Liberals and New Democrats — crushed the move by Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) to reduce Peterson's salary by $1 to $19,999.

The opposition pressed Peterson to grant at least one fiat giving one of the collapsed company's shareholders the right to sue the government and to give the courts a chance to decide whether Peterson and Premier Bennett were negligent in their handling of the affair.

Gardom raised the Commonwealth matter by repeating a series of questions he had asked Premier Bennett, who as, as finance minister, last week declined to answer.

> '35 People Lost $64,000 In 5 Months'

The Liberal MLA said that during the five-month period that Peterson was attorney-general when the company was still operating, 18 separate cases involving 35 people lost $64,000 in investments. The last case was three days before the RCMP closed the company in November, 1968.

Peterson challenged Gardom's statements that shares were bought by investors after an order was issued to the company president by the finance minister and then attorney -general Robert Bonner, to take corrective action.

"I say this, after having had my officials look into the matter not one share — common or preferred — of the trust company was issued by the trust company subsequent to Feb. 12, 1968."

The only kinds of investment that could be made after that date, said Peterson, were guaranteed investment certificates or by way of deposits and these were fully insured.

Gardom interrupted to say Peterson's statement was "categorically incorrect" and later waved a certificate for 200 Commonwealth Trust shares which had been sold for $7,000 in March to an unsuspecting investor.

"You have not done your job properly," Gardom said.

Instead of defending the right of wronged people to get justice, Gardom said, Peterson was "defending a government here today and defending your own office."

He said it was against the tenets of law for Peterson to be "the judge and jury to your own performance."

Peterson had permitted Commonwealth salesmen to sell more "junk" and that's why many people were bilked, Gardom said.

> 'Can't Guarantee Investments'

Peterson rejected any suggestion that the government was negligent or slow to act in the matter, or that the government allowed investments to continue knowing that the company was about to go under.

"Since when was an investment in a public company guaranteed to be successful?" he asked.

Peterson also criticized those who suggested that the government should have made known the order of Feb. 12.

"Had we made the order known, I expect we would be criticized by those who would say that our disclosure of this order had resulted in a run on trust company funds."

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said the province of Alberta has an act enabling citizens who feel wronged by the crown to seek justice in the courts.

Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said Peterson had tried to distort the opposition stand that people should have the right to sue for damages by saying the opposition was calling for the government to pay back everyone who lost money in the Commonwealth collapse.

All that is being asked, he said, is that the investors who felt wronged have the same right to seek justice as anyone else who had been "failed by a person in a position of trust."

Hatcheries 'Best Bet' For Salmon

A young biochemist at the University of Victoria believes fish hatcheries are the best bet for insuring enough salmon reach the ocean to perpetuate the harvest.

Artificial spawning beds such as the Big Qualicum project are important, Dr. David Groves said Tuesday. And he believes the numerous small streams of the province can be better used for spawning runs.

But the first requirement now is to make sure the ocean is sufficiently stocked with salmon in the face of big rivers being dammed for hydro projects and impaired by mills.

BETTER RETURNS

Rearing salmon in a hatchery can produce better returns by releasing larger fish, he adds.

Groves is one of a number of scientists taking a close look at the cycle of the salmon and as a biochemist he is intrigued by chemical changes involved in growth.

"Our main limitation on growth around here is the water is too cold," he says.

Within limits, warmer water means accelerated growth provided enough feed for the fish is available.

MAN-MADE FOOD

This being so, the possibility of fish-farming salmon on the coast someday presents some interesting scientific challenges and Groves is working on one of them—developing a man-made food for the domesticated fish.

Fat is a vital ingredient but a common form, tallow, can't be used because it won't melt at the temperatures involved. Sunflower oil is being tried with some success.

Balancing protein, a relatively expensive ingredient, to the needs of the fish is another problem.

Dr. Groves estimates local researchers are one or two years away from a winning formula. In any event, it's pretty hard to beat the salmon's natural food—herring—which has everything needed and comes in a convenient package.

If salmon farming comes to B.C., he sees it as a natural development after hatcheries have been established and the needs for sea stocking have been met.

There appears to be a tremendous market for smaller salmon but, particularly in the U.S., there are numerous legislative hurdles to be cleared first.

Details Of Acquittal Made Public

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The cache of hand grenades that led to the arrest of the daughter of T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party and MP for Nanaimo-Cowichan, was supplied by a police undercover agent who acquired the grenades from the United States Navy, court testimony has disclosed.

The agent's action was cited by a federal judge who dismissed charges last month against Shirley Jean Sutherland, 35, of Beverly Hills, and Donald Freed, 37, of West Los Angeles, a school teacher. Prosecutors said the defendants planned to give the grenades to the Black Panther party.

Transcripts of Judge Warren Ferguson's ruling were released by defence lawyers Tuesday at a news conference.

Super Hugger
If it were just an ordinary sportster, we might have introduced it at the ordinary time.
But we didn't.
And as you can see, time was on our side.
Because we didn't bother with the simulated air scoops. Or any other put-ons that might put you off.
Instead we took the time to build a whole new car from the ground up. In four distinctive versions: Standard, Rally Sport, Super Sport and Z28.
We started with a sleek new shape and a low road-hugging stance. So it hovers a few short inches from the pavement. Right down there with Corvette.
To that we added more hood. A faster fastback. More window area. And wider doors for easier entry.
On RS models, there's even a resilient bumper that surrounds the grille. To protect against nicks and knocks.
Compare the new Camaro with any competitive car in its field.
If you can find one.
Two extra buckets. No extra bucks.
Most sportsters give you two buckets in front. And a sofa in back. We've done them two better.
The back seat sofa is out. In are two rear bucket-styled cushions.
Up front the buckets are deeply contoured to put you firmly in place. And keep you there. Even in tight turns.
The instrument panel is just as functional. It's flat black and wraps around. With enough dials and instrumentation to make you think you're piloting a 747.
Only with this one you don't need a flight crew.
The special handling is built right in.
Camaro always had a tough reputation when it came to taking on tight turns. Now we've made it tougher.
With a forward-mounted steering linkage and an improved front and rear suspension that give the new Camaro a leech-like grip on the road.
It's something other cars will have a tough time coming to grips with.
What motivates all this?
Six power plants up to the 360-hp Turbo-Fire 350 you can order. And four transmissions.
Pick the combination that best suits your driving.
Then go pick on an open road.
Standard front disc brakes. You stop as well as you go.
It's only natural.
With all that go, you want an equal amount of stop. You've got it.
Front disc brakes are standard. For less heat buildup. And more resistance to fade.
New Camaro. The Super Hugger.
Other sportsters always feared it might come to this. And they were right.
Only their timing was wrong.
Putting you first, keeps us first.

Gas Stations Organize To Protest Assessments

Victoria service station operators — alarmed by substantial increases in their 1970 business rental assessments — are planning a full-scale protest at the court of revision on March 18.

Robert Dunsmuir, chairman of the Automotive Retailers Association Victoria group, said 25 members representing 97 per cent of the city membership, met Tuesday night to discuss their course of action with Ald. Ove Witt.

The assessments, upon which business tax is calculated (last year 6¼ per cent), have risen by three, four and five times their 1969 levels, operators contend.

No explanation of the dramatic rise has been given by city hall, they say.

Today, city assessor Alfred Joyce said the entire business assessment roll has been updated.

"All business premises in the city of Victoria, including service stations, are being assessed on the same basis," he said.

City manager Dennis Young confirmed the total assessment roll had risen from $9.5 million to $12.5 million.

"There was no relationship to actual rental values," Joyce said, even though actual rentals were used only as a guide when the assessments were calculated.

An assessment appraiser uses his professional judgment in arriving at the figures, Joyce said.

$5,700 MORE

Among factors he must consider are location of the business, condition of the building, nature of the busines, other tenants, and the relationship of tenant to owner.

The service station operators cited one notice that rose from $3,600 last year to $9,000 this year; another from about $2,800 to $13,500 (also involving expanded premises); a third from $8,620 to $13,780.

Joseph Armitage, an operator on the edge of the downtown core, said his increase represented "$5,700 more than I pay in rent."

"I would like Mr. Young to tell me why two businesses of identical property and identical buildings on Oak Bay Avenue are assessed differently. One is 50 per cent more than the other and does 50 per cent less business," Dunsmuir said.

Young admitted the assessments had not been kept up to date, but he suggested the way to go about protesting is to make written protest to the court of revision.

Dunsmuir said the meeting was impressed by Ald Witt, who did not promise a remedy but did agree to act as liaison between the operators and city hall and urged the operators to make their protest to the court of revision.

Dunsmuir said one of the objections was that the increases were imposed all at once which, Joyce explained, is council policy.

"To the best of my knowledge, compared with the average retailer, the increases to sevice stations are way out of line. We want a justification," he said.

HEATING INDUSTRY WARMS TO COOL-AID PLIGHT

The plumbing and heating industry of Greater Victoria will donate $75 a month to Cool-Aid for the next year.

The decision was made Tuesday night after Cool-Aid organizer Charles Barber outlined the past programs of the organization which helps young people in trouble.

Alex Rawlings, chairman of the Mechanical Trade Promotion Fund, a labor-management group charged with the responsibility of promoting the mechanical trades, said the monthly donation would be part of a continuing program of community interest.

Last year the same group, comprised of management and members of Local 324 Plumbers and Pipefitters Union, donated the materials and the labor to install new plumbing in the Victoria Hostel for Girls on Fernwood.

"We were all pretty proud of that effort," Rawlings said. "I think we shall be just as proud of this a year from now."

MONTHLY DEFICIT

Barber noted that this year's operation will be a little tougher than last because Cool-Aid was $72.50 a month short of operating capital.

Tom Wheatley, business agent for Local 324, suggested the MTPF donate $75 a month to cover the deficit. Michael J. Griffin supported the move on behalf of management.

In addition to the involvement with the girls hostel and Cool-Aid the mechanical trades also sponsor a $300 University of Victoria scholarship annually.

FIREMEN TO HOLD BABYSITTER TALKS

A seminar for babysitters is being arranged by the Saanich fire department.

Approval to go ahead was given Tuesday night by the municipal fire committee.

The seminar, which Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland hopes will be held after Easter, will go much further than fire prevention in the home.

It is planned to hold a 10-lecture series including practical demonstrations of baby feeding, a talk by a pediatrician, kitchen safety and food preparation, resuscitation, a safety talk by police, activities for pre-school youngsters as well as fire safety.

There would also be a review and test and a graduation ceremony.

'If you look around

It's getting worse every year'

She Saw Real Pollution

By HUMPHRY DAVY

A young American woman teaching at the University of Victoria says she doesn't want to see pollution get out of hand in British Columbia as it has in many parts of the United States.

"I remember hiking in California and seeing trees dying from air pollution," said Betsy Sweeney, a laboratory instructor in physiology.

"I've seen many dead birds washed ashore because of oil pollution at sea.

"I've seen green places ruined by litter and refuse.

"It could happen here too. It is actually happening but by slow degrees."

Her first-hand experience with environmental decline is the main reason she is taking an active interest in the big teach-in on Environment Tomorrow at the University of Victoria Saturday, she said.

She and more than 50 students have been planning and working on the public meeting for weeks.

A former resident of southern California and a graduate of San Fernando Valley State College, near Los Angeles, she had devoted much time and study to environmental decay since she made Victoria her permanent home five years ago.

She says there has only been talk on preventing pollution in British Columbia.

"If you look around it's getting worse every year," she said.

She pointed out that there are places around Victoria where you can't go swimming because of pollution. There was plenty of evidence of litter along public highways. There were reports that some birds had died from insecticide poisoning.

"Unless people take action to prevent this, it will get worse," she warned.

She feels the government should launch a feasibility study to determine if it will be in the economic interest of both the pulp and paper industry and province to have the companies pool their production resources.

"Is it really necessary for pulp mills to establish themselves on every major river on Vancouver Island to detriment of other resources?" she asked. "is it really necessary for them to each establish a little empire?"

(The CPR is now seeking a site to establish a new pulp mill)

She noted that some industries were pooling their production resources.

"We are facing an environmental crisis," she added. "In developed areas in the United States the situation is serious."

Why is the Uvic Biology Club sponsoring a teach-in when people are already concerned about pollution — when there is so much talk about environmental decay?

"We feel that although the public is concerned, it is not really informed," she replied. "But equally as important is what can we do about it."

She said these matters will be discussed by panels of experts at Saturday's meetings.

She hoped the public will support proposed follow-up activities.

Mrs. Sweeney said the teach in will take in land-use and conservation.

"It is important that large natural areas be established at this time," she said. "We were pleased when a large part of the west coast was set aside as a natural park."

The Victoria teach-in is the first in Canada, she said.

In the United States, universities from coast to coast planned massive teach-ins for April.

"It is a subject everyone should get involved in," she said. "Today were are faced with a crisis. Some scientists even say it is too late because the present levels of air pollution, pesticides, resource consumption, have already overstepped the limits up to which the earth's systems can compensate.

Mrs. Sweeny is not so pessimistic. She thinks there is still time — if people act now.

"What can you do? Come to the meeting."

SCULPTURED MESS will be one of the ways the University of Victoria teach-in Saturday will try to imprint on the minds of the public how common pollution is becoming.

22-Acre Site For Hospital Approved

The region's hospital board has approved purchase of a 22-acre hospital site in Central Saanich.

The property is on Mount Newton Crossroad west of the Patricia Bay Highway and will cost $128,000.

Bill Long, the board's executive secretary, said today the next step is obtaining approval of Health Minister Ralph Loffmark for the purchase.

Plans call for a 150-bed hospital on the site, to replace Resthaven Hospital at Sidney.

Half the beds will be for extended care, meaning long-term bed-ridden patients who require constant nursing rather than doctor's care.

Funds for these beds have already been approved by referendum but the other 75 acute care beds must still go to a public vote.

The regional hospital board has had the Central Saanich site under consideration for some time.

A potential hitch in plans involves sewers. A sewer plan was rejected by Central Saanich voters last year but an amended program will be put to a referendum again in June.

"We'd have to make our own arrangements if there were no sewers there," Long said. He did not elaborate.

Whale's Sex Remains Mystery

The sex of the albino killer whale captured with four other whales by a crew from Oak Bay Marina's Sealand Sunday still remains a mystery.

Today the 16-man crew at Pedder Bay where the pod is netted were struggling to reset the two nets closer in, hoping to eventually form a closer pen close to the north shore of the bay.

A Sealand spokesman said once the pen was made the next step would be to try and determine the white whale's sex.

"This can be determined, sometimes, by the dorsal fin, depending on the age of the animal."

The white whale is estimated to be about 2½-year-old and may be too young for the diagnosis to work.

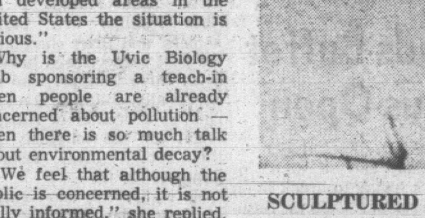
Meanwhile, the crew is maintaining a round-the-clock vigil and Pedder Bay Marina remains closed to fishermen and visitors.

Accident Victim Dies in Hospital

Mrs. Helen Mitchell, 69, of 1761 Pembroke, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday 10 days after she was injured in a three-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Chemainus River Road.

RCMP said at the time of the accident Feb 21 Mrs. Mitchell was a passenger in a car driven by Francis Robert Crabbe, 26, of 2856 Fith, when another vehicle tried to pass them. Six people went to hospital.

Mrs. Mitchell was transferred from Chemainus Hospital to St. Joseph's Feb. 25.



Arthur Mayse . . .

A WELSHMAN WHO WAS also a poet once tossed a question to his readers:

"What is this life if full of care, we have no time to stand and stare?"

What, indeed: but the staring W. H. Davies approved was not the sort that reportedly hindered ambulance men and obstructed police at the scene of the collision that claimed four lives last Sunday.

"I don't know what it is," a Saanich police sergeant is quoted as saying of the dark attraction that riveted the starers to the accident location. Justifiably angry, he suggested morbid curiosity or plain ghoulishness as motives.

But the why of the primitive urge matters less than the fact of this flocking of starers where trouble strikes. By their presence, they create a clutter that adds to the problem of rescue or cleanup.

The merely thoughtless who form a close circle around some downed victim of accident or seizure—muttering, "Oh, the poor man!" while a luckless human struggles for air—would do well to move on if they can't offer knowledgeable help.

As for the stubborn obstructionist who maintains his right to stand and stare even if his visual blood-drinking delays rescue and costs a life, let him share the scene by all means.

. . . In the back of a police car, I suggest, with a court appearance pending!

B.C.'s FIRST ENVIRONMENT teach-in is coming up on Saturday at University of Victoria under Uvic Biology Club sponsorship. This 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. scrutiny of earth as a space ship with limited life-support systems will be a lively as well as an instructive affair.

There will be speakers, discussion groups, films and displays. Also, the Pollution Players and the Clean-Air Singers will help put across the teach-in message that "The Environment You Save is Your Own."

Never having run into any anti-pollutions songs, I was curious to learn about them, and have borrowed a few numbers that will be aired during Saturday's interludes.

Here are a couple of pungent snatches from The Ballad of Beautiful B.C.:

We export Alberni fog
L.A. smog
Compliments of Beautiful
B.C.

And again, from the same:

Santa Barbara gave us a
lesson I fear
But don't worry, folks,
here' . . .
Here in Beautiful B.C.

Some of the songs are imports. The Sounds of Silence is one, and that well-seasoned inevitable, The Times They Are A-Changing is another. And here's a highly-pertinent revamp of This Land is Your Land.

While French and English
were busy crying,
U.S. investors were quietly
buying.
We didn't spot it until they'd
got it,
This land that's made for
you and me.

Froth on the wave? By no means. The intent is serious, and the teach-in sponsors promise a vigorous delving into their theme of Environment Tomorrow.

There's no charge for attendance, and Victorians who go should come away well-informed on environmental problems of grave import.

If they're left unsolved, in fact, our species could run out of tomorrows.

VICTORIA YOUTH COUNCIL's brisk news letter electrified any number of its readers in its last issue by requesting the services of "One daredevil stuntman who is willing to fall down the waterfall at China Beach."

I'm told the invitation to plunge down this Niagara-in-miniature was no more than a bit of funning.

"But what surprised us," said one of the young men concerned, "is that we got a fast reply from a daredevil stuntman willing to volunteer."

There at the moment, the matter rests. And possibly just as well, since the story is that the last falls-rider took a cruel beating!

Tonight's Top Television Shows

COMEDY HOUR HOST on Music Hall tonight at 9 on Channel 5 is the versatile Alan King. King's Wonderful World of Aggravations touches quite a few soft spots.

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is a 1962 biography of Dr. Sigmund Freud, directed by John Huston. It's at eight on Channel 8, midnight on Channel 6. Montomery Clift, Susannah York and Larry Parks star.

SPECIAL. 8, Channels 2 and 6. Spatsizi (Indian for red goat) is a visit to a remote part of northern British Columbia's Cassiar district. Films show the efforts of Tom Walker to convert the area into a hunting range and conservation reserve. On film, as well, are excellent shots of most of the indigenous wildlife.

DRAMA SPECIAL. 9, Channels 2 and 6. Man Made. A young man becomes the unwilling guinea pig in an experiment conducted by the unfeeling Dr. Packman. His task is to father a revolutionary human being — totally knowledgeable, disease-resistant and technological. Joseph Shaw stars as Dr. Packman.

COMEDY CRACKERS. 10:30 Channels 2 and 6. Former football great Sam Etcheverry clowns with the cast at the B and B Pub. A stripper delves into election promises and a frustrated TV host can't get his guests to talk.

MUSIC HALL. 9, Channel 5. "Alan King's Wonderful World of Aggravation — Part II." Here's a sequel to last year's hour with Alan King in which he poked fun at the minor and major aggravations which touch us all. Tonight, Paul Lynde, Michele Lee and Ann Meara assist King in a number of amusing sketches and songs. Highlights include King and Ann Meara staging a mock fight in order to convince their bickering friends (Lynde and Michele Lee) to stay married and a sketch about parents visiting their sons at college.

JOHNNY CASH SHOW. 9, Channel 4. Tonight's roster of guests are all in the country-western grove and host Cash is right at home with them. There's little Brenda Lee singing "Jonny One-Time"; Pete Seeger applying his relaxed style on "Worried Man Blues"; and Roger Miller having fun with "Tom Green County Fair." In his concert spot, Cash sings his current hit, "A Boy Named Sue" and "The Devil to Pay."

ROOM 222. 8:30, Channel 4, "The New Boy." This series does well with problem students and Mr. Dixon has his hands full with one tonight. Rick Kelman plays Dennis, a student transferred from another high school because of his poor record, and it's hard for kids and the teachers to pinpoint his problem at first. But Dennis' uncontrollable need to lie soon becomes apparent to all.

MEDICAL CENTER. 9, Channel 12 After avoiding emotional entanglements for Dr. Joe Gannon, the series gives him a hearts and flowers love story, and it should please his female following. Gannon takes a Mexican vacation, meets and falls in love with a tour director, played by star Chad Everett's real-life wife, Shelby Grant. To keep the medical aspect alive, the tour director has an auto accident and Gannon steps in to find more deep-seeded factors. Romance is the point here, and Chad Everett gives it the old school try.

ENGLEBERT HUMPERDINCK SHOW. 7:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 4. The British singing star has quite a talented lineup of stars appearing on his show tonight, led by Jerry Lewis, in a rare TV appearance. Jerry and Engel have some fun with short sketches and team of vocally, too. Jerry also solos to "Blues In Hoss' Flat." Other guests include the pop British singer Lulu, the incomparable Ray Charles, and Marilyn Michaels, who offers stunning impersonations of Ethel Merman, Barbra Streisand and Judy Garland.

HAWAII FIVE-O. 10, Channel 12. Although the resume of last week's action takes forever, Part II of the hunt for a deadly test-tube virus which threatens the island population finally gets running room. The chase concentrates on emotional scenes between Establishment officials and the disturbed genius and his growing romance with telephone operator Loretta Swit. Histrionics are high and only McGarrett keeps his cool while taking a few pot shots at government men who want the virus left intact. It's a fairly engrossing effort and acknowledgements are due to star Jack Lord; the sweating, eye-blinking scientist Ed Flanders' and wholesome Loretta Swit, who has a way with a line.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30, Channel 12: Thunder Over Hawaii (1960 drama), Richard Denning, Beverly Garland.

8:30, Channel 8: Freud (1962 biography), Montgomery Clift, Susannah York.

9:00, Channel 7: The Thrill of It All (1963 comedy), Doris Day, James Garner, Arlene Francis.

11:30, Channel 7: Posse from Hell (1961 western), Audie Murphy, John Saxon.

12:00, Channel 2: Experiment Perilous (1944 drama), Hedy Lamarr, George Brent, Paul Lukas.

12:00, Channel 6: Freud (see above).

12:00, Channel 8: The Sound of Anger (1968 crime drama), Guy Stockwell, Burl Ives.

1:05, Channel 5: Paula (1952 drama), Loretta Young, Kent Smith.

1:30, Channel 13: Black Sheep of Whitehall (1942 English comedy), Will Hay, John Mills.

Contempt Charge Hearing Continues

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hearing continues today on an application for a writ claiming contempt of a coroner's court by newspaper columnist Allan Fotheringham.

In seeking the writ, the British Columbia's attorney-general's department also seeks an order for "a fine or other appropriate penalty or punishment" for the Sun Publishing Co. Ltd.

At issue is a column, published in the Vancouver Sun Jan. 27, which commented on the conduct of Surrey coroner H. S. Keenleyside at a Jan. 23 inquest into the death of Evangeline Azarcon, 7, abducted last fall from near her city home.

The column, read into the court record Tuesday, termed Mr. Keenleyside's conduct "callous and unthinking."

Fotheringham, who said his column was "a background column with opinions on politics, business and general current events," told the B.C. Supreme Court hearing he was writing on the reactions of half a dozen reporters at the inquest.

Moira Farrow, a Sun reporter who attended the inquest, told the court she was "upset and angry" at the "abrupt, brisk and schoolmasterly" way Keenleyside handled the inquest.

"We were shocked," Miss Farrow said. She said she returned to her office the day of the inquest, wrote a news story on the proceedings and a day later left a memorandum on it which Fotheringham said was the basis for his column.

In the column, he said he felt that the presence at the inquest of Mrs. Azarcon was unnecessary. He said that after hearing evidence her daughter had been raped the mother "broke down and at the end of the inquest collapsed."

George Murray, acting for the attorney-general's department, called as witnesses RCMP Sergeant Ellis Domay and Corporal Hilton Randall, both of the Surrey detachment.

Both testified that they had, at the coroner's request, made two unsuccessful attempts to dissuade Mrs. Azarcon from attending the inquest.

NEWFIE GETS CURLING FINAL

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 1972 Canadian curling championship has been awarded to St. John's Nfld.

The site of the 1972 Canadian playoff was announced by the Canadian Curling Association.

Newfoundland has competed in the Canadian final since 1951, but the championship has not been played in that province during that time.

The 1971 championship will be played in Quebec City.

Onus on Hansen To Make Yanks

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Utility infielder Ron Hansen, a 10-year veteran in the major leagues, has been acquired by New York Yankees from Chicago White Sox on a look-see basis.

The Yankees paid a small amount of money to take a look at Hansen and have until April 6 to decide if they want to keep him. If they do, they will pay the White Sox more money or a player to be named later. Hansen has been bothered by back trouble the past few seasons.

Packers Deal Rowser

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers of the National Football League have traded three-year veteran cornerback John Rowser to Pittsburgh Steelers for tight end John Hilton. Rowser, 25, had played out his option with Green Bay and becomes a free agent May 1 unless the Steelers sign him.

Scholarship Fund

NEW YORK (AP) — Orville Moody, the U.S. Open golf champion, says he plans to set up a $2,500 scholarship fund to be given annually to some deserving and needy youngster. Moody said the funds would be raised by an exhibition match to be staged on some eastern course.

MP Raise Blasted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of Parliament should help the old before they think of raising their own salaries, Ray Haynes, secretary of the British Columbia Federation of Labor, said today.

"MPs from all parties should be ashamed of themselves if they approve or accept any increase until there has been a substantial increase in old age pensions and, even more important, until they have removed the two per cent ceiling on the cost-of-living increase," Haynes said in a prepared statement.

He said it might be an idea for the federal prices and incomes commission to look into the question of proposed increases for MPs.

Hospital Employees Accept Pact

About 8,500 non-medical workers now receiving a wide range of wages at 68 British Columbia hospitals voted narrowly to accept a new two-year contract which includes a $100 monthly increase and a 37½-hour work week.

A spokesman for the B.C. Hospital Employees Union said Tuesday night the contract was ratified by a narrow margin. Earlier polls taken by the union had indicated the employees favored strike action.

Locally, non-medical workers at St. Joseph's, Mount St. Mary and the Queen Alexandra Solarium will be affected by the agreement.

Fringe benefits include additional vacation time and improved arrangements for employees on call.

SIX-METRE SUPPORT

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee executive board had recommended a new six-metre class for Olympic yathting.

School Reopens

VANCOUVER (CP) — The David Lloyd George elementary school reopened here today following an attic fire Tuesday which caused between $50,000 and $75,000 damage.

Sentence Suspended

PEMBERTON (CP) — Mary James, 21, of Pemberton Tuesday was given a two-year suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of child abandonment. She was originally charged with criminal negligence when her four-year-old daughter died in a house fire Jan. 12 in this community 90 miles north of Vancouver.

Ex-Banker Charged

LANGLEY (CP) — John Duncan Urqhart, 39, former manager of the Langley branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Tuesday was charged with seven counts of fraud involving $44,000.

Urqhart's lawyer, Tom Braidwood of Vancouver, said in provincial court that his client will plead guilty. He said the former manager made no personal gain from his actions, which involved bank client's stock dealings.

Urqhart was freed on $5,000 property bail and is to appear in court again March 10.

Pair Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Melvin Edwin Willock, 20, and Dennis John King, 23, both of Richmond, were charged Tuesday with armed robbery after a man was forced from a car and robbed of $50 at knifepoint.

Contract Awarded

PORT MOODY (CP) — Russ Reid Ltd. of this community has been awarded a $56,000 federal public works for a single-storey federal building at Masset on the Queen Charlotte Islands, to house the post office and the forestry and fisheries department.

Multi-Vote Call Miffs Aldermen

At least two Victoria aldermen want more information from Mayor Courtney Haddock before supporting his call for a multi-vote capital budget referendum.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. Clyde Savage this morning expressed surprise at the mayor's announcement that a five-year capital budget vote would be held in June and that people would have the opportunity to vote for their pet projects.

It was the first they had heard of the proposal.

Haddock is reported as saying it would be the first capital budget ever held in Victoria where voters could select individual projects for completion over the next five years.

Savage said he was astounded that the mayor would make such a positive statement before discussing the proposal with his council.

'SHOT DOWN'

"I always thought we approached these things as a team," Savage said.

"The idea of individuals being able to vote for the projects they think important isn't exactly new, you know. As a matter of fact it was suggested prior to the capital budget vote last year and rejected after debate.

"I remember it because I was the one to support the idea and I was shot down in flames."

Savage said he would probably support any move to reintroduce the separate-project-separate-vote proposal "although right now I feel like bucking it because I haven't been invited to express an opinion."

BIG QUESTION MARK

Ramsay said he presumed the mayor was merely voicing a personal idea.

"It's the first I've heard of it," Ramsay said. "The idea may have merit but it has to have a big question mark against it.

"It certainly needs a lot more study before any definite course of action is proposed. I know I shall want to know much more about the entire proposal before I support it."

Haddock softened his approach slightly this morning.

He said it would be his idea to have all the items on the capital budget program debated and then recommended by council to be included in the five-year plan.

The public, presumably, would then have the choice of accepting or rejecting individual projects although strongly recommended by council.

Colwood Divers Aid in Recovery

SURREY (CP) — RCMP today were attempting to identify the body of a youth recovered from the waters of Semiahmoo Bay. It is believed to be that of Richard Kendall, 13, of Surrey, lost Saturday when a boat capsized in the bay.

The body was recovered Tuesday at 6 p.m. by a team of four naval divers from the Colwood unit, led by CPO Robert Larsen.

Drinking Age Drops to 19

The age of majority in British Columbia will be lowered from 21 to 19 years of age in a bill introduced into the legislature today by Attorney-General Peterson.

This means that persons 19 years of age will be eligible to purchase and consume liquor, hold property, get married without permission of parents, and any other rights previously granted persons 21 or over.

The bill automatically means all references to age 21 in existing statutes will be read as 19, and gives the cabinet power to amend any regional or municipal bylaw to substitute the age of 19 for 21.

There have been indications for some time that the province would move toward making the majority 19.

In recent years the provincial voting age was dropped to 19 while federal and funicipal elections require the voter be 21.

The three-man commission investigating liquor legislation in the province received a number of suggestions that the legal drinking age be lowered to 19 from 21.

Their report has not yet been released, but when the commission was established a year ago, Premier Bennett said some of the commission's recommendations might be incorporated before a final report appeared.

On Monday, the government introduced a new Land Act in the legislature which reduced the age limit for applications for Crown land from 21 to 19.

And on Tuesday the attorney-general said the government is considering lowering the legal age of juveniles from 18 to 17. (See story page 45.)

Boundary Lines 'Imaginary'

By JIM HUME

Ald. Clyde Savage this morning called for a top-level intermunicipal conference as a first step towards total amalgamation.

"It is time elected officials from [illegible] municipalities sat down at the conference table to discuss the first steps towards complete amalgamation of services," Savage said. "We have suffered for long enough at the hands of parochial and often confused thinking at the mixed-up municipal government level."

Savage said he had become more than ever convinced that amalgamation of the four municipalities is essential following a series of meetings between Victoria city council and city hall department heads.

"During those sessions the lack of co-operation between the various areas was a predominant theme," Savage added. "Our fire chief stressed his dificulty in planning fire stations due to the irregular borders of various municipalities.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is also a strong advocate of amalgamation.

One of the main planks in his election platform was a call for one government for the entire area. He still insists that the four core municipalities should have one government or at least combined police and fire services.

"Our comptroller discussed the city's new data processing centre which is capable of handling all the needs of all the municipalities—but others do not care to use it," said Savage.

"Our traffic engineer notes that it is absolutely impossible to regulate traffic flow in a proper and efficient manner

Amalgamation—prove it works.

That, in the final analysis, will be what voters in Greater Victoria's four core muncipalities will want to know before they decide the issue.

And that, essentially, sums up Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford's reaction today to Victoria Ald. Clyde Savage's call for a series of top-level intermunicipal meetinsg to decide what steps must be taken to bring amalgamation about.

Mayor Courtney Haddock of Victoria is convinced it's the only answer to ending confusion and guaranteeing co-operation of the municipalities in matters of common concern.

And Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings, the minister of trade and industry, recently told the legislature that amalgamation is the only way.

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce agrees 100 per cent.

But Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich isn't so sure. He says amalgamation might be irrelevant as regional government becomes more effective — regional government now is reponsible for such area-wide matters as hospitals, planning, sewers and parks.

The voters of Saanich, who, because of numbers, will have the largest voice in the question, might not be so sure.

Twice they defeated attempts to amalgamate their municipality with Victoria. Victoria ratepayers voted in favor in 1958, but Saanich voted 5,090 to 2,731 against.

In 1962 the vote was again defeated 4,869 to 3,936.

Mayor Elford says she is ready to discuss the matter, but: "I've said all along — if anyone can prove to me there will be a financial saving and no appreciable loss of the relationship the people of Oak Bay enjoy with their council, I have an open mind."

But she has doubts, naming Oak Bay the municipality with the least to gain and the most to lose.

Its problem, since the district is already built up, is maintaining services, while amalgamation would mean "paying for expansion in other municipalities."

And the bureaucratic superstructure that would accompany an amalgamated administration

Crime Has Foothold In B.C., Charges Grit

Organized crime is gaining a foothold in the businesses of B.C. because of easy legislation, it was charged in the legislature Tuesday.

The gambling connections of Benguet Consolidated Ltd., the company which controls Alpine Outdoors Recreation Resource Ltd. in the proposed development of Cypress Bowl, are "only a symptom of this disease," Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said during discussion of the attorney-general's estimates.

Every day, said Williams, organized crime seeks opportunities to invest its illicit profits in legitimate private enterprise.

AVOID DISCLOSURE

Under present provincial laws, it is easy to avoid disclosure of holdings in companies, he said. Someone else could hold shares for the real owners.

Williams suggested a corporations' disclosure act to make it possible to uncover exactly who are actual owners of shares.

NDP MLAs have been repeatedly asking Attorney-General Leslie Peterson to state definitively that Benguet and its affiliates will be barred from operation within B.C.

The Benguet involvement in the province was brought up by opposition leader Dave Barrett at the beginning of the afternoon sitting when he repeated his question of Monday night: "Are they in or are they out?"

STILL INVOLVED

Barrett said he had talked in the morning by telephone to an official of the Grand Bahama Port Authority, an affiliate of Benguet, and was told that the company still considers itself involved in planning for the Cypress Bowl project. He called upon Peterson to give a firm answer on whether Benguet would be able to continue to do business in B.C.

The company official also said that a representative of the company was on his way to the west coast to visit B.C. and carry on negotiations in the case.

'UNACCEPTABLE'

Peterson replied that it was "most unlikely" that the company would be permitted to operate in B.C., though there were still some details of the company under investigation.

The attorney-general read letters from Resources Minister Ray Williston sent to Alpine, the company owned 75 per cent by Benguet, indicating that the present financial control of the company was "unacceptable" and setting a deadline of May 31, 1970, for action to be taken.

Barrett asked why Alpine was being given a deadline of May 31 in view of the international reputation of Benguet as a company connected with a crime syndicate.

Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said he could not understand why investigation of the companies by the attorney-general's department was taking so long in the face of the abundance of material on Wallace Groves, chairman of the Grand Bahama Port Authority.

The MLA read from a book entitled The Syndicate Abroad by an unnamed Miami reporter that described "international intrigue" involving Groves and Myer Lansky, "a former casino operator in Havana during the Batista era."

Williams said a lawyer representing Alpine had met B.C. Lands Director Walter Redel, and had left with the belief that the company had a subdivision on their hands.

"Does anyone believe that a syndicate that has bought governments wouldn't know what they got?"

Alpine should be told that there are no leases available to them, Benguet told that there is no crown land available to them, and it should be made clear the government will have nothing to do with the group involved with the syndicate in the Bahamas and the U.S., Williams said.

'CHECKERED PAST'

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said it was time that the attorney-general made a "definitive statement." The department had no obligation to the companies, he stated.

Manhattan Foregoes Full Passage Test

Times News Services

HOUSTON, Tex. — The United States petroleum industry has switched strategy in its assault on the Northwest Passage through Canada's Arctic.

Humble Oil, owners of the Manhattan which successfully forced her way through the ice of the passage last year, said today the reinforced 1,005-foot icebreaking oil tanker is returning to northern waters about April 1, but will engage in tests in Baffin Bay and the Eastern Arctic.

They said the tanker will continue experiments to determine the economic feasibility of transporting crude oil from Alaska's North Slope fields to the U.S. East Coast by sea.

Objective of the second voyage is to establish a cost comparison between tanker transport of oil and construction of an overland pipeline.

"We expect no record-making precedent and our planned activities will be mainly restricted to the measuring of ice and testing the ship's performance," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile in Ottawa, federal officials believe they have located the key to maintenance of Canadian sovereignty claims in the Arctic, a growing issue with the advent of commercial interest in the Northwest Passage and the related fear of wholesale environmental pollution which could result from an Arctic tanker accident.

The key, informed sources said Tuesday, are two specks of land so small they don't appear on most maps — the Princess Royal Islands in the Prince of Wales Strait.

The American oil tanker Manhattan had to sail through Prince of Wales Strait last summer on her Northwest Passage voyage after trying vainly to use another route which the U.S. could claim as an international waterway.

Informants said the Manhattan desperately tried to get through the other route — McClure Strait — because McClure's width precludes Canada claiming it as territorial sea. Heavy ice blocked the route.

Canada now subscribes to the international regulation that territory extends only three miles from the coast.

At its narrowest point, Prince of

Opposition Controls Legislature in P.E.I.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Keir Clark, a former Liberal cabinet minister who crossed the floor of the P.E.I. legislature to sit as an Independent Liberal, indicated today he would not vote against the government over the throne speech.

Clark stood in the house Tuesday on a question of privilege and asked Speaker Prosper Arsenault for a seat on the Opposition side of the house. He said he could no longer "be associated with the party of the plan." He referred to the comprehensive economic development plan for the province.

Clark's defection left house standings at 16 Opposition members and 15 on the government side—not including the Speaker. With the Speaker only able to vote to break a tie, the government could be defeated if all 15 Conservatives and Mr. Clark voted against it.

The government's first test was expected to come in about 10 days on a vote of non-confidence at the end of the throne speech debate.

However, Clark said in an interview today that "the speech looks fair to me." He said his vote would depend on conditions at the time but "I don't see anything in the speech that bothers me."

French Sub Lost; 57 Feared Dead

PARIS (CP) — A French submarine with 57 men on board is missing in the Mediterranean and the government said it almost certainly is lost.

A defence ministry spokesman reported an explosion at sea had been detected and debris found added: "We can consider it almost certain that the Eurydice is lost."

The Eurydice was taking part in a hide-and-seek naval exercise in an area off the French south coast resort where more than 100 sailors have lost their lives in underwater disasters.

The vessel had been out of radio contact since diving at 7:30 a.m. 1:30 a.m. EST and did not return to the surface at 10 a.m. as scheduled.

All available ships and aircraft were asked to search the area after a reconnaissance plane taking part in the exercise reported the Eurydice overdue in surfacing.

The search force discovered patches of oil near the site where the sub was last reported and 2½ hours later the command ship reported finding debris.

The 850-ton Eurydice normally carries a full compliment of 39 men and six officers. There was no immediate explanation as to why the vessel had 57 persons aboard when it disappeared.

. . . MANHATTAN JOURNEY

Wales Strait is some eight miles across. Thus there would be a width of at least two miles down the middle of the strait which Canada could not claim as territorial sea.

Here's where the Princess Royal Islands come to the rescue.

They lie almost exactly in the middle of the channel and from them both Banks and Victoria Islands are only some five miles away.

Territorial limits are measured from any piece of land, no matter how small. The three-mile limit in this case extends from the two specks of island in the strait as well as from the shores of the much bigger Banks and Victoria Islands.

Thus Prince of Wales Strait to either side of the Princess Royal Islands is Canadian territorial water and subject to full Canadian sovereignty.

This is the only point in the entire Northwest Passage where Canada can assert — and have internationally accepted — a territorial claim over Arctic water.

By contrast, McClure Strait is some 60 miles wide.

Informants said the existence of the Princess Royal Islands will enable Canada to maintain sovereignty over the Northwest Passage at least until somebody finds an easy way to get through ice-filled McClure Strait.

Canadian icebreakers will be present at all future Arctic voyages by super-tankers such as the Manhattan, say two Canadians who took part in the Manhattan's voyage last year.

Rear Adm. A. H. G. Storrs, director of marine operations for the department of transport, and Capt. T. C. Pullen, also of the department, said Tuesday night that icebreakers will be needed for emergency purposes on future voyages.

Chamber secretary-manager Brian Small recalled that the senior and junior chambers sponsored an amalgamation study in 1958-1959. Conducted by Dr. John Deutsch, then a University of B.C. economist, now chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, it recommended joining Saanich and Victoria "in the long-term interest of both municipalities."

And chamber policy has consistently supported amalgamation of local governments and services.

The present regional set-up was largely devised by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and his department and he says the present regional district apparatus contains "the elements of amalgamation."

But he emphasized the need for his department's technical advice in the matter and the need for agreement among all parties.

He said he would be willing to meet the municipal officials if they indicate willingness to follow the necessary steps.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

One of the surest ways to develop thrift is to live in a cool climate. Nature worked that out in prehistoric times when adventuring man began to move from one continent to another. He was forced to develop a system based on thrift and foresight.

When prehistoric man managed to travel from the tropics to the temperate zone, he found bad weather that made him shiver. He found that to survive in comfort he had to make warm clothing and save food and supplies for rainy and colder days.

And because the virtues of thrift and foresight were more needed in cool climates, the inhabitants generally grew more prosperous than the people in the tropics who didn't have to worry so much about food. People who were not naturally thrifty were forced into it by the weather. They had to save or starve.

FDA ASKS WARNING WITH PILL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration said today it will move to require that drug makers include in all packages of birth control pills a leaflet telling of known and suspected hazards and side effects.

The drug makers at present are required to supply such information only to pharmacists.

The regulation is certain to stir opposition in the medical community and among drug makers. Many witnesses have testified at the subcommittee hearings that the majority of women should not be given such detailed information.

Stiff opposition could delay the regulation from taking effect, cause the FDA to change the leaflet and — as an outside possibility — even prompt a court suit.

Library Holds Line On Staff

Cost slashing, with salaries the biggest casualty, will make things tight for the Greater Victoria Public Library this year.

The library board's finance committee, Brian Tobin explained, has been forced to pare more than $150,000 from the amount originally estimated to cover 1970 needs in order to keep the line at $603,808, the amount allowed by the Greater Victoria municipalities.

The municipalities had set the maximum at $4 per capita, based on 1966 census figures.

The new budget will see a $41,651 reduction in the $386,184 paid out in salaries last year. The library's formal work force of 90 (30 are part time) is down to 75, no one being hired since the beginning of November.

The board approved the estimated budget Tuesday. It must also be approved by the municipalities.

The cutback means that Saanich can't expect a branch library before 1971. Saanich representative Ald. Alan Newberry said his council agreed that Oak Bay — without a branch now — has top priority.

With the addition of $28,050 from book fines, film rentals and other sources, the library will have a total of $631,858 to work with in 1970, up only $1,870 from last year's expenditures.

SURVEY COMPLETED

Board chairman, Ald. Arthur Cuthbert of Esquimalt, said the board agreed to freeze hiring of library staff until a survey on the library's operation was completed by the Vancouver consultant firm of Woods, Gordon and Co.

The survey is now finished and will be studied by board members this evening.

Cuthbert said he intended to make the study public and would probably call a press conference Thursday.

"The public paid $15,000 for the survey which, I think, is a good sound one, and they have a right to know what's in it."

unless we look at the problem on a district-wide basis.

"How can you plan traffic programs and patterns for one municipality without consideration and co-operation from our neighbors?"

Savage said it all "adds up to the fact that nothing can be accomplished in the present situation.

"Just about every plan proposed for the betterment of the area fails in frustration and lack of co-operation."

"Parochial thinking hinders our every move," he continued. "What we need, what we must have is the immediate formation of a group of responsible elected officials to lead us forward to a concrete municipal government governing all of Greater Victoria."

REGIONS

Savage said he had hoped at one time that regional government might lead to amalgamation.

"But obviously it won't," he said. "Regional government is for regional matters, not for urban municipal problems. The regional district will continue to function, but it will not serve, nor should it serve, as a substitute for sound municipal government."

Even at the regional level Savage said parochialism reared its head.

FRUSTRATED

"The fiasco facing us in the hospital construction field is indicative of what I mean," Savage said. "We are constantly frustrated because of imaginary lines between the various municipalites.

"The level of government designed to end parochialism has given us more parochialism than we ever had before."

Savage said he was not calling for instant amalgamation.

"It won't be easy," he said. "But we have to start and we have to bring amalgamation about."

In 1958 ratepayers in Victoria voted in favor of amalgamation while Saanich voters were against. At that time 5,090 voted against joining the city while 2,731 favored the move.

In 1962 a second vote saw the margin narrowed although amalgamation was again rejected. Some 4,869 were against and 3,936 in favor.

Power Corp. Will Make Share Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. has announced a proposal to make a formal share exchange offer for all Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. common shares it does not already own.

If the move is successful, Consolidated-Bathurst, a pulp and paper firm, would become a Power Corp. subsidiary.

The Power Corp. statement said:

"For each common share of Consolidated-Bathurst now held the shareholders of that company will be offered 2½ common shares of Power Corp.

"This offer is to become binding on receipt of not less than 2,300,000 common shares of Consolidated-Bathurst."

Power Corp., a conglomerate which already owns 975,000 of about 6,000,000 outstanding shares in the firm, said it reserves the right to accept any lesser number of shares tendered.

It said the formal offer will be made by the end of April.

PROBER NAMED

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith announced today in the Commons that Ernest J. C. Stewart, a British Columbia county court judge, has been appointed to look into the circumstances by which three young Americans were put across the border at Huntingdon in late January.

The incident was described by David Lewis (NDP—York South) as "sheer illegal kidnapping" when he raised it in the Commons last month.
